Johnson Confers With Top Military Aides

Diplomacy, Defense On Study List

Most Of Day Spent Catching Up On Staff Work

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Johnson conferred with top military and diplomatic aides Friday on defense and other problems, including the proposal to establish a multilateral naval force among NATO countries.

The conferees, headed by Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara, threshed out with the President such problems as the forthcoming NATO council meeting in Paris and certain inter-related State-Defense budget issues.

White House press secretary Pierre Salinger said the general theme of the hour-long meeting was "defense planning and NATO matters." The President also arranged to confer, probably early next week, with the Joint Chiefs of Staff on the military budget.

The Chief Executive's announced schedule for the day was one of the lightest since he assumed the White House burdens. But Salinger said the President was faced with a great deal of staff work and a lot of behind the scenes activity.

As has become customary, the President received an early morning intelligence briefing from John A. McCone, director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

President Sends Letter To Little Girl In Dallas

DALLAS (UPI) — President Johnson sent a reassuring letter to an 11-year-old Dallas girl Friday who had written him expressing fears that her city might be given a bad name because of the assassination of President Kennedy.

The letter was addressed to Fern Butler of 1522 Gillette Circle. Her letter to Mr. Johnson said:

"I am very sorry that Mr. Kennedy has been shot. But I know you will be a good President. I live in Dallas, Texas and I am 11-years-old but that doesn't matter now. I would love to receive a letter from you. I hope the death of Mr. Kennedy won't give Dallas a bad name as my cosin said he thought it would.

"I hope we have you and many more presidents who will visit in Dallas despite what happened on this day (Nov. 22)."

President Johnson told her "what happens to the reputation of Dallas in the future depends on its citizens — particularly you and your cousin and all the children and young people of your city."

Johnson urged her to "learn the lesson of love."

"If we can all be a little more tolerant of each other and a little less ready to hate—if you can grow up learning to get along with and respect all kinds of people and to avoid saying mean things about them even when you disagree—then your city and every city in this wonderful country of ours will be a better place in which to live."

Found Guilty

T. Eugene Thompson Sentenced To Life

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI — T. Eugene Thompson Friday night was convicted of masterminding the murder of his heiress wife for $1 million insurance and the love of a mistress. He was immediately sentenced to life in prison at hard labor.

The dapper little criminal attorney heard of the mandatory sentence pronounced by Judge Rolf Fosseen only minutes after a district court jury of six men and six women found him guilty on a charge of first degree murder.

Thompson's eyes blinked — near tears — as the jury foreman announced his fate. His shoulders heaved up, then sagged warily. As Fosseen told him he must spend the rest of his life in prison.

Defense attorney Hyam Segell said "we intend to appeal."

If the appeal fails, Thompson would be eligible for parole in 25 years, or in 17 years and four months with good behavior.

The jury received the case at 3:58 p.m. CST Thursday and returned its verdict at 6:15 p.m. Friday night after Thompson, manacled, was brought from the cell where he had whiled away the day reading the novel "A Shade of Difference" and newspapers.

It required 12 hours and 20 minutes of actual deliberation for the panel to decide that Thompson, through a middleman, had hired vodka-gulping salesman Dick W. C. Anderson, 36, to kill Mrs. Carol Thompson, 34, the mother of his children last March 6.

Jury foreman Sidney C. Becker, 71, told newsmen the jury took "six or eight ballots" to reach a verdict.

"We took plenty of time to talk it over," he said. "On the first ballot it was about fifty-fifty. Then the vote gradually kept changing until we had a unanimous verdict of guilty."

GOP Dislikes Assassination Guilt Complex

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Republican Policy Committee Friday warned against what its 36 members called efforts to make the American people in general feel guilty about the assassination of President Kennedy.

In a formal statement, the group said:

"There is guilt. But it is not American guilt. It is the guilt of the murderer. There is hatred, fanaticism and bigotry in the world, but America is not its source or loyal Americans its practitioners. America instead has worked hard against these forces and continues to do so."

Then the statement made this point: "We are told that hate was the assassin that struck down the President. If it was hatred that moved the assassin, that hatred was bred by the teachings of communism. All the evidence so far presented affirms this.

Obscures Crime's Nature

"Efforts to make Americans generally feel guilty of the crime now are obscuring the nature of the crime. Rather than setting American against American, as easily could happen if guilt is misplaced and doubt becomes a device of political debate, the tragic event should serve to set the face and heart of all Americans firmly against the warped and alien doctrine which, alone in the world today, preaches destruction of societies and freedoms, employs murder as a tool, and threatens violence around the globe from a base of major national power."

President Johnson, in his address to Congress last week, called for a national rejection of those who teach "hate, evil and violence" — the fanatics of both the far left and the far right.

Three Draft Statement

The GOP statement was drafted by a three-man subcommittee headed by Rep. Melvin R. Laird, R-Wis. Other members were Reps. Katharine St. George, R-N.Y., and John J. Rhodes, R-Ariz.

The statement served notice that sorrow at Kennedy's death would not be allowed to impede honest debate and dissent.

Msgr. Carcini, 101 Dies In Hospital

ROME (UPI) — Msgr. Alfonso Carinci, who served under seven popes during his 75 years in the ministry of the Roman Catholic Church, died Friday in a Rome Hospital less than a month after celebrating his 101st birthday.

The beloved dean of the church's bishops was born in Rome on Nov. 9, 1862 — eight years before the unification of Italy as a nation and the second year of the Civil War in the United States.

Until last month, the thin and still-erect Msgr. Carinci attended Ecumenical Council sessions almost daily.

Pope Sets Date For Pilgrimage To Holy Land

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul VI set Jan. 4-6 for his Holy Land pilgrimage, which one prelate said includes plans for an historic meeting with Orthodox leaders. An Orthodox patriarch even suggested a summit meeting of all major Christian faiths while the pontiff is in Jerusalem.

A Vatican Press announcement Friday said the Pope would leave Rome Saturday, Jan. 4 and return Jan. 6. This would mean a journey by plane, the first air trip for a Pope, since Jerusalem is 1,500 miles away.

The Pope will celebrate at least two Masses in the Holy Land. One will be on Jan. 6, the Roman Catholic Feast of the Epiphany, commemorating the carrying of gifts by the three Wise Men to the infant Jesus in Bethlehem.

The schedule multiplied the problems of logistics and security for those charged with caring for the 66-year-old spiritual ruler of 550 million Catholics. It was assumed that he will cross the Israel - Jordan frontier, which is guarded by Israeli and Arab armies hostile to each other.

Sources at Vatican City said a three-day trip would give him time to meet with Orthodox leaders in Jerusalem. A Pope and an Orthodox patriarch have not met since the great schism of 1054.

Union Membership Shows Decline Across Country

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Union membership is shrinking in the United States even though the labor force is growing, the government reported Friday.

A Labor Department survey said union membership declined almost 500,000 between 1960 and 1962. The report discounted any "disaffection with the labor movement" as the primary cause, however.

The average dues-paying membership of AFL-CIO unions during this period fell by 222,000 to 14,770,000. Independent unions accounted for the rest of the decline.

The report said that unions in metals, machinery and transportation equipment industries accounted for 80 per cent of the AFL-CIO membership losses.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said overall union membership in the nation hit a peak of 17,500,000 in 1956. As of last year, it had dropped to 16,500,000 including both AFL-CIO and unaffiliated labor organizations.

The biggest membership losses have occurred in mining, railroads and factories.

Miss Keeler Draws Term In Prison

Court Sentences Play Girl To Serve Nine Months

LONDON (AP)—Play girl Christine Keeler went to prison Friday night and started serving a nine-month sentence.

She pleaded guilty earlier in the day to charges of perjury and conspiracy to subvert justice and was taken to London's prison for women to serve her time. She could be free in six months.

Tears glistened in her eyes as she heard the sentence.

Otherwise the red-haired, 21-year-old prostitute was as stonily composed as she has been through the past 10 months after her affair with disgraced former War Minister John D. Profumo was uncovered and nearly brought down the British government.

She sat unmoved while defense attorney Jeremy Hutchinson pleaded that she had been the sexual plaything of evil men in her early teens and pregnant at 15.

She was sentenced for committing perjury in the trial last June of her ex-lover Aloysius Gordon, Jamaican Negro jazz singer. He was convicted on charges of beating her up, but won freedom of appeal.

She also was sentenced to six months for conspiracy but the two sentences are to run concurrently.

Her apartment mate and codefendant, Paula Hamilton-Marshall, 23, was sentenced to six months on her guilty plea to similar charges. Their housekeeper, Olive Brooker, 56, was given a suspended sentence of 12 months although she also had pleaded guilty when their trial opened its second day.

A fourth defendant, Jamaican Negro Rudolph Fenton, 39, pleaded innocent to the conspiracy charge and his case was continued until Monday. He was not accused of perjury.

Red Terrorists Bomb Embassy

CARACAS (UPI) — Pro-Castro terrorists Friday bombed the front door of the Trinidad Embassy in Caracas and killed a policeman in new outbreaks of anti-government activity.

In another development, the government said it captured the man directly responsible for the kidnaping of U. S. Army Col. James K. Chenault when it seized Juan de Dios Moncada Thursday. He styled himself the supreme commander of the underground armed forces for national liberation.

The bombing attack on the Trinidad Embassy was the second terrorist assault there in a week. It was in retaliation for the action of the Trinidad government in returning to Caracas for trial the six young guerrillas who hijacked a Venezuelan commercial airliner last week and forced the pilot at gunpoint to fly them to nearby Port of Spain.

In the previous attack, terrorists sprayed the embassy with sub-machine gun fire from a speeding car. Ambassador Donal Garanado was not at the embassy either time.

Castro Discharges Cabinet Member

HAVANA (UPI) — Premier Fidel Castro Friday fired a cabinet member whose work he had criticized.

The ousted official was Transport Minister Capt. Omar Fernandez. He was ordered to go back to work with Industries Minister Ernesto Che Guevara, the same job from which he had been promoted.

Castro in a speech Nov. 27 attacked Fernandez' ministry for not halting smuggling of contraband goods by Cuban merchant seamen and for discourteous treatment of the public by bus drivers and conductors.

President Johnson Confers Nation's Highest Honor On 31

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Johnson conferred America's highest peacetime honor on 31 men and women Friday —and then in "a simple gesture" bestowed it posthumously on John F. Kennedy and Pope John XXIII for their efforts to bring peace to mankind.

The President's surprise announcement that he was adding his slain predecessor and Pope John to the nation's "civil honors list" came after he had read citations for the original recipients of the Medal of Freedom.

A hush fell over the 200 people assembled in the black-draped state dining room of the White House as Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy walked forward to receive his brother's medal.

Sitting with head bowed behind an oriental screen as the President cited her husband for "combating hate with compassion" was Mrs. John F. Kennedy.

Helped Design Medal

Months ago she helped the late President design the medal, a blue and white star on a red and gold background.

President Kennedy's citation said that as "soldier, scholar, statesman, defender of freedom, pioneer for peace, author of hope" he combined courage with reason and "led the land he loved toward new frontiers of opportunity for all men and peace for all time."

The citation for Pope John said:

"His Holiness Pope John XXIII, dedicated servant of God. . . brought to all citizens of the planet a heightened sense of the dignity of the individual, of the brotherhood of man and of the common duty to build an environment of peace for all mankind."

The original recipients of the medal, two of whom also were honored posthumously, represented a cross section of the world.

Lesser Knowns Honored

Also such lesser knows as Annie Wauneka, a Navajo Indian who has worked to improve the lot of her people, and Genevieve Caulfield, 73, who despite being blind founded and operated schools for the sightless in Thailand and Viet Nam.

The presidential Medal of Freedom was originally conceived in 1945 as an award for civilian acts in wartime. In 1952 it was altered to recognize superior performance in the interests of national security.

Last February, President Kennedy completely altered its concept. Ordering a new design, he decided to honor not only those contributing to national security but also to "cultural and other significant public or private endeavors."

Berlin Wall May Be Opened For Christmas

BERLIN (UPI) — The West German press office said Friday the East German Communists will open the Berlin wall at Christmas for the first time to permit West Berliners to visit friends and relatives in the Eastern sector of the divided city.

But as the Communists sparked bittersweet joy among West Berliners an almost simultaneous announcement reported that East German police Friday shot and killed another refugee seeking to flee to the West on the frontier near the western city of Luebeck.

The press office announcement was seen by West Berliners as promising possibly their merriest Christmas since the wall was erected Aug. 13, 1961. But it held out no immediate hope of travel for relations and loved ones in the Communist part of the city—only West Berliners will be allowed to cross the 28-mile-long wall. The East Berliners remain caged.

West Germany attempted in vain to negotiate Christmas passage through the wall the past two years. Residents in both sectors of the city could only cluster in sight of each other and wave.

The Communist decision to open the wall for West Berliners for the first time was considered a major concession. It remains to be seen, however, whether the Communists actually will carry out their plan. The Western announcement was greeted in some quarters with skepticism.

Jobless Rolls Up By Half Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 500,000 additional jobless Americans swelled the nation's unemployed to nearly 4 million last month, the Labor Department reported Friday.

But a spokesman for the Bureau of Labor Statistics said other economic barometers indicated the increase was not particularly worrisome.

Total employment dipped from 69.9 million to 69.3 million from the previous month because of an expected seasonal reduction in farm jobs, he said. Nonfarm employment remained at 64.5 million as expected. A small fluctuation in the work force made the net gain in joblessness 500,000.

Young Bob Taft In Senate Race

CLEVELAND (AP) — Republican Robert Taft Jr., declaring himself a candidate for the U.S. Senate Friday, said a national GOP ticket headed by Sen. Barry Goldwater "would make it difficult" for his senatorial campaign in Ohio.

The congressman - at - large from Cincinnati, fourth generation of his family in Ohio politics, said he thinks Goldwater's chances for the GOP presidential nomination have been hurt by the assassination of President Kennedy.

Taft, 46, will seek the Senate seat now held by Democratic Sen. Stephen M. Young. Young, 73, is expected to announce soon that he will seek re-election.

Taft is the son of the late Sen. Robert A. Taft, who once headed the Republican party in the Senate.

Hoffa's Staff Resigns As Protest Of Actions Following Assasination

WASHINGTON (UPI)—James R. Hoffa's top assistant and four other aides to the Teamster president have resigned in protest against actions and statements by Hoffa following President Kennedy's assassination, it was learned Friday.

Informed sources said Harold J. Gibbons turned in his resignation Thursday night as executive assistant to the president.

Four other Hoffa aides followed suit.

It was reported that Gibbons issued a statement of condolence in behalf of the Teamsters without first clearing it with Hoffa.

When Hoffa learned of the statement, he ordered it withdrawn and issued a substitute in which he said the President's death made Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy "just another lawyer."

It was understood that Hoffa also was angered because Gibbons ordered Teamster headquarters in Washington, closed Nov. 25, the day of mourning for the President, and ordered the flag flown at half staff.

Those who resigned along with Gibbons were Lawrence Steinberg and Richard Kavner, both personal assistants to Hoffa; Ferguson Keathley, an assistant in the union's warehouse division; Keathley's wife, Yuki, who is Hoffa's secretary, and an aide, Peter Saffo.

Mrs. Kennedy Moves Family To New Home

Johnsons To Take Official Residency Over This Weekend

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mrs. John F. Kennedy and her children moved out of the White House Friday, leaving behind only echoes of the life, laughter and love they brought to it nearly three years ago.

Speaking for the nation, the new First Lady, Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson, paid tribute to the 34-year-old widow for something else she left behind, "a shining gift of beauty."

The Johnsons will move into the White House this weekend.

The late President's wife, daughter Caroline and son John Jr. arrived at their new, temporary home in Georgetown at 1:25 p.m. EST. John was waving an American flag as they entered the red brick, Georgian - style town house loaned them by Undersecretary of State W. Averell Harriman.

Three blocks down the street is the house the Kennedys left in January, 1961, to enter the White House. Mrs. Kennedy returned to Georgetown Friday exactly two weeks after her husband was assassinated.

Husband Awarded Medal

Her last day in the Executive Mansion was one of simple, last-minute tasks and yet another high tribute to the memory of her husband.

Mrs. Kennedy watched silently from behind a screen in the black-drape state dining room as President Johnson, in a surprise gesture, awarded the presidential Medal of Freedom posthumously to her husband. Johnson told a crowd of notables that Kennedy "led the land he loved toward new frontiers of opportunity for all men and peace for all time."

While Caroline, 6, attended first-grade classes as usual on the third floor, Mrs. Kennedy expressed her "deep appreciation" to the White House staff for their faithfulness in three years.

To Get Paintings

In a memorandum signed by social Secretary Nancy Tuckerman, the former First Lady said that copies of a painting of the Green Room, selected by her late husband, would go to each of them as a Christmas gift and as a "continual reminder of the President."

The Kennedys' planned Christmas party for the White House staff next Wednesday was cancelled because of his death.

The memorandum said Mrs. Kennedy "is especially touched by your untiring devotion during the past two weeks, and your loyalty at this sad time has been a source of comfort to her."

The White House family quarters were barren Friday. All the Kennedys' personal belongings had been moved into the Georgetown house, and most of the furniture is in storage.

But the public rooms, still on view to hundreds of passing visitors, bear the stamp of Mrs. Kennedy's extensive efforts to restore the mansion to its original historic elegance. Each room was redecorated with furnishings and art objects of their period.

Praises Project

It was this favorite project of Mrs. Kennedy's that the new First Lady praised Friday.

"At every turn we are freshly conscious of our heritage," said Mrs. Johnson. "The most knowledgeable expert as well as the busloads of children who visit will always know that a young and radiant First Lady lived here.

"We know her better than ever before and hold her close to our hearts with inexpressable love, she added.

15 Orphans Invited To Service Game

WASHINGTON (UPI) — At the suggestion of the Kennedy family, the Army has invited 15 orphans to sit in the Presidential box at the Army-Navy football game in Philadelphia Saturday.

A spokesman said Friday that the Philadelphia area children—13 boys and two girls between the ages of 11 and 17—were selected by religious and charitable organizations. They will be guests of Army Secretary Cyrus R. Vance.

The late President Kennedy had planned to attend the game which was postponed a week after his death. President Johnson does not plan to attend the game.

A fourth defendant, Jamaican Negro Rudolph Fenton, 39, pleaded innocent to the conspiracy charge and his case was continued until Monday. He was not accused of perjury.

Red Terrorists Bomb Embassy

CARACAS (UPI) — Pro-Castro terrorists Friday bombed the front door of the Trinidad Embassy in Caracas and killed a policeman in new outbreaks of anti-government activity.

In another development, the government said it captured the man directly responsible for the kidnaping of U. S. Army Col. James K. Chenault when it seized Juan de Dios Moncada Thursday. He styled himself the supreme commander of the underground armed forces for national liberation.

The bombing attack on the Trinidad Embassy was the second terrorist assault there in a week. It was in retaliation for the action of the Trinidad government in returning to Caracas for trial the six young guerrillas who hijacked a Venezuelan commercial airliner last week and forced the pilot at gunpoint to fly them to nearby Port of Spain.

In the previous attack, terrorists sprayed the embassy with sub-machine gun fire from a speeding car. Ambassador Donal Garanado was not at the embassy either time.

Castro Discharges Cabinet Member

HAVANA (UPI) — Premier Fidel Castro Friday fired a cabinet member whose work he had criticized.

The ousted official was Transport Minister Capt. Omar Fernandez. He was ordered to go back to work with Industries Minister Ernesto Che Guevara, the same job from which he had been promoted.

Castro in a speech Nov. 27 attacked Fernandez' ministry for not halting smuggling of contraband goods by Cuban merchant seamen and for discourteous treatment of the public by bus drivers and conductors.

All This And No One Hurt

This pile up of 38 cars of a 100-car westbound Boston and Maine freight train that jumped the tracks near Royalston, Mass. yesterday, was termed one of the biggest pile ups of its kind. Some of the cars plunged into the Miller River. A trainman said a draw bar let go on a car loaded with cement, causing the derailment. No one was hurt. President Johnson Confers Nation's Highest Honor On 31

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Johnson conferred America's highest peacetime honor on 31 men and women Friday —and then in "a simple gesture" bestowed it posthumously on John F. Kennedy and Pope John XXIII for their efforts to bring peace to mankind.

The President's surprise announcement that he was adding his slain predecessor and Pope John to the nation's "civil honors list" came after he had read citations for the original recipients of the Medal of Freedom.

A hush fell over the 200 people assembled in the black-draped state dining room of the White House as Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy walked forward to receive his brother's medal.

Sitting with head bowed behind an oriental screen as the President cited her husband for "combating hate with compassion" was Mrs. John F. Kennedy.

Helped Design Medal

Months ago she helped the late President design the medal, a blue and white star on a red and gold background.

President Kennedy's citation said that as "soldier, scholar, statesman, defender of freedom, pioneer for peace, author of hope" he combined courage with reason and "led the land he loved toward new frontiers of opportunity for all men and peace for all time."

The citation for Pope John said:

"His Holiness Pope John XXIII, dedicated servant of God. . . brought to all citizens of the planet a heightened sense of the dignity of the individual, of the brotherhood of man and of the common duty to build an environment of peace for all mankind."

The original recipients of the medal, two of whom also were honored posthumously, represented a cross section of the world.

Lesser Knowns Honored

Also such lesser knows as Annie Wauneka, a Navajo Indian who has worked to improve the lot of her people, and Genevieve Caulfield, 73, who despite being blind founded and operated schools for the sightless in Thailand and Viet Nam.

The presidential Medal of Freedom was originally conceived in 1945 as an award for civilian acts in wartime. In 1952 it was altered to recognize superior performance in the interests of national security.

Last February, President Kennedy completely altered its concept. Ordering a new design, he decided to honor not only those contributing to national security but also to "cultural and other significant public or private endeavors."

Jobless Rolls Up By Half Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 500,000 additional jobless Americans swelled the nation's unemployed to nearly 4 million last month, the Labor Department reported Friday.

But a spokesman for the Bureau of Labor Statistics said other economic barometers indicated the increase was not particularly worrisome.

Total employment dipped from 69.9 million to 69.3 million from the previous month because of an expected seasonal reduction in farm jobs, he said. Nonfarm employment remained at 64.5 million as expected. A small fluctuation in the work force made the net gain in joblessness 500,000.

Berlin Wall May Be Opened For Christmas

BERLIN (UPI) — The West German press office said Friday the East German Communists will open the Berlin wall at Christmas for the first time to permit West Berliners to visit friends and relatives in the Eastern sector of the divided city.

But as the Communists sparked bittersweet joy among West Berliners an almost simultaneous announcement reported that East German police Friday shot and killed another refugee seeking to flee to the West on the frontier near the western city of Luebeck.

The press office announcement was seen by West Berliners as promising possibly their merriest Christmas since the wall was erected Aug. 13, 1961. But it held out no immediate hope of travel for relatives and loved ones in the Communist part of the city—only West Berliners will be allowed to cross the 28-mile-long wall. The East Berliners remain caged.

West Germany attempted in vain to negotiate Christmas passage through the wall the past two years. Residents in both sectors of the city could only cluster in sight of each other and wave.

The Communist decision to open the wall for West Berliners for the first time was considered a major concession. It remains to be seen, however, whether the Communists actually will carry out their plan. The Western announcement was greeted in some quarters with skepticism.

Young Bob Taft In Senate Race

CLEVELAND (AP) — Republican Robert Taft Jr., declaring himself a candidate for the U.S. Senate Friday, said a national GOP ticket headed by Sen. Barry Goldwater "would make it difficult" for his senatorial campaign in Ohio.

The congressman - at - large from Cincinnati, fourth generation of his family in Ohio politics, said he thinks Goldwater's chances for the GOP presidential nomination have been hurt by the assassination of President Kennedy.

Taft, 46, will seek the Senate seat now held by Democratic Sen. Stephen M. Young. Young, 73, is expected to announce soon that he will seek re-election.

Taft is the son of the late Sen. Robert A. Taft, who once headed the Republican party in the Senate.

Hoffa's Staff Resigns As Protest Of Actions Following Assasination

WASHINGTON (UPI)—James R. Hoffa's top assistant and four other aides to the Teamster president have resigned in protest against actions and statements by Hoffa following President Kennedy's assassination, it was learned Friday.

Informed sources said Harold J. Gibbons turned in his resignation Thursday night as executive assistant to the president.

Four other Hoffa aides followed suit.

It was reported that Gibbons issued a statement of condolence in behalf of the Teamsters without first clearing it with Hoffa.

When Hoffa learned of the statement, he ordered it withdrawn and issued a substitute in which he said the President's death made Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy "just another lawyer."

It was understood that Hoffa also was angered because Gibbons ordered Teamster headquarters in Washington, closed Nov. 25, the day of mourning for the President, and ordered the flag flown at half staff.

Those who resigned along with Gibbons were Lawrence Steinberg and Richard Kavner, both personal assistants to Hoffa; Ferguson Keathley, an assistant in the union's warehouse division; Keathley's wife, Yuki, who is Hoffa's secretary, and an aide, Peter Saffo.

Mrs. Kennedy Moves Family To New Home

Johnsons To Take Official Residency Over This Weekend

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mrs. John F. Kennedy and her children moved out of the White House Friday, leaving behind only echoes of the life, laughter and love they brought to it nearly three years ago.

Speaking for the nation, the new First Lady, Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson, paid tribute to the 34-year-old widow for something else she left behind, "a shining gift of beauty."

The Johnsons will move into the White House this weekend.

The late President's wife, daughter Caroline and son John Jr. arrived at their new, temporary home in Georgetown at 1:25 p.m. EST. John was waving an American flag as they entered the red brick, Georgian - style town house loaned them by Undersecretary of State W. Averell Harriman.

Three blocks down the street is the house the Kennedys left in January, 1961, to enter the White House. Mrs. Kennedy returned to Georgetown Friday exactly two weeks after her husband was assassinated.

Husband Awarded Medal

Her last day in the Executive Mansion was one of simple, last-minute tasks and yet another high tribute to the memory of her husband.

Mrs. Kennedy watched silently from behind a screen in the black-drape state dining room as President Johnson, in a surprise gesture, awarded the presidential Medal of Freedom posthumously to her husband. Johnson told a crowd of notables that Kennedy "led the land he loved toward new frontiers of opportunity for all men and peace for all time."

While Caroline, 6, attended first-grade classes as usual on the third floor, Mrs. Kennedy expressed her "deep appreciation" to the White House staff for their faithfulness in three years.

To Get Paintings

In a memorandum signed by social Secretary Nancy Tuckerman, the former First Lady said that copies of a painting of the Green Room, selected by her late husband, would go to each of them as a Christmas gift and as a "continual reminder of the President."

The Kennedys' planned Christmas party for the White House staff next Wednesday was cancelled because of his death.

The memorandum said Mrs. Kennedy "is especially touched by your untiring devotion during the past two weeks, and your loyalty at this sad time has been a source of comfort to her."

The White House family quarters were barren Friday. All the Kennedys' personal belongings had been moved into the Georgetown house, and most of the furniture is in storage.

But the public rooms, still on view to hundreds of passing visitors, bear the stamp of Mrs. Kennedy's extensive efforts to restore the mansion to its original historic elegance. Each room was redecorated with furnishings and art objects of their period.

Praises Project

It was this favorite project of Mrs. Kennedy's that the new First Lady praised Friday.

"At every turn we are freshly conscious of our heritage," said Mrs. Johnson. "The most knowledgeable expert as well as the busloads of children who visit will always know that a young and radiant First Lady lived here.

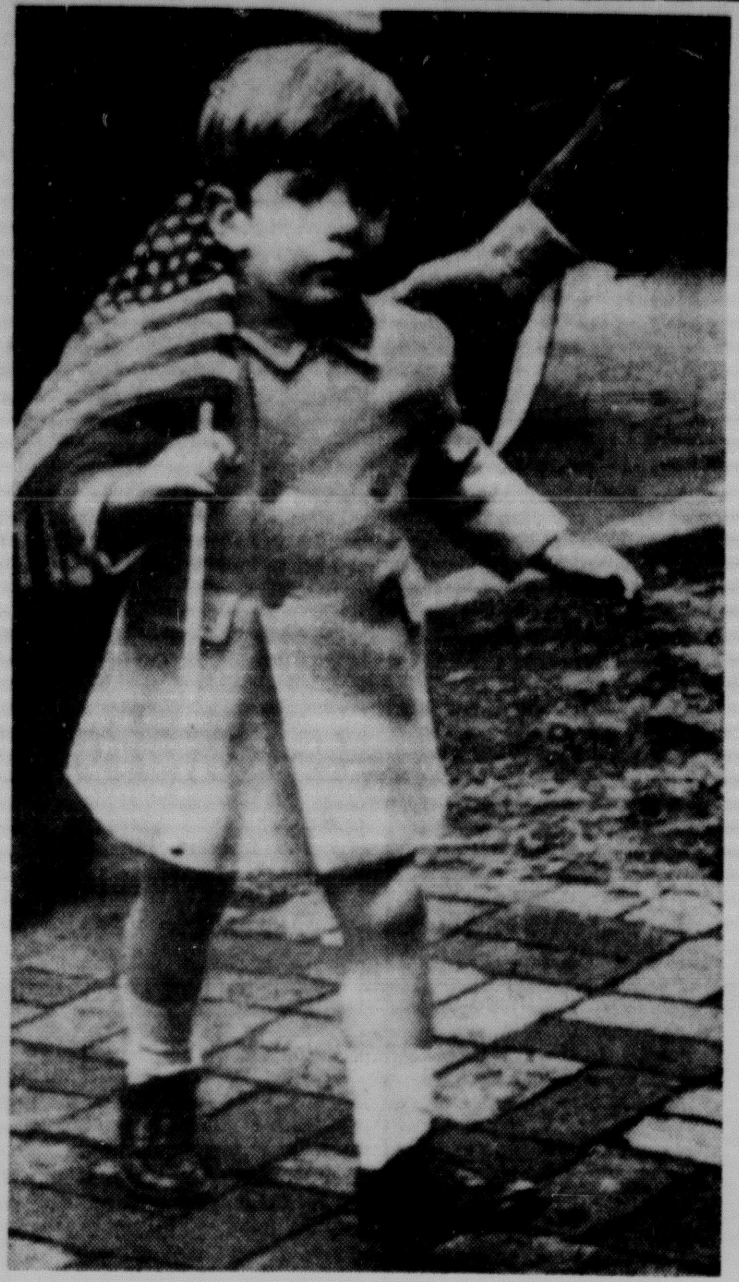
"We know her better than ever before and hold her close to our hearts with inexpressable love, she added.

15 Orphans Invited To Service Game

WASHINGTON (UPI) — At the suggestion of the Kennedy family, the Army has invited 15 orphans to sit in the Presidential box at the Army-Navy football game in Philadelphia Saturday.

A spokesman said Friday that the Philadelphia area children—13 boys and two girls between the ages of 11 and 17—were selected by religious and charitable organizations. They will be guests of Army Secretary Cyrus R. Vance.

The late President Kennedy had planned to attend the game which was postponed a week after his death. President Johnson does not plan to attend the game.



Marching Home

Three-year-old John F. Kennedy Jr., chin up and carrying his flag, strides from an automobile, under guidance of Secret Service agents, to his new home in the Georgetown section of Washington. Louisiana Votes In Primary Today

10 Seek Gubernatorial Nomination

NEW ORLEANS, (AP) — Purged of its initial fury by the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, Louisiana's campaign for governor goes to the voters Saturday.

Ten men are bidding for the Democratic nomination. If no one draws over 50 per cent of the vote, the two top men compete in a runoff election Jan. 11.

Democratic nomination has meant election here for 88 years, since Reconstruction. The general election March 3 rates as a mere formality. The new governor takes office May 12.

The campaign, already unusual in the number of serious candidates, underwent a complete change in nature after the president was killed in Dallas two weeks ago.

Before Dallas, President Kennedy—a symbol of civil rights and liberal outlook — was a major campaign issue. "Hate Kennedy" talk was loud in the state.

After Dallas, major candidates centered on such uplifting but unemotional issues as improvement of education and progress in general.

If the assassination produces any political lashback, it is expected to aid deLesseps S. Morrison, 51, a former mayor of New Orleans.

Often attacked as a "Kennedy candidate," Morrison resigned as Kennedy's ambassador to the Organization of American States to make the race.

Morrison, making his third bid for the governorship, denied being anybody's candidate but refused to argue the issue, saying he would not be a "hater."

Though polls show him the leader, Morrison faces some high hurdles even if he makes the runoff.

For one, he is a "city" candidate. He also is a Roman Catholic. The last New Orleans man to be elected governor was in 1920. The last Roman Catholic winner was in 1884.

The politically potent Long family, a factor in Louisiana politics since the days when Huey Long controlled the state in the 1930s, was split.

Rep. Gillis W. Long, 40, D-La. was backed by U.S. Sen. Russell B. Long. John J. McKeithen a former legislative leader for the late Gov. Earl Long, was backed by Earl Long's widow.

Both were criticized as Kennedy candidates but, before Dallas, hotly denied it.

Other major candidates included Robert F. Kennon, 61, a former governor who bolted the party twice to support Dwight D. Eisenhower, and Shelby M. Jackson, 59, a vigorous segregationist.

Claude Kirkpatric, 46, and state Rep. Louis J. Michot Jr., 41, ranked as dark horse possibilities.

Three others—A. R. Thompson Sr., 68, and Hugh P. Lasseigne, 51—were counted out.

Polls open at 6 a.m. and close at 8 p.m. A big vote was predicted. The 1,182,676 registered voters include 154,247 Negroes.

Alcoholic Study Is Completed In Baltimore City

BALTIMORE (AP) — A conference of 30 experts outlined Friday recommendations for improving the handling and treatment of alcoholics in Baltimore City.

Summarizing a week of exchanging ideas, the 30 federal, state and city officials emphasized more hospital examination and treatment along with education.

They proposed an experimental center at a city hospital to care for acute drunkeness offenders from one city district.

Also suggested were an evaluation hospital center to provide short term care and referral to other agencies, a roving evaluation team at general hospitals and a coordinator of all services for alcoholics.

They recommended that every level of government expand its efforts to instruct school teachers, students, counselors and nurses on the problems of alcoholism.

Parents Send Check

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — The parents of a state trooper killed in the line of duty have sent a $100 check to Mrs. J.D. Tippit, widow of the Dallas policeman slain by the alleged assassin of President Kennedy.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Lambert of Wilton, lost their son when he was struck and killed by a drunken driver in Bethel three years ago.

Maryland Briefs

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Del. C. Maurice Weidemeyer, D-Anne Arundel, says he will represent a restaurant owner in a court test of Maryland's public accommodations law.

Weidemeyer declined to identify his client, who has been called before the Maryland Commission on Interracial Problems and Relations for a Dec. 18 hearing on a charge that he denied service to a Negro.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Private funeral services will be held Saturday for Enos S. Stockbridge, principal author of the Baltimore city charter and former state official.

Stockbridge, a lawyer, died Thursday at 75.

He had served as chairman of the Commission on Administrative Organization of the State, head of the Department of Correction and member of the University of Maryland Board of Regents.

He is survived by his widow and four children.

LAUREL, Del. (AP) — Horace T. Waller, 69, and his wife, Alice, 68, were fatally injured Friday when their automobile and a truck collided at a highway intersection near here.

The couple, who lived on a farm near Laurel, were injured as the car started to turn off U.S. 13 onto Delaware 24 and was struck by the truck.

No one else was seriously injured.

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — A Bethesda man was injured fatally in a traffic accident Friday.

Martin B. Cottlieg, 32, died in Suburban Hospital today, five hours after his car crashed into a utility pole at Old Georgetown Road and Huntington Parkway.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Maryland Briefs

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Del. C. Maurice Weidemeyer, D-Anne Arundel, says he will represent a restaurant owner in a court test of Maryland's public accommodations law.

Weidemeyer declined to identify his client, who has been called before the Maryland Commission on Interracial Problems and Relations for a Dec. 18 hearing on a charge that he denied service to a Negro.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Private funeral services will be held Saturday for Enos S. Stockbridge, principal author of the Baltimore city charter and former state official.

Stockbridge, a lawyer, died Thursday at 75.

He had served as chairman of the Commission on Administrative Organization of the State, head of the Department of Correction and member of the University of Maryland Board of Regents.

He is survived by his widow and four children.

LAUREL, Del. (AP) — Horace T. Waller, 69, and his wife, Alice, 68, were fatally injured Friday when their automobile and a truck collided at a highway intersection near here.

The couple, who lived on a farm near Laurel, were injured as the car started to turn off U.S. 13 onto Delaware 24 and was struck by the truck.

No one else was seriously injured.

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — A Bethesda man was injured fatally in a traffic accident Friday.

Martin B. Cottlieg, 32, died in Suburban Hospital today, five hours after his car crashed into a utility pole at Old Georgetown Road and Huntington Parkway.

Congressman Looking For Snakes, Frogs

WASHINGTON (AP) — "You got any snakes or frogs to spare?" a Maryland congress is asking his constituents in the Free State.

Rep. Clarence D. Long, D-Md., informed constituents Friday that Walter Reed Army Medical Center here buys snakes and frogs.

"Want to bid? Write my business desk," Long advised.

He said he has helped a Reisterstown rabbit farm supply rabbits for medical research at Walter Reed.

Youths Wreck Stolen Car

Two youths were admitted early yesterday to Memorial Hospital after they wrecked an automobile in Romney, W. Va., which they had stolen earlier in the evening from the parking lot in the rear of the Masonic Temple.

Authorities said the car, owned by Ray H. Lapp Jr., of 1028 Weires Avenue, LaVale, was reported stolen about 10:30 p. m. yesterday. The State Police barracks at LaVale was notified and a radio alarm posted with nearby states.

West Virginia State Police at Romney were called to investigate an accident near the Hampshire County seat at about 1 a. m. A routine check disclosed the wrecked car as being the one reported stolen several hours earlier.

Miller Honored By Association

William F. Miller, superintendent of the Cumberland sewage treatment plant, has been certified by the Maryland-Delaware Water and Pollution Control Association, the only certified operating personnel in Maryland west of Frederick.

His certification came as the result of examinations. The program aims to promote employment of trained, experienced and responsible personnel and to provide a means for giving recognition to operators as they seek higher levels of advancement and efficiency.

Miller's certificate was presented to him at a recent meeting of the Mayor and Council.

Since Cumberland is a primary instead of a secondary treatment facility, certain time lapses are necessary between certification times. Miller has a Class C certificate and hopes eventually to be tested and gain Class B and then Class A certificates.

Former Local Man To Direct Symphony

Norman O. Scribner, formerly of this city, will direct the National Symphony Orchestra in its presentation of "The Messiah" tomorrow at 8:30 p. m. and Sunday at 3 p. m. in Constitution Hall, Washington, D. C.

Scribner, son of Mrs. Norman O. Scribner, 107 Luteman Road, and the late Rev. Mr. Scribner, who was pastor of Centre Street Methodist Church, will shatter a tradition established 10 years ago when the orchestra first presented Handel's oratorio. In an extraordinary gesture, Howard Mitchell, who began conducting the presentation a decade ago, has turned over the baton to Mr. Scribner.

Hagerstown Man Hurt In Crash

A Hagerstown man was hospitalized Thursday after the car in which he was a passenger smashed into a bridge abutment on State Route 39 at Crellin, Garrett County.

Admitted was Earl Louis Calleet, 34, who suffered multiple severe lacerations of the head and face, a possible skull fracture and internal injuries. He is reported in "satisfactory" condition.

Tfc. D. A. Tucker, who investigated, said Calleet was a passenger in a car operated by Kenneth E. Carbaugh, 40, also of Hagerstown.

Carbaugh was traveling east on Route 39 and was blinded by an approaching car as he neared a bridge on the highway. He swerved his car to the right and smashed into an abutment.

Find A New Friendship

A recent cartoon had a matron saying that she and her husband were trying to include among their friendships some people they liked. A friend of mine raised an eyebrow as he smiled at it, and commented, "You know, there's something in that that you usually don't think about. Older people especially get so used to being with the same crowd that they no longer think about whether or not they would choose this member or that for a friend.

"We couldn't hope for better friends than some we've had for years. But I wonder if it wouldn't be a good idea to find some new ones that we'd pick because they especially suited us right now — instead of sticking exclusively to people we've been used to so long."

Most husbands make their wives responsible for entertaining and the acceptance of invitations, so the situation may be up to you. Are you in a rut, always seeing the same people? Is your husband simply going along with your social life out of habit? Does he belong with your friends as he should, or truly enjoy them? How long has it been since you questioned things as they are?

Sometimes a man grows away from an old circle of friends faster than a wife does. His business life changes him, he broadens beyond what he was as a young man. He may enjoy far more advanced company occasionally. He may need the stimulation of contact with quite different thinking.

Now I'm not for a minute recommending the scuttling of old friends. There's surely enough room in your life for them and also new ones. I am suggesting that new friendships can be a wonderful experience. Those you can learn to know will present new viewpoints and new ideas, and inspire new interests and activities. Haven't you met someone recently whom you two would like to know better? Isn't it possible that someone you're passing by would like to make more than casual acquaintances of you?

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Soon my husband and I will be celebrating our golden wedding anniversary. Our children want to give us a grand party, complete with open house and all the trimmings.

Here is the drawback. Our marriage has not been a happy one. It was more like an endurance test for me. As I look back I don't know how I lived through the humiliation of all his sordid affairs.

He left me with three small children when the baby was less than a year old. If my family had not come to my rescue I don't know what I would have done.

Everyone knew the ugly details. When he returned I took him back and never said a word. But I have not loved him since. For the past 20 years I have supported myself because I have not wanted to take any money from him. I'm no longer bitter, Ann, just indifferent.

Does such a marriage call for a celebration? What do you say? —SMILING ON THE OUTSIDE

DEAR SMILING: If your children wish to honor you and your husband with a party don't deprive them of the pleasure. They obviously do not view your marriage as you do—and it's just as well.

Since you have acted a role for the past several years one more benefit performance won't hurt.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm an English teacher and a guidance counselor in a junior high school. This is a rather small community — population under 45,000.

In your opinion how far should the school authorities go in their demands that the 11-, 12- and 13-year-old girls look their age?

Many of our young students come to school wearing tight skirts and sweaters, eye make-up, and lacquered hairdo's. Friday one girl appeared in false eyelashes. When I called her into my office she said, "This is a free country. My mother knows I fix myself up like this and if it's O.K. with her I don't think it's any of the school's business."

I phoned the girl's mother and she supported her daughter. Her attitude was, "She has to get it out of her system."

What should the school's position be?—FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: When 11-, 12-, and 13-year-olds come to school looking like chorus girls they should be told to go home and wash their faces and comb their hair — and not to come back until they look their age.

A school whose standards are set by the kookiest mother in town isn't worth much.

East Side Workshop January 16

The East Side Homemakers Club held a memorial service for Mrs. Debrah Burkett, the second member to die in the past month. Mrs. Herman Curry read the Scripture and following silent prayer, a prayer was offered by Mrs. Carl Smith.

The service was held Tuesday at Melvin Methodist Church, in conjunction with the regular meeting, and Christmas party. Workshops were discontinued until January 16, at which time it will be held at the home of Mrs. Carl Smith, Yale Street. It was announced that the group will go to the gas company for a demonstration March 31 at 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. Thomas Buser presided and extended a welcome. The collect was read and the history of "All My Heart this Night Rejoices" was given by Mrs. William Flora and sung by the group. Miss Mary Wise was a guest and spoke on "Good Design for a Price." Reports were given by Mrs. James Gall, Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Lawrence Miller.

Roll call was answered with a thought for the Christmas season. An invitation was received to the Homemakers Christmas tea December 12 at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, from 2 to 4 p.m. Mrs. Charles Frost read two Christmas poems. Mrs. Buser read a poem and the group sang "Silent Night," "O Little Town of Bethlehem," and "Deck the Halls."

A basket was packed for a needy family. Jingles were exchanged and refreshments were served. Mrs. Smith offered the invocation. A Christmas tree featured the decorations. Mrs. Clarence Stewart and Mrs. Gall were in charge of the party; Mrs. Ella Simons, decorations and Mrs. Frost, program.

The January meeting will be at the home of Mrs. William George, Cole Street, with Mrs. Margaret Klingbail and Mrs. Bertha Goodyear cohostesses.

Mrs. Chester Moore, Mrs. Janice Harden, prospective members and Mrs. Irene MacDonald were visitors. Others attending were Mrs. John Aaron, Mrs. Lettie Dicken, Mrs. Roy Hinkle, Mrs. Dan Klavuhn, Mrs. Klingbail, Mrs. Goodyear, Mrs. Thomas Mears and Miss Mary Bell.

Students Present Program

The sixth grade pupils of Mrs. Rosemarie Ambrose at Columbia Street School presented a program in the auditorium Thursday. A number of parents attended. Other guests were the students of William Pugh's room, Thomas Furlow's room and Mrs. Beverly Wiley's room.

Opening with the usual flag salute, the children sang "America the Beautiful," followed by two-part songs, "Hello," "Autumn Dreams," "Harvest Dance," and "Shucking of the Corn."

There also was a specialty number, "Happy Harmony" in which Susan Ransom and Allan Seward played the violin while the group sang.

A play, "The King's Pie," was presented, and novelty pies which the children made were used in a parade before the king and queen.

Society Holds Annual Dinner

The Woman's Society of Christian Service of Calvary Methodist Church, Ridgeley, held its annual Christmas dinner in the church social room. Mrs. Blaine Poling was toastmistress. The invocation was given by Rev. Ben F. Hartley.

A Christmas program was presented, following the dinner, and a brief business session was held.

Sport Club Will Observe Yuletide

The Woman's Sport Club will hold its annual Christmas party December 12. It will be at the Cumberland Country Club, beginning at 6:30 p. m.

Jingle gifts will be exchanged and members are reminded to bring food for a needy family, sponsored by the club.

Mrs. Bessie Hanks is chairman of arrangements, She is being assisted by Miss Wanda Lee Hanks, Mrs. Virginia Matt, Mrs. Lucille Durrett and Mrs. Sarah Kelley.

Program Given

A program of music for Thanksgiving was presented and plans for Christmas were made at the meeting of the Wiley Ford Junior Music Club. Following a meeting December 23 at 5 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Leon Schraum, members will go caroling.

The vocal and piano program was given by Carol Kline, Donna Kline, Sue Ann Brakeall, Donald Layton, and singing by the group.

Grove 11 To Be Busy Next Week

Supreme Forest Woodman's Circle, Queen City Grove II will sponsor three activities next week. They will begin with a candy and bake sale December 9 at 1 p. m. at the WOW hall, 144 Union Street. Proceeds are to provide a Christmas basket for a needy family.

December 11 the Woodman Circle Shuffleboard team will entertain the Peck's Shuffleboard team of Frostburg for a Christmas party. It will be at the Woodman Circle board, Bowman's Addition fire hall, following play at 8:30.

December 14, the grove will hold its Christmas dinner and jingle party. It will be at Cas Taylor's Dugout, beginning at 6:30. The social activities committee will present the program.

French Succession Should Be Settled

It will be interesting to see if the United States Presidential tragedy will inspire France to revise its own system of Presidential succession.

President de Gaulle, for all his concern about strengthening the French Presidency—and his own power — has never shown much enthusiasm for taking steps to insure an orderly and efficient transfer of power should he die in office. Apparently he intends to run for another seven-year term in 1965.

But perhaps the shock of President Kennedy's death—the sobering experience of marching behind the casket of a young man almost everyone expected to outlive him—may cause de Gaulle to look anew at the problem of French succession.

As it now stands, should de Gaulle die in office, the Presidency would be assumed temporarily by the President of the Senate, who then would order new Presidential elections 20 to 50 days after the vacancy occurs. Interestingly, the present President of the Senate, Gaston Monnerville, is a bitter political opponent of de Gaulle.

Many French political leaders and observers are worried because they do not believe the present arrangement allows for the quick and effective transfer of power necessary to deal with today's complex problems.

America's orderly transition may do more than anything to move the French to action on their own problem.

These Days

By John Chamberlain

Best Bet For Unity

Before the death of John F. Kennedy, anti-Castro Cubans who were dissatisfied with being kept on a short leash were making rather extensive plans to form a "Cubans for Goldwater" group. The plans even extended from Florida to New York City, where it was hoped that many Puerto Ricans might be enlisted in a move designed to bring pressure for prompt action against Fidel Castro.

Now, of course, the plans are in disarray, or at least in abeyance. The anti-Castro Cubans are waiting for President Lyndon Johnson to indicate his own particular approach to the Cuban question.

In all of the punditing about what Johnson may be expected to do, hardly anything has been said about Cuba. Liberal and labor commentators have taken great heart from the fact that the new President, as early as the first Sunday after the Dallas nightmare, was putting through telephone calls to Walter Reuther, David Dubinsky, George Meany and other key Northern labor leaders. He was also on the phone with James Farmer, director of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE), and Whitney Young, the executive director of the Urban League.

To balance this, Johnson has had phone conversations with Robert Anderson, who served in Eisenhower's Cabinet, and with Dave Sarnoff, the conservative symbol of power in the broadcasting world.

So Johnson, as the shrewd political tactician that he is, has been laying his lines to get the broadest possible consensus behind him. But, as these words are being written, he has been slow to tip his hand on Cuba, save, perhaps, for the U.S. offer to help patrol the Caribbean to prevent Castroite arms from being smuggled into Venezuela.

An enigmatic response to the Cuban question, one submits, could be the weak chink in Johnson's very formidable armor if he fails to do something positive about it. For the Cuban business is festering in the American psyche, particularly in states like Florida and Texas, which Johnson will need in 1964. Cuban refugees don't vote in the U.S., but a "Cubans for Goldwater" movement could soon leap the traces to become a "Goldwaterites for the Cubans" campaign, and this would multiply into many votes.

The Cuban question will continue to fester, not because Fidel Castro is any particular menace to the U.S. or to the western hemisphere as long as he limits his ranting and blustering to his own island, but because he can't keep his hands off other Latin American lands. Castroite terrorism will remain a terrible threat in such places as Venezuela, British Guiana, the Dominican Republic and Guatemala as long as Fidel is the power in Cuba itself.

This particular fact represents President Johnson's greatest danger—and also his greatest opportunity. There is endless rumination now going on in all important domestic power groups about what Johnson must do to win the election in 1964. The Northern "liberals" say he must go further to the left than John F. Kennedy in order to "prove himself." The conservatives say that he must solve the balance of payments problem, let money rates rise, give a jolt to the export trade, and so forth and so on, if he is to get necessary financial support for his campaigning. The Southerners say he must seek a compromise on the civil rights issue as it affects the property rights of boarding house keepers, small shop owners, and small business men, if he is to hold the Southern states in line.

When all the claims are added up, it is easy to foresee considerable divisiveness arising from the struggle of various groups that would like to claim Lyndon Johnson for their own particular President. Johnson has called for "unity," but the only long-term "unity" in American domestic politics rests in the wide common agreement that ballots are infinitely to be preferred over bullets as a means of composing differences.

However, there is one issue which, if it could be settled by November 1964 would carry Lyndon Johnson back to the White House in overwhelming triumph. If he could only find the means to topple Fidel Castro and return Cuba to its democratic patriots, I would be willing to bet almost anything that he could carry forty out of fifty U.S. states and get more than 60 per cent of the total vote.

Johnson's Takeover Of Government Has Been Swift, Smooth, Skillful

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Six times I have watched the government of the United States change from one President to another, but never have I seen it done so efficiently as the current takeover by Lyndon Johnson.

A change of Presidents used to be a deliberate, cumbersome process. When Herbert Hoover took over from Calvin Coolidge in 1928-29, both were Republicans and Hoover had been serving in Coolidge's Cabinet. Even so the change was unwieldy and accompanied by a certain amount of friction.

The next takeover I witnessed was that of Franklin Roosevelt from Hoover in 1932-33, and during the four-month hiatus between the November election and the March Inauguration the economy of the nation almost came to a standstill.

The change from Roosevelt to Truman was caused by sudden death, and was reasonably efficient, though there were serious jolts to foreign policy.

When Eisenhower took over from Harry Truman and twenty years of Democratic rule, there were plenty of jolts but the country had two and a half months to absorb them. And Ike had that same period to pick his personnel. So did President Kennedy when he took over from Eisenhower in 1960.

Record Of Two Weeks

President Johnson has now been in office two weeks. From the first hour after the tragedy of Dallas he has had to make immediate decisions, some involving delicate personal problems, some involving the fate of the nation.

His first decision, immediately after the assassination, was to order the Secret Service to keep the Presidential plane in the Dallas airport on the ground to wait for Jackie Kennedy and the President's body. The Secret Service, harassed and worried over the plot against the President, had insisted on getting the plane off the ground and back to Washington without the body and widow of the dead President. Johnson refused.

His next decision was to ask the Kennedy Cabinet and staff to remain on. Some of them were very close to Kennedy, and two had actually resigned but reconsidered after the new President urged them to stay.

His meeting with Congressional leaders which came next was held in an atmosphere of nostalgic sadness. When the new President asked for their support, Charlie Halleck of Indiana, the House Republican leader, was the first to speak up.

"Mr. President, Lyndon," he said, "the responsibility falls upon all of us regardless of party. You and I have been friends for years. Speaking for myself, you will have my fullest cooperation."

Everett Dirksen, the Senate Republican leader, echoed the same sentiments.

The night of the funeral and the next day, Johnson faced the responsibility of conferring with the top leaders of both the West and the East, ranging from President de Gaulle of France to Deputy Premier Mikoyan of Russia. He had known both before. It so happened that when Mikoyan was here in 1959, Lyndon had asked Sen. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, to give a luncheon in honor of Mikoyan. This made it easier to confer with the Russian leader after the funeral, and Mikoyan later reported to Moscow that Johnson would carry on Kennedy's policy of coexistence.

Johnson has moved with lightning speed during these first two weeks in the White House. On November 17, 1958, he had made a speech at the UN, urging joint U.S.-Soviet cooperation in outer space. So last week he got on the phone to Adlai Stevenson, suggested another speech nudging the Russians about cooperation in reaching the moon. Adlai delivered it.

In search of economy, Johnson phoned Joe Campbell, the Comptroller General, a Republican whom Eisenhower brought down from Columbia University and who reports to Congress, not to the White House.

"You're supposed to be the instrument of Congress," the new President told him. "But I want you to help the Executive too. I want you to help me find every penny we can save wherever it may be."

A great telephoner, Lyndon made the same appeals to Rep. Bill Dawson, whom he located in Chicago, and to Sen. John McClellan of Arkansas. Both head watchdog committees of Congress.

"You've had 200 officers standing by watching to see whether the President is going to take a trip," he told Secretary of Defense McNamara. "Two ought to be enough."

From McNamara, Johnson got the most budget-pruning cooperation of all. The Secretary of Defense came up with a cut of $1.5 billion.

Still using the telephone, Johnson located Sen. Dick Russell down in Winder, Ga., asked him to serve on a bipartisan committee to probe the assassination. Russell was reluctant. But the two are old friends. It was Russell who nominated Lyndon to be Senate leader. He finally agreed not to let his old friend down.

Then the President located Rep. Jerry Ford, Republican, up in Grand Rapids, Mich., asked him to serve too.

So operated the restless, relentless man upon whose shoulders tragedy suddenly put the awesome burden of the Presidency. Few men have been so well equipped. No man in my memory has taken over with such skill.

Political Equation For The President To Solve

By Joseph Alsop

WASHINGTON

Whatever else happens, politics goes on as usual. In the last days leading politicians of both parties have therefore been hard at work, taking soundings all over the country, in order to chart the outlines of the new American political situation.

The results of these soundings are interesting in themselves, even though they contain no great surprises. And they are certainly worth summarizing at this time, since they usefully define the radically changed political equation which President Johnson must try to solve.

To begin with the least unexpected but most important result, President Johnson still has the same grave handicap that doomed his bid for the Presidential nomination in 1960. As all political buffs will recall, this was his apparent lack of any popular following in the big industrial states.

Thus in Pennsylvania, for instance, the then Governor, David Lawrence, was Johnson's warm friend and admirer. Other things being equal, Lawrence would certainly have preferred to throw the Pennsylvania delegation to Johnson.

In part, Lawrence was blocked from doing so because too many of the local Pennsylvania Democratic leaders were convinced that the voters in their districts preferred John F. Kennedy. But Lawrence also ended by choosing Kennedy from conviction, because he too was somewhat reluctantly forced to agree that Kennedy could carry Pennsylvania, whereas Johnson probably could not do so.

The recent soundings show that this old pattern has not been radically altered by President Kennedy's years in the White House. President Johnson is still thought about, first of all, as a Texan and a Southerner. Mainly for that reason he still arouses little enthusiasm in the big industrial states.

This difficulty is gravest for Johnson in the Northeastern bloc of states, which he would probably lose, as of now, to any Republican candidate but Sen. Barry Goldwater. But in the big Midwestern states like Illinois, and even in the Far West, in California, Johnson has dangerously little support among the very voting groups that are most important to any Democratic Presidential candidate.

If he is to carry Illinois, for example, he will unquestionably have to come out of Cook County with a really big majority. That is the only way a Democrat can carry Illinois. But as of today, the Chicago organization of Mayor Richard Daley would certainly be hard put to muster the needed Cook County majority for Johnson.

To be sure, the new President has an important asset to balance against his basic difficulty. Whereas President Kennedy was in deep trouble in the traditionally Democratic South, President Johnson would probably carry all the Southern states as of now, even against Sen. Goldwater.

A great many Southern voters are in fact responding to the fact that Johnson will be the first Southern Presidential candidate since the Civil War, in just the same way that a good many Catholic voters responded to the fact that John F. Kennedy was the first Catholic candidate.

It remains to be seen, however, whether this initial Southern response will survive the inevitable bitterness of the coming battle over the civil rights bill. Meanwhile, President Johnson's extremely vigorous preparations for that battle not only reveal a strong, previously proven belief in equal rights for all Americans. They also reveal his own reading of the political equation.

Formidably sensitive political antennae are part of the equipment of this formidable man. He has not had to wait for soundings by the local Democratic chieftains in order to sense the areas where he will have to work hardest for the support needed for re-election.

Thus he has gone all out to assure his Administration's continuity with the Kennedy administration. He has done this not only because he believes deeply in President Kennedy's approach to national problems, but also because he considers this continuity is absolutely essential to win over the big industrial states. Here, as in the case of the civil rights bill, his convictions and his reading of his interests exactly coincide.

With less than a year to go before Election Day, President Johnson has no time to waste. His task will be made harder, too, by the widespread predictions that he will be able to work all sorts of miracles with a do-nothing, sordidly complacent Congress. As President, Johnson is no better placed than Kennedy to produce Congressional miracles; and it is unfair to the new President to set a false standard by arousing false expectations.

But the new President will also be aided in his task by the dreadful Republican disarray that the hot-eyed Goldwater enthusiasts can be counted on to cause. And precisely because he is a formidable man, the new political equation is certainly not beyond his power to solve to his advantage.

BIG BUSINESS—Each day of the Republican National Convention next summer at San Francisco will return more than $1 millon to the city in the form of cash expenses by the conventioneers and others. If the convention draws 30,000 out-of-towners for five days, the visitors will spend more than $5 million, according to the experts who estimate the average daily expenditure at $40.

This is to say nothing of investments in large entertainments by political leaders, money spent by the communications industry and others. When it is considered that new money brought into San Francisco by visitors turns over from 10 to 20 times, it is apparent, say city fathers, that a sum of $5 million has the economic impact of anywhere from $50 to $100 million.

There's a good possibility that next July's convention turnout will exceed the estimated 40,000 who came to San Francisco for the GOP's 1956 convention. Of this number only 2,600 were delegates and alternates. But about 12,500 hotel rooms were used during the three-day August 1956 convention. More rooms than this will be available next July within a shorter commuting distance than 1956's available rooms.

More than 4,000 newsmen will be housed here to cover every aspect of the 1964 convention. All of them won't be in the Cow Palace itself, of course. In 1956, for instance, there were only 952 working press seats and tables on the arena floor surrounding the speaker's podium.

The 1964 convention promises to be as thoroughly "covered" by all news media as the San Francisco convention of 1956, which was staffed by 25 U. S. press associations and services, plus 354 U. S. newspapers. It was also tabulated that 24 foreign countries with 67 newspapers were represented.

Wet Little Island

By John Crosby

LONDON

England has issued its first long-range weather forecast: "Cold spells . . . likely to be severe with freezing fog." Now just remember, fellows, that's English weather. For the last lousy year, the weather has been awful and it's been "American" weather.

"The United States Weather Bureau Long-Range Weather Forecasting Service predicts 30 days of rain all over Northern Europe." That would hit all the front pages in Europe. Then it would happen just like the man said.

If there's anything worse than predicting bad news, it's being right about it. From the Hebrides to southern Italy, people would cuss out those lousy Americans for bringing all that moisture. I tried to start a movement to cuss out the forces of nature. It didn't take. People didn't really think it was nature's fault. It was the fault of the United States Weather Bureau, obviously. What nature brought was good weather. But there wasn't any of that. The United States Weather Bureau brought all bad weather. This is clearly etched in everyone's mind.

Now at least, the United States will share the blame with the English. I wouldn't put it past perfidious Albion to guess wrong about the weather. All those freezing fogs won't show up. Instead there'll be unbroken sunshine. Everyone will go around saying, "Aah, the English! Muddling through again!" They won't admire them, but they'll love them. Us, they admire, and they hate us.

You must understand that English weather is generally pretty awful and weather reporting here is the great art of putting the best face on a bad situation. You assume the worst in weather forecasting here, so all surprises are agreeable ones.

This brings a remarkably cheerful prose style to generally dismal news. "Scotland will be mainly cloudy with a few sporadic outbreaks of sunshine." An "outbreak of sunshine." Only the English would put it quite like that. You can be fairly sure it was quickly suppressed.

"Much of Scotland may be dry today," the man says cheerfully on the radio. This is a man biting a dog. Scotland's remaining dry — much of it anyway. That leaves quite as much to get wet as usual, but the wonder is that all of it isn't wet.

The amount of cheer the English can extract from small favors is miraculous. They underplay beautifully. "Golfers may find the wind a bit awkward," a weather girl said cheerfully. There was a small typhoon raging outside that would blow a golfer clear into the rough. Awkward. "With the wind howling around your chimney pots, it's no use telling you it'll be windy today," said another weather man with great cheerfulness.

"There will be a lot of cloud about, but in most places it will be thin, enough to show you at least where the sun is." You can't see the sun, but you know there is one and that's something. Count your blessings.

I don't know how this cheerfulness in the face of adversity can be extended into long-range forecasts, but I'm sure they'll try. "Rain through July and August but there'll be bright intervals in 1965." "Winds could ease down a little in late 1980."

Actually the British are very nervous about this long-range weather forecasting. What will it do to English conversation? "Can English conversation be expected to survive without its staple topic?" asks the Daily Mail gloomily. "Will stranger ever speak unto stranger again?" Probably not. But then there's been too much of this indiscriminate talking among strangers, anyhow.

There's another aspect. Weather, it is said, has done much toward molding the national character. That stiff upper lip you hear so much about. Couldn't develop a stiff upper lip if the sun shone all the time. It doesn't shine at all, but the English, up to now, have always had the possibility that it might shine tomorrow.

"To be told categorically that there is to be no let-up or bright interval for a month ahead might quite possibly crack even the strongest spirit — if we believed the forecast," said the Daily Mail. "Fortunately there is very little danger that we shall."

Fractured Hip Remains A Hazard Of Old Age

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Fractured hip is one of the most serious accidents encountered by elderly persons. It is a shocking ordeal but not as serious as it was a few generations ago. Improvements in technic have reduced the period of disability and lessened complications. With modern treatment, there is an 85 per cent chance of a good bony union.

When an older person falls, and complains of the hip, don't try to lift him to his feet, as there is always a possibility of a fracture. Instead, call a physician for emergency care; he will immobilize the part to prevent movement of the fractured ends.

The hip is a ball-and-socket joint. The upper part of the thigh bone (neck of femur) is the ball portion; it is shaped like the knob end of a cane. The break occurs usually in this vicinity and the separation robs the rounded end of its blood supply. This in turn interferes with healing and explains why the fracture must be set as soon as possible.

Some broken hips heal spontaneously via bed rest; others can be set by manipulation and the application of a large cast. But the majority respond faster when the surgeon turns carpenter and utilizes nails, pins, screws, bones, or wires to join the severed parts. The hardware allows more activity, including early trips out of bed. This adds to the comfort and health of the victim.

Fractures of the hip are most common after age 50 and among women. Prevention begins in the home with the removal of all obstacles and other booby traps. Slippery floors and loose scatter rugs are among the main offenders. Small rugs should be secured to the floor, treated with a nonskid backing, or eliminated. Railings will prove support on going up and down stairs. The steps must be kept clear of objects such as balls, skates, baskets, and the vacuum cleaner.

Adequate hall lighting is a good precaution and there ought to be an electric switch near the bed so grandpa need not grope in the dark on getting up at night. Icy sidewalks and streets, along with high curbs, must be avoided for those who are not agile or whose bones have become weakened. These factors encourage fractures after a moderate or slight injury.

Try And Stop Me

Former President Herbert Hoover regales fishing companions with the story of an angler who loved to boast of his phenomenal catches to increasingly skeptical acquaintances. Enraged by their thinly veiled insinuations that he was a liar, he bought a pair of scales, installed them in his library and made his friends watch while he actually weighed the fish he nad caught.

One evening a neighbor burst in and excitedly sought permission to borrow the scale. He was back in ten minutes, his cheeks flushed with delight. "Congratulate me," he cried. "I'm the father of a forty-eight pound baby boy!"

A hen observed the undisciplined behavior of her youngest chick with obvious disapproval. "If your father could see you now," she cackled disgustedly, "he'd turn over in his gravy."

French Succession Should Be Settled

It will be interesting to see if the United States Presidential tragedy will inspire France to revise its own system of Presidential succession.

President de Gaulle, for all his concern about strengthening the French Presidency—and his own power — has never shown much enthusiasm for taking steps to insure an orderly and efficient transfer of power should he die in office. Apparently he intends to run for another seven-year term in 1965.

But perhaps the shock of President Kennedy's death—the sobering experience of marching behind the casket of a young man almost everyone expected to outlive him—may cause de Gaulle to look anew at the problem of French succession.

As it now stands, should de Gaulle die in office, the Presidency would be assumed temporarily by the President of the Senate, who then would order new Presidential elections 20 to 50 days after the vacancy occurs. Interestingly, the present President of the Senate, Gaston Monnerville, is a bitter political opponent of de Gaulle.

Many French political leaders and observers are worried because they do not believe the present arrangement allows for the quick and effective transfer of power necessary to deal with today's complex problems.

America's orderly transition may do more than anything to move the French to action on their own problem.

These Days

Best Bet For Unity

Before the death of John F. Kennedy, anti-Castro Cubans who were dissatisfied with being kept on a short leash were making rather extensive plans to form a "Cubans for Goldwater" group. The plans even extended from Florida to New York City, where it was hoped that many Puerto Ricans might be enlisted in a move designed to bring pressure for prompt action against Fidel Castro.

Now, of course, the plans are in disarray, or at least in abeyance. The anti-Castro Cubans are waiting for President Lyndon Johnson to indicate his own particular approach to the Cuban question.

In all of the punditing about what Johnson may be expected to do, hardly anything has been said about Cuba. Liberal and labor commentators have taken great heart from the fact that the new President, as early as the first Sunday after the Dallas nightmare, was putting through telephone calls to Walter Reuther, David Dubinsky, George Meany and other key Northern labor leaders. He was also on the phone with James Farmer, director of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE), and Whitney Young, the executive director of the Urban League.

To balance this, Johnson has had phone conversations with Robert Anderson, who served in Eisenhower's Cabinet, and with Dave Sarnoff, the conservative symbol of power in the broadcasting world.

So Johnson, as the shrewd political tactician that he is, has been laying his lines to get the broadest possible consensus behind him. But, as these words are being written, he has been slow to tip his hand on Cuba, save, perhaps, for the U.S. offer to help patrol the Caribbean to prevent Castroite arms from being smuggled into Venezuela.

An enigmatic response to the Cuban question, one submits, could be the weak chink in Johnson's very formidable armor if he fails to do something positive about it. For the Cuban business is festering in the American psyche, particularly in states like Florida and Texas, which Johnson will need in 1964. Cuban refugees don't vote in the U.S., but a "Cubans for Goldwater" movement could soon leap the traces to become a "Goldwaterites for the Cubans" campaign, and this would multiply into many votes.

The Cuban question will continue to fester, not because Fidel Castro is any particular menace to the U.S. or to the western hemisphere as long as he limits his ranting and blustering to his own island, but because he can't keep his hands off other Latin American lands. Castroite terrorism will remain a terrible threat in such places as Venezuela, British Guiana, the Dominican Republic and Guatemala as long as Fidel is the power in Cuba itself.

This particular fact represents President Johnson's greatest danger—and also his greatest opportunity. There is endless rumination now going on in all important domestic power groups about what Johnson must do to win the election in 1964. If he could only find the means to topple Fidel Castro and return Cuba to its democratic patriots, I would be willing to bet almost anything that he could carry forty out of fifty U.S. states and get more than 60 per cent of the total vote.

Of this number only 2,600 were delegates and alternates. But about 12,500 hotel rooms were used during the three-day August 1956 convention. More rooms than this will be available next July within a shorter commuting distance than 1956's available rooms.

More than 4,000 newsmen will be housed here to cover every aspect of the 1964 convention. All of them won't be in the Cow Palace itself, of course. In 1956, for instance, there were only 952 working press seats and tables on the arena floor surrounding the speaker's podium.

The 1964 convention promises to be as thoroughly "covered" by all news media as the San Francisco convention of 1956, which was staffed by 25 U. S. press associations and services, plus 354 U. S. newspapers. It was also tabulated that 24 foreign countries with 67 newspapers were represented.

Johnson's Takeover Of Government Has Been Swift, Smooth, Skillful

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Six times I have watched the government of the United States change from one President to another, but never have I seen it done so efficiently as the current takeover by Lyndon Johnson.

A change of Presidents used to be a deliberate, cumbersome process. When Herbert Hoover took over from Calvin Coolidge in 1928-29, both were Republicans and Hoover had been serving in Coolidge's Cabinet. Even so the change was unwieldy and accompanied by a certain amount of friction.

The next takeover I witnessed was that of Franklin Roosevelt from Hoover in 1932-33, and during the four-month hiatus between the November election and the March Inauguration the economy of the nation almost came to a standstill.

The change from Roosevelt to Truman was caused by sudden death, and was reasonably efficient, though there were serious jolts to foreign policy.

When Eisenhower took over from Harry Truman and twenty years of Democratic rule, there were plenty of jolts but the country had two and a half months to absorb them. And Ike had that same period to pick his personnel. So did President Kennedy when he took over from Eisenhower in 1960.

Record Of Two Weeks

President Johnson has now been in office two weeks. From the first hour after the tragedy of Dallas he has had to make immediate decisions, some involving delicate personal problems, some involving the fate of the nation.

His first decision, immediately after the assassination, was to order the Secret Service to keep the Presidential plane in the Dallas airport on the ground to wait for Jackie Kennedy and the President's body. The Secret Service, harassed and worried over the plot against the President, had insisted on getting the plane off the ground and back to Washington without the body and widow of the dead President. Johnson refused.

His next decision was to ask the Kennedy Cabinet and staff to remain on. Some of them were very close to Kennedy, and two had actually resigned but reconsidered after the new President urged them to stay.

His meeting with Congressional leaders which came next was held in an atmosphere of nostalgic sadness. When the new President asked for their support, Charlie Halleck of Indiana, the House Republican leader, was the first to speak up.

"Mr. President, Lyndon," he said, "the responsibility falls upon all of us regardless of party. You and I have been friends for years. Speaking for myself, you will have my fullest cooperation."

Everett Dirksen, the Senate Republican leader, echoed the same sentiments.

The night of the funeral and the next day, Johnson faced the responsibility of conferring with the top leaders of both the West and the East, ranging from President de Gaulle of France to Deputy Premier Mikoyan of Russia. He had known both before. It so happened that when Mikoyan was here in 1959, Lyndon had asked Sen. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, to give a luncheon in honor of Mikoyan. This made it easier to confer with the Russian leader after the funeral, and Mikoyan later reported to Moscow that Johnson would carry on Kennedy's policy of coexistence.

Johnson has moved with lightning speed during these first two weeks in the White House. On November 17, 1958, he had made a speech at the UN, urging joint U.S.-Soviet cooperation in outer space. So last week he got on the phone to Adlai Stevenson, suggested another speech nudging the Russians about cooperation in reaching the moon. Adlai delivered it.

In search of economy, Johnson phoned Joe Campbell, the Comptroller General, a Republican whom Eisenhower brought down from Columbia University and who reports to Congress, not to the White House.

"You're supposed to be the instrument of Congress," the new President told him. "But I want you to help the Executive too. I want you to help me find every penny we can save wherever it may be."

A great telephoner, Lyndon made the same appeals to Rep. Bill Dawson, whom he located in Chicago, and to Sen. John McClellan of Arkansas. Both head watchdog committees of Congress.

"You've had 200 officers standing by watching to see whether the President is going to take a trip," he told Secretary of Defense McNamara. "Two ought to be enough."

From McNamara, Johnson got the most budget-pruning cooperation of all. The Secretary of Defense came up with a cut of $1.5 billion.

Still using the telephone, Johnson located Sen. Dick Russell down in Winder, Ga., asked him to serve on a bipartisan committee to probe the assassination. Russell was reluctant. But the two are old friends. It was Russell who nominated Lyndon to be Senate leader. He finally agreed not to let his old friend down.

Then the President located Rep. Jerry Ford, Republican, up in Grand Rapids, Mich., asked him to serve too.

So operated the restless, relentless man upon whose shoulders tragedy suddenly put the awesome burden of the Presidency. Few men have been so well equipped. No man in my memory has taken over with such skill.

Wet Little Island

By John Crosby

LONDON

England has issued its first long-range weather forecast: "Cold spells . . . likely to be severe with freezing fog." Now just remember, fellows, that's English weather. For the last lousy year, the weather has been awful and it's been "American" weather.

"The United States Weather Bureau Long-Range Weather Forecasting Service predicts 30 days of rain all over Northern Europe." That would hit all the front pages in Europe. Then it would happen just like the man said.

If there's anything worse than predicting bad news, it's being right about it. From the Hebrides to southern Italy, people would cuss out those lousy Americans for bringing all that moisture. I tried to start a movement to cuss out the forces of nature. It didn't take. People didn't really think it was nature's fault. It was the fault of the United States Weather Bureau, obviously. What nature brought was good weather. But there wasn't any of that. The United States Weather Bureau brought all bad weather. This is clearly etched in everyone's mind.

Now at least, the United States will share the blame with the English. I wouldn't put it past perfidious Albion to guess wrong about the weather. All those freezing fogs won't show up. Instead there'll be unbroken sunshine. Everyone will go around saying, "Aah, the English! Muddling through again!" They won't admire them, but they'll love them. Us, they admire, and they hate us.

You must understand that English weather is generally pretty awful and weather reporting here is the great art of putting the best face on a bad situation. You assume the worst in weather forecasting here, so all surprises are agreeable ones.

This brings a remarkably cheerful prose style to generally dismal news. "Scotland will be mainly cloudy with a few sporadic outbreaks of sunshine." An "outbreak of sunshine." Only the English would put it quite like that. You can be fairly sure it was quickly suppressed.

"Much of Scotland may be dry today," the man says cheerfully on the radio. This is a man biting a dog, Scotland's remaining dry — much of it anyway. That leaves quite as much to get wet as usual, but the wonder is that all of it isn't wet.

The amount of cheer the English can extract from small favors is miraculous. They underplay beautifully. "Golfers may find the wind a bit awkward," a weather girl said cheerfully. There was a small typhoon raging outside that would blow a golfer clear into the rough. Awkward. "With the wind howling around your chimney pots, it's no use telling you it'll be windy today," said another weather man with great cheerfulness.

"There will be a lot of cloud about, but in most places it will be thin, enough to show you at least where the sun is." You can't see the sun, but you know there is one and that's something. Count your blessings.

I don't know how this cheerfulness in the face of adversity can be extended into long-range forecasts, but I'm sure they'll try. "Rain through July and August but there'll be bright intervals in 1965." "Winds could ease down a little in late 1980."

Actually the British are very nervous about this long-range weather forecasting. What will it do to English conversation? "Can English conversation be expected to survive without its staple topic?" asks the Daily Mail gloomily. "Will stranger ever speak unto stranger again?" Probably not. But then there's been too much of this indiscriminate talking among strangers, anyhow.

There's another aspect. Weather, it is said, has done much toward molding the national character. That stiff upper lip you hear so much about. Couldn't develop a stiff upper lip if the sun shone all the time. It doesn't shine at all, but the English, up to now, have always had the possibility that it might shine tomorrow.

"To be told categorically that there is to be no let-up or bright interval for a month ahead might quite possibly crack even the strongest spirit — if we believed the forecast," said the Daily Mail. "Fortunately there is very little danger that we shall."

Fractured Hip Remains A Hazard Of Old Age

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Fractured hip is one of the most serious accidents encountered by elderly persons. It is a shocking ordeal but not as serious as it was a few generations ago. Improvements in technic have reduced the period of disability and lessened complications. With modern treatment, there is an 85 per cent chance of a good bony union.

When an older person falls, and complains of the hip, don't try to lift him to his feet, as there is always a possibility of a fracture. Instead, call a physician for emergency care; he will immobilize the part to prevent movement of the fractured ends.

The hip is a ball-and-socket joint. The upper part of the thigh bone (neck of femur) is the ball portion; it is shaped like the knob end of a cane. The break occurs usually in this vicinity and the separation robs the rounded end of its blood supply. This in turn interferes with healing and explains why the fracture must be set as soon as possible.

Some broken hips heal spontaneously via bed rest; others can be set by manipulation and the application of a large cast. But the majority respond faster when the surgeon turns carpenter and utilizes nails, pins, screws, bones, or wires to join the severed parts. The hardware allows more activity, including early trips out of bed. This adds to the comfort and health of the victim.

Fractures of the hip are most common after age 50 and among women. Prevention begins in the home with the removal of all obstacles and other booby traps. Slippery floors and loose scatter rugs are among the main offenders. Small rugs should be secured to the floor, treated with a nonskid backing, or eliminated. Railings will prove support on going up and down stairs. The steps must be kept clear of objects such as balls, skates, baskets, and the vacuum cleaner.

Adequate hall lighting is a good precaution and there ought to be an electric switch near the bed so grandpa need not grope in the dark on getting up at night. Icy sidewalks and streets, along with high curbs, must be avoided for those who are not agile or whose bones have become weakened. These factors encourage fractures after a moderate or slight injury.

'ANTISTROKE' PILL

O. C. writes: I have a friend who is taking a capsule of some kind. He says if he continues them, he won't get a stroke. Have you heard of such a product?

REPLY

No, but your friend may refer to a drug that lowers blood pressure, decreases the cholesterol level of the blood, or prevents blood clotting.

UNDETECTED DISEASE

C. K. writes: What is hidden diabetes?

REPLY

Some people have diabetes but don't know it because they feel fine and have no symptoms of the disease. This is one reason why an annual urinalysis is advisable.

BE KIND TO STOMACH

M. F. writes: How is hypertrophic gastritis treated?

REPLY

Like a peptic ulcer — with a bland diet, antacids, and drugs that reduce the activity of the stomach.

FLOATING FUNGUS

J. D. writes: How does a person get a fungus infection (aspergillis) in the ear?

REPLY

It floats into the ear via the air.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of diseases will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Former President Herbert Hoover regales fishing companions with the story of an angler who loved to boast of his phenomenal catches to increasingly skeptical acquaintances. Enraged by their thinly veiled insinuations that he was a liar, he bought a pair of scales, installed them in his library and made his friends watch while he actually weighed the fish he nad caught.

One evening a neighbor burst in and excitedly sought permission to borrow the scale. He was back in ten minutes, his cheeks flushed with delight. "Congratulate me," he cried. "I'm the father of a forty-eight pound baby boy!"

A hen observed the undisciplined behavior of her youngest chick with obvious disapproval. "If your father could see you now," she cackled disgustedly, "he'd turn over in his gravy."

You're Telling Me!

By William Ritt

At long last, the early colonists of Virginia, along with those of Massachusetts, have been given credit for thinking up the idea of Thanksgiving dinner. We wouldn't know who was first—but we're sure glad somebody had the idea.

The Eskimos are the most thinly scattered people on the face of the Earth—Factographs. And, no doubt the most heavily dressed.

Historians have figured out that during the last 3,500 years there have been ouly 230 years of peace. Those 230 years probably were just time outs while the world rested in order to think up new things to fight about.

Plan To Rename W.Va. For JFK Is Opposed

BECKLEY, W. Va. (UPI) — The Beckley Post - Herald said Friday its suggestion that the state be renamed Kennedy or Kennediana in honor of the late President had attracted letters from 16 states.

Editor Emile J. Hodel, who made the suggestion Nov. 29, said a majority of those heard from were former West Virginia residents now making their homes elsewhere."

"And a definite majority were against any change in the home state's present name," he said. "A few were unsigned and many were abusive, or worse."

Hodel said that aside from West Virginia, the greatest letter - writing interest came from California, with Florida running a close third. Three letters from Virginia approved the proposed name change, as did letter writers in California, Florida and Mississippi.

Some writers suggested other names, such as Kanawha, Mingo and Lincoln.

With the exception of single letters from Illinois, Ohio and Pennsylvania, all were written from southern or western states, Hodel said.

Sugar Grove Funds Approved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Navy Department's request for $3.8 million to move its radio receiving station from Cheltenham, Md., to Sugar Grove, Pendleton County, W. Va., has been approved by the Senate Appropriations Committee, Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W. Va., announced Friday.

Byrd also said the committee approved an $84,000 deficiency appropriation for the combined field-maintenance shop of the West Virginia National Guard at Pt. Pleasant.

The senator said the Navy would have seven officers and 98 enlisted men when the relocated station is in full operation. Byrd noted that the Navy also hoped to employ about 20 civilians at the Sugar Grove site.

The Navy proposed to move the station after the Defense Department abandoned construction of a multi-million dollar radio-telescope at Sugar Grove.

Byrd said construction of the Pt. Pleasant Guard shop had been delayed because on each of two occasions bids received for the building contract exceeded the previously authorized appropriation.

Tri-Towns UO Plans Christmas Activities

WESTERNPORT — Final plans for Christmas activities sponsored by the Tri-Towns United Organizations will be made Monday when officers and directors will meet at 8 p. m. in Union Hall, according to Wayne Ritchie, chairman.

Directors will attend to assist in planning the distribution of Christmas baskets to needy families of the Tri-Towns.

Mrs. Elizabeth Thomas, executive secretary, will be in the UO office daily from 9 a. m. until noon to receive applications for food baskets and toys. Members of the allocations committee will meet December 15 to review the applications for approval.

As in previous years, the United Organizations office will serve as a clearing agency for the distribution of Christmas baskets and local organizations who wish to contribute food, clothing or toys for a needy family may secure the names of qualified families from Mrs. Thomas.

'Big Gallon' Blood Donors

These five "big gallon" donors were among volunteer Red Cross blood donors in the Keyser area who were honored this week during the first annual "Gallon Club Dinner" held in the Calvary EUB Church under joint sponsorship of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, Kiwanis, Lions and Rotary clubs. Seated is Chief of Police Ralph Marsh who has given a total of five gallons of his blood. Standing, left to right, are Ward M. Haines Jr., Ida Robey, Thelma Hartman and Arnold Staggs who have given three gallons of blood each. Guest speaker at the dinner was Dr. Benedict Skitarelic, Cumberland pathologist, who was instrumental in bringing the Red Cross blood program to the Keyser area. He spoke on the importance of blood to modern medicine and surgery. Some 48 gallon club members attended the dinner.

Soloists Named For Kiwanis Yule Concert

KEYSER—Four soloists have been chosen for the annual community Christmas concert December 15 at 4 p. m. in the Keyser High School auditorium under sponsorship of the Kiwanis Club.

Leonard G. Withers, who will direct the cantata, "The Story of Christmas," by H. Alexander Mathews, said the soloists would be: Mrs. Phyllis Chapman, Mrs. Clara Kauffman, Mrs. Frances Hartman, and Richard Davis. Accompanists will be Mrs. Mary Evelyn Coffman and Mr. Davis at the pianos. Mrs. Coffman will also present the organ prelude and postlude.

Three members of the Kiwanis Club will also participate. Rev. Robert Cook will offer the invocation, Rev. Paul F. Iverson, the Scripture, and Rev. W. W. Harvey, the benediction.

The chorus of 80 voices will be comprised of members of the Potomac State Singers assisted by singers of the area. The program is open to the public.

Program Is Held By Ladies Aid

FROSTBURG — The Ladies Aid of Salem United Church of Christ held a program under the direction of Mrs. Elsie Kroll.

A piano selection was rendered by Mrs. Alice Uphold and Linda Harper and Martha Ann Spriggs played and sang a selection. Readings were given by Margaret Williams, Mary Carter and Elsie Kroll.

During the business session, a thank-you card from the United Family Service was read. Donations were made to the orphanage for Christmas and also to Eva Hartig, a missionary, a former member of the church.

Refreshments were served by Elsie Kroll, Alice Scoggan, Blodwyn Brode and Mrs. Elmer Martens.

Keyser Presbyterian Program Sunday

KEYSER—The annual joy gift program of Keyser Presbyterian Church will be held in Fellowship Hall of the church Sunday at 7:30 p. m. Mrs. Charles E. Miller is chairman of annuities and the relief program.

Music will be provided by the Children's Choir under the direction of Mrs. E. E. Church. Miss Kathy Carvey will lead the devotional service and Miss Carol Koon will sing "Lullabies to Little Jesus." A Christmas reading, "The Fourth Wise Man" will be given by Mrs. Fred Huffman. A feature of the program will be a film strip "Sing Along With Joy," narrated by Mrs. James Swadley Jr.

The joy gift offering will be received by Paul F. Iverson.

Church Planning Christmas Party

PIEDMONT—Piedmont Presbyterian Church will hold a Christmas party next Thursday, beginning with a fellowship supper at 6 p. m.

The program will include carol singing and a play by members of the Church School. Santa Claus will present gifts to children.

Annual Report Completed By Board Of Education

OAKLAND—The Garrett County Board of Education disbursed $1,794,203.34 during the fiscal year, July 1, 1962 to June 30, 1963, it was revealed in the annual report of receipts and expenditures.

This included a capital outlay of $14,198.80, but it did not take in school construction funds or payment of bonded indebtedness. A report on these funds is given separately.

Receipts from all sources, including a balance of $100,017.67 in various funds, amounted to $1,963,090.01.

Receipts from county sources totaled $503,523 which included $28,411 from under-payments on prior levies $222,750 from the 1962 levy, $$241,562 from the 1963 levy and $10,800 for capital outlay.

There was also some other revenue from local sources amounting to $4,258.51 which included earnings from temporary investments of $1,855.74, receipts from revolving funds or clearing accounts of $291, and miscellaneous revenue including prior year refunds of $2,111.77.

Revenue from state sources included $193,800 for aid per classroom unit, $194,788 for aid per pupil, $867,255.85 for euilization aid, $31,533.33 for partial payment of officials' salaries, $415 for physical examination of bus drivers, $1,600 for handicapped children, $1,094.50 for adult education and $4,265.10 for driver education for a total of $1,294,751.78.

The county also received $10,529.14 in federal funds including $3,973.15 for vocational day schools, $6,288.49 for national defense education act and $267.50 for vocational travel. The board received $1,963.86 from government-owned land.

In addition there was money from sale of real property and sale of equipment, etc., which totaled $2,728.73, $8,040 from school units in other states and $37,277.32 from incoming transfers. This included $28,866.44 for school lunches and milk, $5,176.67 for ARA training and $3,234.21 for Social Security.

Disbursements were separated as follows: Administration, $37,267.52; instruction, $1,180,312.91; pupil personnel services, $9,055.61; health services, $26.25; pupil transportation, $366,278.85; operation of plant and equipment, $97,011.48; maintenance of plant, $59,510.95; fixed charges, $18,001.46; food services, $10,407.49; student body activities, $1,495.02 and community services, $637.

Under instruction the figures were broken down for elementary, secondary and adult education as follows: $648,539.83 for elementary, $530,951.08 for secondary and $822 for adult education.

Capital outlay totaled $14,198.80 with $9,030.74 for elementary and $5,168.06 for secondary. The board also reported $5,808 paid to other school units within Maryland and $10,057.76 to school units in other states.

Also listed in the report was the status of the school debt. During the year the county paid $100,000 on long term bonds and $64,142.58 on the state loan for a total of $164,142.58. The balance outstanding as of June 30 is $875,000 on the county's long term bonds and $644,-585.91 on the state loan fund for a total of $1,519,585.91. This compares to the total of $1,683,728.49 at the beginning of the fiscal year July 1, 1962.

The value of school property was given at $5,857,000. This was broken down to $3,040,000 for elementary buildings and $207,000 in euipment for a total of $3,247,000. For high schools the figure was $2,450,000 for buildings and $160,000 in equipment for a total of $2,610,000. This gave the totals of $5,490,000 for all school buildings, and $367,000 for all equipment.

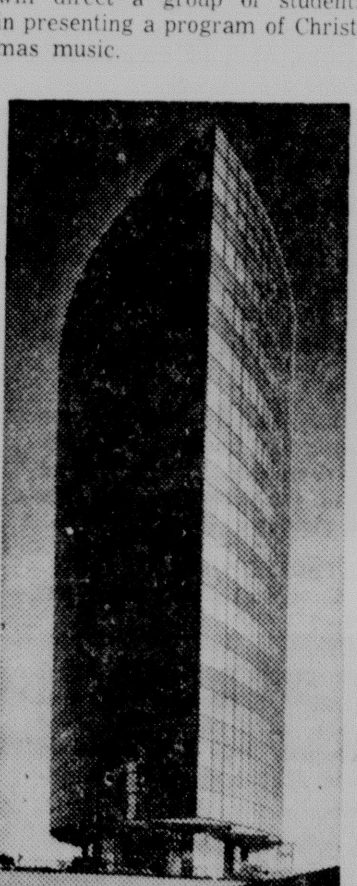
PTA Meeting Set

WESTERNPORT — The Bruce High School Parent-Teacher Association will meet in Room 220 Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. Miss Betty Jean Withrow, faculty member, will direct a group of students in presenting a program of Christmas music.



'THE SHIP'—Outlined against the Hartford, Conn., sky, the Phoenix Mutual 'home office building appears to float above the one-story quadrangle that forms the base for the tower. The building's unusual shape provides a number of advantages for its 600 employees. Called "the ship" by local residents, the structure gives everyone an outside view, has no prestige-laden corner offices, no "inside" offices and hardly any space for corridors.

'Ladies Night' Set By Frostburg Lions

FROSTBURG — The Frostburg Lions Club will entertain their ladies on Wednesday with a dinner at 6:30 p.m. in the Happy Hills Restaurant.

Entertainment after dinner will be provided by a group from Frostburg State College.

Lions are requested to bring a piece of used clothing which will be donated to the Meadow Mountain Boys Camp.

Meeting Planned

MT. SAVAGE — Pride of Mt. Savage Council No. 20 will meet December 13 at the Junior Order Hall. A jingle party will be held.

Two Brothers Die In Fire, Parents Critical

ROWLESBURG, W. Va. (UPI) —Two brothers died and their parents suffered burns Friday in a fire that destroyed their garage apartment on W. Va. 72 near here.

The cause of the fire could not be determined immediately.

The two victims were identified as Phillip Clark, 19, and his brother, Robert Lee Clark, 16. Their parents were described in critical condition at a hospital in nearby Kingwood.

Phillip, a student at Mountain State Business College in Clarksburg, was visiting his parents during the weekend. Robert Lee was a student at Rowlesburg High School.

Authorities said a neighbor, Delbert Bell, discovered the fire when he was awakened by a barking dog.

Bell said he called another neighbor and then climbed a ladder to break the rear window to rescue the parents, Ina and Mae Clark.

Bell said the fire and smoke had already engulfed the front area of the garage apartment where the boys were sleeping.

Five-Day Forecast

WEST VIRGINIA — Temperatures will average near a normal high and low range of 48-30 in the south and 43-23 in the north. Warmer Saturday, turning colder late Sunday and Monday, warmer Tuesday, rain Sunday and possibly late Tuesday or Wednesday, will average more than one inch.

Plan To Rename W.Va. For JFK Is Opposed

BECKLEY, W. Va. (UPI) — The Beckley Post - Herald said Friday its suggestion that the state be renamed Kennedy or Kennediana in honor of the late President had attracted letters from 16 states.

Editor Emile J. Hodel, who made the suggestion Nov. 29, said a majority of those heard from were former West Virginia residents now making their homes elsewhere."

"And a definite majority were against any change in the home state's present name," he said. "A few were unsigned and many were abusive, or worse."

Hodel said that aside from West Virginia, the greatest letter - writing interest came from California, with Florida running a close third. Three letters from Virginia approved the proposed name change, as did letter writers in California, Florida and Mississippi.

Some writers suggested other names, such as Kanawha, Mingo and Lincoln.

With the exception of single letters from Illinois, Ohio and Pennsylvania, all were written from southern or western states, Hodel said.

Sugar Grove Funds Approved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Navy Department's request for $3.8 million to move its radio receiving station from Cheltenham, Md., to Sugar Gr-ve, Pendleton County, W. Va., has been approved by the Senate Appropriations Committee, Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W. Va., announced Friday.

Byrd also said the committee approved an $84,000 deficiency appropriation for the combined field-maintenance shop of the West Virginia National Guard at Pt. Pleasant.

The senator said the Navy would have seven officers and 98 enlisted men when the relocated station is in full operation. Byrd noted that the Navy also hoped to employ about 20 civilians at the Sugar Grove site.

The Navy proposed to move the station after the Defense Department abandoned construction of a multi-million dollar radio-telescope at Sugar Grove.

Byrd said construction of the Pt. Pleasant Guard shop had been delayed because on each of two occasions bids received for the building contract exceeded the previously authorized appropriation.

Tri-Towns UO Plans Christmas Activities

WESTERNPORT — Final plans for Christmas activities sponsored by the Tri-Towns United Organizations will be made Monday when officers and directors will meet at 8 p. m. in Union Hall, according to Wayne Ritchie, chairman.

Directors will attend to assist in planning the distribution of Christmas baskets to needy families of the Tri-Towns.

Mrs. Elizabeth Thomas, executive secretary, will be in the UO office daily from 9 a. m. until noon to receive applications for food baskets and toys. Members of the allocations committee will meet December 15 to review the applications for approval.

As in previous years, the United Organizations office will serve as a clearing agency for the distribution of Christmas baskets and local organizations who wish to contribute food, clothing or toys for a needy family may secure the names of qualified families from Mrs. Thomas.

'Big Gallon' Blood Donors

These five "big gallon" donors were among volunteer Red Cross blood donors in the Keyser area who were honored this week during the first annual "Gallon Club Dinner" held in the Calvary EUB Church under joint sponsorship of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, Kiwanis, Lions and Rotary clubs. Seated is Chief of Police Ralph Marsh who has given a total of five gallons of his blood. Standing, left to right, are Ward M. Haines Jr., Ida Robey, Thelma Hartman and Arnold Staggs who have given three gallons of blood each. Guest speaker at the dinner was Dr. Benedict Skitarelic, Cumberland pathologist, who was instrumental in bringing the Red Cross blood program to the Keyser area. He spoke on the importance of blood to modern medicine and surgery. Some 48 gallon club members attended the dinner.

Soloists Named For Kiwanis Yule Concert

KEYSER—Four soloists have been chosen for the annual community Christmas concert December 15 at 4 p. m. in the Keyser High School auditorium under sponsorship of the Kiwanis Club.

Leonard G. Withers, who will direct the cantata, "The Story of Christmas," by H. Alexander Mathews, said the soloists would be: Mrs. Phyllis Chapman, Mrs. Clara Kauffman, Mrs. Frances Hartman, and Richard Davis. Accompanists will be Mrs. Mary Evelyn Coffman and Mr. Davis at the pianos. Mrs. Coffman will also present the organ prelude and postlude.

Three members of the Kiwanis Club will also participate. Rev. Robert Cook will offer the invocation, Rev. Paul F. Iverson, the Scripture, and Rev. W. W. Harvey, the benediction.

The chorus of 80 voices will be comprised of members of the Potomac State Singers assisted by singers of the area. The program is open to the public.

Program Is Held By Ladies Aid

FROSTBURG — The Ladies Aid of Salem United Church of Christ held a program under the direction of Mrs. Elsie Kroll.

A piano selection was rendered by Mrs. Alice Uphold and Linda Harper and Martha Ann Spriggs played and sang a selection. Readings were given by Margaret Williams, Mary Carter and Elsie Kroll.

During the business session, a thank-you card from the United Family Service was read. Donations were made to the orphanage for Christmas and also to Eva Hartig, a missionary, a former member of the church.

Refreshments were served by Elsie Kroll, Alice Scoggan, Blodwyn Brode and Mrs. Elmer Martens.

Annual Report Completed By Board Of Education

OAKLAND—The Garrett County Board of Education disbursed $1,794,203.34 during the fiscal year, July 1, 1962 to June 30, 1963, it was revealed in the annual report of receipts and expenditures.

This included a capital outlay of $14,198.80, but it did not take in school construction funds or payment of bonded indebtedness. A report on these funds is given separately.

Receipts from all sources, including a balance of $100,017.67 in various funds, amounted to $1,963,090.01.

Receipts from county sources totaled $503,523 which included $28,411 from under-payments on prior levies $222,750 from the 1962 levy, $$241,562 from the 1963 levy and $10,800 for capital outlay.

There was also some other revenue from local sources amounting to $4,258.51 which included earnings from temporary investments of $1,855.74, receipts from revolving funds or clearing accounts of $291, and miscellaneous revenue including prior year refunds of $2,111.77.

Revenue from state sources included $193,800 for aid per classroom unit, $194,788 for aid per pupil, $867,255.85 for euilization aid, $31,533.33 for partial payment of officials' salaries, $415 for physical examination of bus drivers, $1,600 for handicapped children, $1,094.50 for adult education and $4,265.10 for driver education for a total of $1,294,751.78.

The county also received $10,529.14 in federal funds including $3,973.15 for vocational day schools, $6,288.49 for national defense education act and $267.50 for vocational travel. The board received $1,963.86 from government-owned land.

In addition there was money from sale of real property and sale of equipment, etc., which totaled $2,728.73, $8,040 from school units in other states and $37,277.32 from incoming transfers. This included $28,866.44 for school lunches and milk, $5,176.67 for ARA training and $3,234.21 for Social Security.

Disbursements were separated as follows: Administration, $37,267.52; instruction, $1,180,312.91; pupil personnel services, $9,055.61; health services, $26.25; pupil transportation, $366,278.85; operation of plant and equipment, $97,011.48; maintenance of plant, $59-510.95; fixed charges, $18,001.46; food services, $10,407.49; student body activities, $1,495.02 and community services, $637.

Under instruction the figures were broken down for elementary, secondary and adult education as follows: $648,539.83 for elementary, $530,951.08 for secondary and $822 for adult education.

Capital outlay totaled $14,198.80 with $9,030.74 for elementary and $5,168.06 for secondary. The board also reported $5,808 paid to other school units within Maryland and $10,057.76 to school units in other states.

Also listed in the report was the status of the school debt. During the year the county paid $100,000 on long term bonds and $64,142.58 on the state loan for a total of $164,142.58. The balance outstanding as of June 30 is $875,000 on the county's long term bonds and $644,-585.91 on the state loan fund for a total of $1,519,585.91. This compares to the total of $1,683,728.49 at the beginning of the fiscal year July 1, 1962.

The value of school property was given at $5,857,000. This was broken down to $3,040,000 for elementary buildings and $207,000 in euipment for a total of $3,247,000. For high schools the figure was $2,450,000 for buildings and $160,000 in equipment for a total of $2,610,000. This gave the totals of $5,490,000 for all school buildings, and $367,000 for all equipment.

Bedford Fire Company Elects

BEDFORD — R. Carl Pencil was elected president and Fred W. Hoover was retained as fire chief Thursday night by the Bedford Volunteer Fire Department during a reorganizational meeting.

Other officers elected include John F. Elliott, vice president; Edgar F. Over, reelected secretary; J. Robert Miller, assistant secretary; John H. Jordan reelected treasurer; James Tritt, social treasurer; and Rev. M. Edgar Datesman, reelected chaplain.

Operating officers to serve with Hoover include John J. Bankes, Don C. Reiley, James K. Russell, Joseph F. Fleming and Eric May, assistant chiefs; Robert Barnes, chief engineer and Calvin S. Horner, hose director.

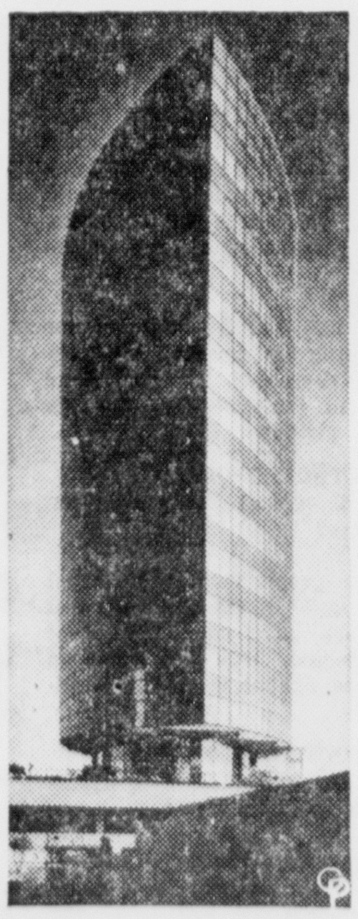
PTA Meeting Set

WESTERNPORT — The Bruce High School Parent-Teacher Association will meet in Room 220 Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. Miss Betty Jean Withrow, faculty member, will direct a group of students in presenting a program of Christmas music.



'THE SHIP'—Outlined against the Hartford, Conn., sky, the Phoenix Mutual home office building appears to float above the one-story quadrangle that forms the base for the tower. The building's unusual shape provides a number of advantages for its 600 employees. Called "the ship" by local residents, the structure gives everyone an outside view, has no prestige-laden corner offices, no "inside" offices and hardly any space for corridors.

'Ladies Night' Set By Frostburg Lions

FROSTBURG — The Frostburg Lions Club will entertain their ladies on Wednesday with a dinner at 6:30 p.m. in the Happy Hills Restaurant.

Entertainment after dinner will be provided by a group from Frostburg State College.

Lions are requested to bring a piece of used clothing which will be donated to the Meadow Mountain Boys Camp.

Meeting Planned

MT. SAVAGE — Pride of Mt. Savage Council No. 20 will meet December 13 at the Junior Order Hall. A jingle party will be held.

Two Brothers Die In Fire, Parents Critical

ROWLESBURG, W. Va. (UPI) —Two brothers died and their parents suffered burns Friday in a fire that destroyed their garage apartment on W. Va. 72 near here.

The cause of the fire could not be determined immediately.

The two victims were identified as Phillip Clark, 19, and his brother, Robert Lee Clark, 16. Their parents were described in critical condition at a hospital in nearby Kingwood.

Phillip, a student at Mountain State Business College in Clarksburg, was visiting his parents during the weekend. Robert Lee was a student at Rowlesburg High School.

Authorities said a neighbor, Delbert Bell, discovered the fire when he was awakened by a barking dog.

Bell said he called another neighbor and then climbed a ladder to break the rear window to rescue the parents, Ina and Mae Clark.

Bell said the fire and smoke had already engulfed the front area of the garage apartment where the boys were sleeping.

Five-Day Forecast

Duo Of Wilson And Robertson Gets 60 Points

Indians Shoot At .464 Clip In Opening Win

By TED TROXELL

Mt. Savage High School's do-it-all duo of Ralph Wilson and Bobby Robertson made an auspicious season debut last night by leading the Indians to an 86-67 triumph over Ridgeley in the West Virginia community.

Wilson and Robertson, beginning their final campaign at the school where they have starred since freshmen, combined for 60 points and also controlled the boards in pacing the 1962-63 Maryland Class B finalists to victory in their opener.

The Blackhawks, a game but out-manned quint, suffered their first defeat after having topped Romney, 73-63, in their lid-lifter earlier in the week.

Hawks Take 99 Shots

The home team got off 99 shots from the floor, but the majority of them were hurried aimless attempts and the 29 that found the mark resulted in a .293 percentage mark for the Hawks.

Mt. Savage, on the other hand, connected on 32 goals in 69 tries for a .464 reading. Wilson, six-foot-four pivotman went 11-17 from the floor and 9-10 at the free throw line to wind up with 31 tallies.

Robertson, the Indian's hustling all-round court artist, cooled off after a 19-point first half but still finished with 29 on 11 fielders in 25 cracks and seven of nine foul tosses.

Phillips Breaks Tie

After the score was knotted at two and four, Wayne Phillips put the visitors in front for good with a free throw. Ridgeley hung on for awhile and trailed by only four (21-17) as the first period ended, but the experienced Indians picked up the first eight points of the second frame and maintained at least a ten-point edge the rest of the way.

Charlie Coffman and Paul Harris collected 18 tallies apiece. Don McFarland checked in with 11 and Bill Seeders had ten for the Hawks.

Harding Gets 33 As Pirates Belt Oldtown, 90-52

Paw Paw High School's Pirates, a 23-game winner last season, launched their 1963-64 basketball campaign last night by routing Oldtown High School at Oldtown by the score of 90-52.

Coach Lewis Close's Buccaneers collected a total of 37 field goals and led all the way. The halftime score was 48-21.

Larry Harding's 33 points was high for Paw Paw. He meshed 13 shots from the field and connected for seven foul goals in ten tries. Guy Sharp was the runner-up with 20 tallies.

Steve Nixon scored 21 points for Oldtown on eight field goals and 5-5 at the free throw mark.

West Virginia, Duke Win In Tournament

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (UPI) —Duke squeezed past Ohio State 76-75 and West Virginia outlasted St. Johns 79-72 Friday night in the opening round of the West Virginia Centennial Basketball Tournament.

Duke and West Virginia will meet for the title Saturday night after St. Johns plays Ohio State in a consolation game.

Duquesne Wins

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Duquesne University, with Willie Somerset pouring in 24 points, romped past Westminster, Pa., College Friday night 75-55 in the opening game of the Steel Bowl basketball tournament.

Pitt met George Washington in the nightcap. Duquesne will meet the winner Saturday night in the championship. Pitt is defending champion.

Vikings, Elks And Romney Post PVC Wins

Franklin Cops Overtime Battle; WVSD Triumphs

Beall High topped Piedmont's defending co-champions last night in a 59-53 Potomac Valley Conference battle at Frostburg that highlighted a six-game PVC bill of fare.

Other conference action found Romney downing Fort Ashby, 72-64, at the latter place; Elk Garden squeaking past Southern, 74-71, at Oakland; Petersburg scoring a 56-45 home court decision over Mathias; West Virginia Deaf winning, 40-35, at Capon Bridge, and Franklin nudging Moorefield, 59-56, in an overtime struggle at Moorefield.

The Beall Mountaineers, beginning their 27th cage campaign under "dean" Edward (Ebbie) Finzel, hauled down a big victory in their 1963-64 opener. Piedmont is now 1-1 for the season.

A field goal by Dennis Bartlett early in the second period snapped an 18-18 deadlock and the veteran Frostburg quint held the upper hand thereafter.

Bartlett Tops Scorers

Bartlett led all scorers with 21 points, while 6-7 center John Smouse canned 19 and Ronnie Frazier contributed ten. Larry Patterson and Tom Grove each had a dozen, and Jim Shaver tallied 11 for the Lions. The latter team out-goaled the winners, 24-21, but converted only five foul tosses in ten tries to Beall's 17-30 effort.

Joe Breinig and Ron Combs led a 28-point attack in the final period that enabled Romney to even its record at 1-1. The Pioneers trailed, 45-44, entering the productive closing session.

Breinig wound up with 24 points, Combs pumped in 16 and Don Wade came through with 17. Dick Lark led the Eagles (0-2) with 19.

Elk Garden had to stave off a late surge by the Highlanders to record its first win in two starts. All five of the Elks' starters hit double figures, with Charles Keller and Lincoln Stullenbarger heading the parade with 19 and 17, respectively. Southern's Pat Garrett took game honors with 26.

Jim Brodengeyer's 20 points set the pace as Petersburg's Vikings chalked up their second straight victory. Gary Strawderman led Mathias with 17.

Lions Overcome Deficit

West Virginia School for the Deaf overcame a two-point (21-19) halftime deficit to win its opener. Evans and Craighead accounted for 30 of the Lions' 40 points. John Emmart sparked Capon Bridge with 13.

In the spine-tingler at Moorefield, Gary Barr's two-pointer with four seconds remaining produced a 55-55 tie and an overtime session. Joe Blizzard and Richard Hartley tossed in the deciding goals in the extra session. The former was the Panthers' top scorer with 13 markers, and Richard Eye collected 17 for the losers.

LeBaron, Howton Plan To Retire

DALLAS (AP)—Clever Eddie LeBaron, one of the smallest players in professional football history, and record-breaking end Bill Howton announced their retirement Friday from the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League.

LeBaron and Howton, both 33 years old and 11-year pro football veterans, will play their last home game when the Cowboys meet the Pittsburgh Steelers Sunday in the Cotton Bowl. They'll finish at St. Louis Dec. 15.

Shepherd Downs Wheeling, 90-74

SHEPHERDSTOWN, W. Va. (UPI)—Shepherd College pulled away in the second half here Friday night to post a decisive 90-74 win over Wheeling College.

The game was close going into the second half as the teams were tied up 47-47 going into the dressing room.

Wheeling started pulling away in the second half behind the shooting of Corky Corth for the win. Corth ended with 26 points to lead Wheeling scorers and Bill Thompson was high for the Rams with 31.

Hyndman Bows To Meyersdale

Sparked by Charley Banks, who garnered 27 points, Meyersdale High School's basketeers defeated Hyndman High School's Hornets in the latter's opening game of the season last night at Hyndman by the score of 87-77.

Banks, who led Meyersdale to an undefeated football season, slammed in nine field goals and converted 9 of 16 free throws.

The teams battled to a 41-41 tie in the first half but Meyersdale pulled away in the third period and was never headed.

Rich Lichty scored 19 points and Jim Patsy collected 16 for the victors.

Steve Stouffer's 25 points, which included nine field goals, was high for Hyndman. Don Logue racked up 22 and Rick Connor had 15.

Meyersdale's Jayvees beat Hyndman in the preliminary game 46-40.

Lawson Rings Up 37 In 2nd Win Of Year

David Lawson collected 17 field goals and 37 points in leading the Potomac State College Catamounts to a 93-72 triumph over Altoona (Pa.) Campus last night at Keyser.

The win was the second in three outings for Coach Dana G. "Horse" Lough's cagers.

Eleven of the 13 Catamounts who saw action crashed the scoring column. Donnie Shields was runner-up in scoring for Potomac with six baskets and 16 tallies.

Hosterman headed the Altoona scoring with 19 markers.

Tiger Defends Title Tonight

Champ Favored Over Giardello

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Middleweight champion Dick Tiger of Nigeria remained a strong favorite to turn back the challenge of Joey Giardello, Philadelphia veteran, Saturday night at the Convention Hall.

Both boxers loosened up briefly Friday and then settled back for the long wait until ring time at 10 p.m. EST Saturday. There will be no radio or television coverage of the 15-round world title match.

Giardello, honed down for a desperate last chance bid in a fight that could mean the end of his career, was about a pound below the 160-pound class limit as he finished training. Tiger had been hovering around 161 pounds for days and expected no trouble making the weight at the noon weigh-in. The champ was a 3-1 choice.

Basketball Fixer Is Fined $6,000

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Frank (Lefty) Rosenthal, a suave, Miami, Fla. gambler, was convicted Friday of attempting to rig a basketball game here in 1960 and fined $6,000.

Superior Court Judge Hugh Campbell fined the dapper Rosenthal after he pleaded no contest to the charges.

David Budin, a former New York teacher, also was convicted on the same charge and given a suspended two-year sentence. He served as the prosecution's chief witness against Rosenthal.

Bruce Wallops Huskies, 80-41

Gary Smith Scores 27 For Bulldogs

Coach Leonard Ritchie's Bruce High School Bulldogs got off to a flying start last night when they romped to an 80-41 victory over the Northern High Huskies in the opener for both quints in Garrett county.

Gary Smith was Bruce's big point-maker with 27 markers to his credit on 12 field goals and 3-7 at the foul line. Malc Kight contributed 19 points and Sam Berry collected 14.

Colin McGraw's 18 points was high for the Huskies who were making their first start under Coach Matthew Stieringer.

Bruce jumped off to a 16-11 lead in the opening period and stayed on top the remainder of the game.

The Bulldogs scored 35 goals while limiting the home team to 14.

Bellamy Sparkles As Bullets Win

BOSTON (AP)—Walt Bellamy paced the Baltimore Bullets to a 116-102 victory over New York Friday night in the first game of a National Basketball Association doubleheader.

Boston met Cincinnati in the second game.

Bellamy scored 36 points as the Bullets rallied from a 60-53 halftime deficit. Teammate Terry Dischinger contributed 21.

The Bullets pulled even early in the third period and the lead see-sawed until the final three minutes, when Si Green directed Baltimore's offense to a comfortable lead.

Johnny Green and Billy McGill each tallied 28 points for the Knicks. Len Chappell had 22 for New York.

Harold Johnson Decisions Hank

Rams To Test Packers Today

Bears Tackle 49ers In Top Sunday Tilt

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The defending champion Green Bay Packers are solid favorites to trim Los Angeles Saturday and remain in close contention behind Chicago in the Western Division of the National Football League.

But the Rams could play the role of successful spoilers in the nationally television struggle.

Green Bay is a mere one-half game behind Chicago in its drive for a fourth divsional title, and with time and the campaign running out, a loss to Los Angeles would virtually eliminate the Packers.

The game here is the first of another crucial weekend in the league.

Chicago entertains San Francisco, and the co-leaders in the Eastern Dvision, New York and Cleveland, have important dates. Washington's Redskins will be at New York and Cleveland is at Detroit.

Philadelphia at St. Louis, Pittsburgh at Dallas and Minnesota at Baltimore round out the Sunday slate.

The Packers are decidedly subpar. Running star Tom Moore is hobbled and linebacker Ray Nitschke, a key defensive man, is out with a broken forearm.

Mt. Savage Trims Ridgeley, 86-67, Beall Tops Piedmont, 59-53

Indians Shoot At .464 Clip In Opening Win

By TED TROXELL

Mt. Savage High School's do-it-all duo of Ralph Wilson and Bobby Robertson made an auspicious season debut last night by leading the Indians to an 86-67 triumph over Ridgeley in the West Virginia community.

Wilson and Robertson, beginning their final campaign at the school where they have starred since freshmen, combined for 60 points and also controlled the boards in pacing the 1962-63 Maryland Class B finalists to victory in their opener.

The Blackhawks, a game but out-manned quint, suffered their first defeat after having topped Romney, 73-63, in their lid-lifter earlier in the week.

Hawks Take 99 Shots

The home team got off 99 shots from the floor, but the majority of them were hurried aimless attempts and the 29 that found the mark resulted in a .293 percentage mark for the Hawks.

Mt. Savage, on the other hand, connected on 32 goals in 69 tries for a .464 reading. Wilson, six-foot-four pivotman went 11-17 from the floor and 9-10 at the free throw line to wind up with 31 tallies.

Robertson, the Indian's hustling all-round court artist, cooled off after a 19-point first half but still finished with 29 on 11 fielders in 25 cracks and seven of nine foul tosses.

Phillips Breaks Tie

After the score was knotted at two and four, Wayne Phillips put the visitors in front for good with a free throw. Ridgeley hung on for awhile and trailed by only four (21-17) as the first period ended, but the experienced Indians picked up the first eight points of the second frame and maintained at least a ten-point edge the rest of the way.

Charlie Coffman and Paul Harris collected 18 tallies apiece. Don McFarland checked in with 11 and Bill Seeders had ten for the Hawks.

Harding Gets 33 As Pirates Belt Oldtown, 90-52

Paw Paw High School's Pirates, a 23-game winner last season, launched their 1963-64 basketball campaign last night by routing Oldtown High School at Oldtown by the score of 90-52.

Coach Lewis Close's Buccaneers collected a total of 37 field goals and led all the way. The halftime score was 48-21.

Larry Harding's 33 points was high for Paw Paw. He meshed 13 shots from the field and connected for seven foul goals in ten tries. Guy Sharp was the runner-up with 20 tallies.

Steve Nixon scored 21 points for Oldtown on eight field goals and 5-5 at the free throw mark.

West Virginia, Duke Win In Tournament

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (UPI)—Duke squeezed past Ohio State 76-75 and West Virginia outlasted St. Johns 79-72 Friday night in the opening round of the West Virginia Centennial Basketball Tournament.

Duke and West Virginia will meet for the title Saturday night after St. Johns plays Ohio State in a consolation game.

Duquesne Wins

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Duquesne University, with Willie Somerset pouring in 24 points, romped past Westminster, Pa., College Friday night 75-55 in the opening game of the Steel Bowl basketball tournament.

Pitt met George Washington in the nightcap. Duquesne will meet the winner Saturday night in the championship. Pitt is defending champion.

Vikings, Elks And Romney Post PVC Wins

Franklin Cops Overtime Battle; WVSD Triumphs

Beall High topped Piedmont's defending co-champions last night in a 59-53 Potomac Valley Conference battle at Frostburg that highlighted a six-game PVC bill of fare.

Other conference action found Romney downing Fort Ashby, 72-64, at the latter place; Elk Garden squeaking past Southern, 74-71, at Oakland; Petersburg scoring a 56-45 home court decision over Mathias; West Virginia Deaf winning, 40-35, at Capon Bridge, and Franklin nudging Moorefield, 59-56, in an overtime struggle at Moorefield.

The Beall Mountaineers, beginning their 27th cage campaign under "dean" Edward (Ebbie) Finzel, hauled down a big victory in their 1963-64 opener. Piedmont is now 1-1 for the season.

A field goal by Dennis Bartlett early in the second period snapped an 18-18 deadlock and the veteran Frostburg quint held the upper hand thereafter.

Bartlett Tops Scorers

Bartlett led all scorers with 21 points, while 6-7 center John Smouse canned 19 and Ronnie Frazier contributed ten. Larry Patterson and Tom Grove each had a dozen, and Jim Shaver tallied 11 for the Lions. The latter team out-goaled the winners, 24-21, but converted only five foul tosses in ten tries to Beall's 17-30 effort.

Joe Breinig and Ron Combs led a 28-point attack in the final period that enabled Romney to even its record at 1-1. The Pioneers trailed, 45-44, entering the productive closing session.

Breinig wound up with 24 points, Combs pumped in 16 and Don Wade came through with 17. Dick Lark led the Eagles (0-2) with 19.

Elk Garden had to stave off a late surge by the Highlanders to record its first win in two starts. All five of the Elks' starters hit double figures, with Charles Keller and Lincoln Stullenbarger heading the parade with 19 and 17, respectively. Southern's Pat Garrett took game honors with 26.

Jim Brodengeyer's 20 points set the pace as Petersburg's Vikings chalked up their second straight victory. Gary Strawderman led Mathias with 17.

Lions Overcome Deficit

West Virginia School for the Deaf overcame a two-point (21-19) halftime deficit to win its opener. Evans and Craighead accounted for 30 of the Lions' 40 points. John Emmart sparked Capon Bridge with 13.

In the spine-tingler at Moorefield, Gary Barr's two-pointer with four seconds remaining produced a 55-55 tie and an overtime session. Joe Blizzard and Richard Hartley tossed in the deciding goals in the extra session. The former was the Panthers' top scorer with 13 markers, and Richard Eye collected 17 for the losers.

LeBaron, Howton Plan To Retire

DALLAS (AP)—Clever Eddie LeBaron, one of the smallest players in professional football history, and record-breaking end Bill Howton announced their retirement Friday from the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League.

LeBaron and Howton, both 33 years old and 11-year pro football veterans, will play their last home game when the Cowboys meet the Pittsburgh Steelers Sunday in the Cotton Bowl. They'll finish at St. Louis Dec. 15.

Shepherd Downs Wheeling, 90-74

SHEPHERDSTOWN, W. Va. (UPI)—Shepherd College pulled away in the second half here Friday night to post a decisive 90-74 win over Wheeling College.

The game was close going into the second half as the teams were tied up 47-47 going into the dressing room.

Wheeling started pulling away in the second half behind the shooting of Corky Corth for the win. Corth ended with 26 points to lead Wheeling scorers and Bill Thompson was high for the Rams with 31.

Hyndman Bows To Meyersdale

Sparked by Charley Banks, who garnered 27 points, Meyersdale High School's basketeers defeated Hyndman High School's Hornets in the latter's opening game of the season last night at Hyndman by the score of 87-77.

Banks, who led Meyersdale to an undefeated football season, slammed in nine field goals and converted 9 of 16 free throws.

The teams battled to a 41-41 tie in the first half but Meyersdale pulled away in the third period and was never headed.

Rich Lichty scored 19 points and Jim Patsy collected 16 for the victors.

Steve Stouffer's 25 points, which included nine field goals, was high for Hyndman. Don Logue racked up 22 and Rick Connor had 15.

Meyersdale's Jayvees beat Hyndman in the preliminary game 46-40.

Tiger Defends Title Tonight

Champ Favored Over Giardello

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Middleweight champion Dick Tiger of Nigeria remained a strong favorite to turn back the challenge of Joey Giardello, Philadelphia veteran, Saturday night at the Convention Hall.

Both boxers loosened up briefly Friday and then settled back for the long wait until ring time at 10 p.m. EST Saturday. There will be no radio or television coverage of the 15-round world title match.

Giardello, honed down for a desperate last chance bid in a fight that could mean the end of his career, was about a pound below the 160-pound class limit as he finished training. Tiger had been hovering around 161 pounds for days and expected no trouble making the weight at the noon weigh-in. The champ was a 3-1 choice.

Basketball Fixer Is Fined $6,000

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Frank (Lefty) Rosenthal, a suave, Miami, Fla. gambler, was convicted Friday of attempting to rig a basketball game here in 1960 and fined $6,000.

Superior Court Judge Hugh Campbell fined the dapper Rosenthal after he pleaded no contest to the charges.

David Budin, a former New York teacher, also was convicted on the same charge and given a suspended two-year sentence. He served as the prosecution's chief witness against Rosenthal.

Bruce Wallops Huskies, 80-41

Gary Smith Scores 27 For Bulldogs

Coach Leonard Ritchie's Bruce High School Bulldogs got off to a flying start last night when they romped to an 80-41 victory over the Northern High Huskies in the opener for both quints in Garrett county.

Gary Smith was Bruce's big point-maker with 27 markers to his credit on 12 field goals and 3-7 at the foul line. Malc Kight contributed 19 points and Sam Berry collected 14.

Colin McGraw's 18 points was high for the Huskies who were making their first start under Coach Matthew Stieringer.

Bruce jumped off to a 16-11 lead in the opening period and stayed on top the remainder of the game.

The Bulldogs scored 35 goals while limiting the home team to 14.

Bellamy Sparkles As Bullets Win

BOSTON (AP)—Walt Bellamy paced the Baltimore Bullets to a 116-102 victory over New York Friday night in the first game of a National Basketball Association doubleheader.

Boston met Cincinnati in the second game.

Bellamy scored 36 points as the Bullets rallied from a 60-53 halftime deficit. Teammate Terry Dischinger contributed 21.

The Bullets pulled even early in the third period and the lead see-sawed until the final three minutes, when Si Green directed Baltimore's offense to a comfortable lead.

Johnny Green and Billy McGill each tallied 28 points for the Knicks. Len Chappell had 22 for New York.

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Former lightheavyweight champion Harold Johnson made a successful but unimpressive comeback start Friday night by winning a unanimous nationally-televised 10-round bout with clowning Henry Hanks at the Blue Horizon Arena.

Rams To Test Packers Today

Bears Tackle 49ers In Top Sunday Tilt

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The defending champion Green Bay Packers are solid favorites to trim Los Angeles Saturday and remain in close contention behind Chicago in the Western Division of the National Football League.

But the Rams could play the role of successful spoilers in the nationally television struggle.

Green Bay is a mere one-half game behind Chicago in its drive for a fourth divsional title, and with time and the campaign running out, a loss to Los Angeles would virtually eliminate the Packers.

The game here is the first of another crucial weekend in the league.

Chicago entertains San Francisco, and the co-leaders in the Eastern Dvision, New York and Cleveland, have important dates. Washington's Redskins will be at New York and Cleveland is at Detroit.

Philadelphia at St. Louis, Pittsburgh at Dallas and Minnesota at Baltimore round out the Sunday slate.

The Packers are decidedly subpar. Running star Tom Moore is hobbled and linebacker Ray Nitschke, a key defensive man, is out with a broken forearm.

Navy Hopes To Extend 4-Year Jinx Over Army In 64th Battle

Cadets Could Wreck Middies' Bowl Game Bid

100,000 To Attend Game; Pitt Hosts Penn State Today

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Army's do-or-die bid to wreck Navy's Cotton Bowl plans and rugged closing tests for Pittsburgh and the Air Force, who could land late post-season plums, highlight the final major Saturday of the college football season.

The day's big attraction, of course, is at Philadelphia Stadium where more than 100,000 will gather to see if the exciting Roger Staubach and his Midshipmen teammates can extend a four-year jinx over the Cadets of West Point.

The 64th annual service battle, to be staged in a somber atmosphere out of respect for the late President Kennedy, will be televised nationally (CBS-TV, 12:45 p.m. EST). Kickoff is at 1:15 p.m.

Lions Invade Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh, fourth-ranked nationally and beaten only by Navy this year, sends its big pro-type team against formidable Penn State at Pittsburgh. The Air Force is host to Colorado at Colorado Springs, Colo.

All of these games were postponed after the assassination of President Kennedy in Dallas.

If Navy can win its fifth straight from Army, the Middies are expected to get an immediate invitation to meet top-ranked, unbeaten-untied Texas in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas in what would stack up as the game of the year.

A defeat at the hands of the grim and determined Cadets or a high-level decision to keep Navy out of any bowls would toss the Dallas bid into the laps of the Pittsburgh Panthers.

The Gator Bowl which has grown to major stature, is interested in landing the Air Force and its star quarterback, Terry Isaacson, as opponents for North Carolina in the Jacksonville, Fla., game Dec. 28.

The Air Force, winner over two of the major bowl teams—Nebraska and Washington—is in the same category as Navy insofar as bowl activity is concerned.

Must Get Pentagon OK

If the Pentagon says it's okay for the Navy, then the same goes for the Air Force—granting, of course, that both win Saturday. Pitt also is a Gator Bowl possibility.

Two games are scheduled in the Southwest Conference, Baylor playing Southern Methodist at Waco and Rice meeting Texas Christian at Fort Worth. In other games, Tulsa plays at Louisville and New Mexico at Arizona.

Pence And Flick To Attend State Meeting Today

Changes in tournament sites for the annual district playoffs in basketball are expected to be made today when the state scholastic athletic committee meets at Annapolis.

These changes are necessary because many of the school classifications are different than they were a year ago.

Robert E. Pence, supervisor of physical education for Allegany county, will represent the four counties of District One — Allegany, Garrett, Washington and Frederick—and Paul Flick, of Fort Hill High School, will be the track and field representative from Western Maryland.

Today's sessions at the Anne Arundel County Board of Education Building will get under way at 9:30 a.m.

Dodgers Sell Bill Skowron To Senators

Cleveland Sends Adcock To Angels

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —Baseball men wound up their winter meetings Friday by dealing off a pair of first basemen, with Joe Adcock going to the Los Angeles Angels from the Cleveland Indians and Moose Skowron to the Washington Senators from the World Champion Dodgers.

The Angels' acquisition of the 36-year-old Adcock was a shirttail to last Monday's deal in which the Indians obtained outfielder Leon Wagner for pitcher Barry Latman and a player to be named later.

Adcock, a well-traveled right handed hitter who originally broke in with Milwaukee and was traded to Cleveland a year ago, was that player.

The 6-foot-4 long ball hitter, who once slammed four homers in one game against the Dodgers and owns a career total of .283, hit only 13 homers for the Indians last season while fashioning a .251 batting average in 97 games.

Stars In Series

Skowron's transfer to the Senators from the Dodgers, for whom he starred in the recent World Series against the Yankees, has been bandied about since last August.

It was the fifth player deal between the two clubs within a year and touched off some rumblings at these meetings about a budding "two-way street" between the Dodgers and the Senators such as existed between the Yankees and the Athletics until a few years ago.

"That's a lot of nonsense," exclaimed Dodger General Manager E. J. (Buzzie) Bavasi. "Several clubs were interested in Skowron, but Washington made me the first and the best offer."

Skowron, who will be 33 at the end of this month, was obtained by the Senators for an estimated $25,000.

Earlier, the Dodgers sent infielder Don Zimmer, pitcher Ed Roebuck and catcher Mike Brumley to the Senators while Washington sold second baseman Marv Breeding to the Dodgers.

McMullen Trial Set

The Dodgers announced that Ken McMullen, normally a third baseman, would be given a trial at first base next spring where he may be groomed to fill in behind Ron Fairly.

The Yankees also made some final-day news with the disclosure that Mickey Mantle, recuperating from a knee operation in Dallas, was down to 185 pounds and "looking fit and trim."

On the legislative side, the majors okayed a players' proposal to cut in the fifth-place finishing teams on the World Series.

Wheeling College Plays Frostburg State Tonight

Bobcats Will Open At Home; Cardinals Lead In Series, 3-1

Wheeling College's Cardinals wind up a two-day road trip tonight by playing the Bobcats of Frostburg State College in the latter's opening basketball game of the season tonight at 8 o'clock at Frostburg.

Charles Lattimer and Clifton Van Roby will officiate.

The West Virginians played their fourth game of the season last night at Shepherd College after having lost to Steubenville and West Liberty (72-70) last weekend in the Kiwanis Club tournament at Wellsburg, W. Va., and defeated West Liberty Tuesday to the tune of 69-66 in the regular season opener.

Clash Fifth Time

Wheeling and Frostburg have been meeting once each season since 1960 but they'll tangle in home-and-home tilts this season. The Cardinals hold a 3-1 edge in the series. They won the first three games, 96-88, 72-61 and 97-83 but last season the Bobcats, who won 17 of 21 games and copped nine of ten at home, whipped Wheeling in the Mountain City by the score of 88-46. Wheeling College is a Catholic school, is operated by the Jesuit fathers and was founded in 1954.

Dr. Ron Van Ryswyk begins his fourth season as coach of the Bobcats. His teams have posted 7-14, 19-7 and 17-4 marks for an overall record of 41 wins and 27 losses.

"Doc" Must Rebuild

Frostburg State was hard hit by graduation when it lost George Lauder, the team's top pointmaker; Robert "Hank" Winner, George Connolly, Jim Thompson and Sam Holliday and this means "Doc" Van Ryswyk has a rebuilding job on his hands. Veterans returning are Bill Wiltison, former Brue High ace, who scored over 300 points in his sophomore year, Gene Wood, Jerry Boccuto, Quincy Crawford, and Gene Wood. The squad also includes Charley Robinson, former Fort Hill athlete, and Jim Evans, both of whom played only one semester last season.

Wrestlers of Frostburg State and Fairmont State will clash prior to tonight's basketball game. The match is set for 6 o'clock.

Frostburg's revised cage schedule:

Dec. 7—Wheeling, home. Dec. 10—Potomac State, away. Dec. 13—Towson, away. Dec. 14—Bowie, away. Dec. 17—Shenandoah, away.

Liston-Clay Bout Moved To Florida

MIAMI (UPI) — Lured by a $400,000 guarantee and Florida's winter warmth and sporting crowd, Sonny Liston & Co. agreed Friday to stage the heavyweight title defense against Cassius Clay in the Miami Beach Convention Hall Feb. 26.

The fight will be inserted into an eight day-period in which $100,000, $50,000 and $75,000 horse races are scheduled.

Wealthy spokesman William MacDonald Jr. announced the agreement to move the bout to Miami Beach from Las Vegas, where it was originally scheduled.

In autumn, it is possible to determine the age of ducks and geese by examining their tail feathers. If the tip of a feather is pointed or rounded, the bird is an adult. If the tail feather is V-notched or square-ended, the bird is a juvenile.

Navy Hopes To Extend 4-Year Jinx Over Army In 64th Battle

Cadets Could Wreck Middies' Bowl Game Bid

100,000 To Attend Game; Pitt Hosts Penn State Today

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Army's do-or-die bid to wreck Navy's Cotton Bowl plans and rugged closing tests for Pittsburgh and the Air Force, who could land late post-season plums, highlight the final major Saturday of the college football season.

The day's big attraction, of course, is at Philadelphia Stadium where more than 100,000 will gather to see if the exciting Roger Staubach and his Midshipmen teammates can extend a four-year jinx over the Cadets of West Point.

The 64th annual service battle, to be staged in a somber atmosphere out of respect for the late President Kennedy, will be televised nationally (CBS-TV, 12:45 p.m. EST). Kickoff is at 1:15 p.m.

Lions Invade Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh, fourth-ranked nationally and beaten only by Navy this year, sends its big pro-type team against formidable Penn State at Pittsburgh. The Air Force is host to Colorado at Colorado Springs, Colo.

All of these games were postponed after the assassination of President Kennedy in Dallas.

If Navy can win its fifth straight from Army, the Middies are expected to get an immediate invitation to meet top-ranked, unbeaten-untied Texas in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas in what would stack up as the game of the year.

A defeat at the hands of the grim and determined Cadets or a high-level decision to keep Navy out of any bowls would toss the Dallas bid into the laps of the Pittsburgh Panthers.

The Gator Bowl which has grown to major stature, is interested in landing the Air Force and its star quarterback, Terry Isaacson, as opponents for North Carolina in the Jacksonville, Fla., game Dec. 28.

The Air Force, winner over two of the major bowl teams—Nebraska and Washington—is in the same category as Navy insofar as bowl activity is concerned.

Must Get Pentagon OK

If the Pentagon says it's okay for the Navy, then the same goes for the Air Force—granting, of course, that both win Saturday. Pitt also is a Gator Bowl possibility.

Two games are scheduled in the Southwest Conference, Baylor playing Southern Methodist at Waco and Rice meeting Texas Christian at Fort Worth. In other games, Tulsa plays at Louisville and New Mexico at Arizona.

Pence And Flick To Attend State Meeting Today

Changes in tournament sites for the annual district playoffs in basketball are expected to be made today when the state scholastic athletic committee meets at Annapolis.

These changes are necessary because many of the school classifications are different than they were a year ago.

Robert E. Pence, supervisor of physical education for Allegany county, will represent the four counties of District One — Allegany, Garrett, Washington and Frederick—and Paul Flick, of Fort Hill High School, will be the track and field representative from Western Maryland.

Today's sessions at the Anne Arundel County Board of Education Building will get under way at 9:30 a.m.

Dodgers Sell Bill Skowron To Senators

Cleveland Sends Adcock To Angels

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —Baseball men wound up their winter meetings Friday by dealing off a pair of first basemen, with Joe Adcock going to the Los Angeles Angels from the Cleveland Indians and Moose Skowron to the Washington Senators from the World Champion Dodgers.

The Angels' acquisition of the 36-year-old Adcock was a shirt-tail to last Monday's deal in which the Indians obtained outfielder Leon Wagner for pitcher Barry Latman and a player to be named later.

Adcock, a well-traveled right handed hitter who originally broke in with Milwaukee and was traded to Cleveland a year ago, was that player.

The 6-foot-4 long ball hitter, who once slammed four homers in one game against the Dodgers and owns a career total of .283, hit only 13 homers for the Indians last season while fashioning a .251 batting average in 97 games.

Stars In Series

Skowron's transfer to the Senators from the Dodgers, for whom he starred in the recent World Series against the Yankees, has been bandied about since last August.

It was the fifth player deal between the two clubs within a year and touched off some rumblings at these meetings about a budding "two-way street" between the Dodgers and the Senators such as existed between the Yankees and the Athletics until a few years ago.

"That's a lot of nonsense," exclaimed Dodger General Manager E. J. (Buzzie) Bavasi. "Several clubs were interested in Skowron, but Washington made me the first and the best offer."

Skowron, who will be 33 at the end of this month, was obtained by the Senators for an estimated $25,000.

Earlier, the Dodgers sent infielder Don Zimmer, pitcher Ed Roebuck and catcher Mike Brumley to the Senators while Washington sold second baseman Marv Breeding to the Dodgers.

McMullen Trial Set

The Dodgers announced that Ken McMullen, normally a third baseman, would be given a trial at first base next spring where he may be groomed to fill in behind Ron Fairly.

The Yankees also made some final-day news with the disclosure that Mickey Mantle, recuperating from a knee operation in Dallas, was down to 185 pounds and "looking fit and trim."

On the legislative side, the majors okayed a players' proposal to cut in the fifth-place finishing teams on the World Series.

Wheeling College Plays Frostburg State Tonight

Bobcats Will Open At Home; Cardinals Lead In Series, 3-1

Wheeling College's Cardinals wind up a two-day road trip tonight by playing the Bobcats of Frostburg State College in the latter's opening basketball game of the season tonight at 8 o'clock at Frostburg.

Charles Lattimer and Clifton Van Roby will officiate.

The West Virginians played their fourth game of the season last night at Shepherd College after having lost to Steubenville and West Liberty (72-70) last weekend in the Kiwanis Club tournament at Wellsburg, W. Va., and defeated West Liberty Tuesday to the tune of 69-66 in the regular season opener.

Clash Fifth Time

Wheeling and Frostburg have been meeting once each season since 1960 but they'll tangle in home-and-home tilts this season. The Cardinals hold a 3-1 edge in the series. They won the first three games, 96-88, 72-61 and 97-83 but last season the Bobcats, who won 17 of 21 games and copped nine of ten at home, whipped Wheeling in the Mountain City by the score of 88-46. Wheeling College is a Catholic school, is operated by the Jesuit fathers and was founded in 1954.

Dr. Ron Van Ryswyk begins his fourth season as coach of the Bobcats. His teams have posted 7-14, 19-7 and 17-4 marks for an overall record of 41 wins and 27 losses.

"Doc" Must Rebuild

Frostburg State was hard hit by graduation when it lost George Lauder, the team's top pointmaker; Robert "Hank" Winner, George Connolly, Jim Thompson and Sam Holliday and this means "Doc" Van Ryswyk has a rebuilding job on his hands. Veterans returning are Bill Wiltison, former Brue High ace, who scored over 300 points in his sophomore year, Gene Wood, Jerry Boccuto, Quincy Crawford, and Gene Wood. The squad also includes Charley Robinson, former Fort Hill athlete, and Jim Evans, both of whom played only one semester last season.

Wrestlers of Frostburg State and Fairmont State will clash prior to tonight's basketball game. The match is set for 6 o'clock.

Frostburg's revised cage schedule:

Dec. 7—Wheeling, home. Dec. 10—Potomac State, away. Dec. 13—Towson, away. Dec. 14—Bowie, away. Dec. 17—Shenandoah, away.

Jan. 3 & 4—Bridgewater tournament. Jan. 10—D. C. Teachers, home. Jan. 11—Southeastern U., home, 2 p. m. Jan. 15—Wheeling, away. Jan. 17—Salisbury, home. Jan. 18—Salisbury, home, 2 p. m. Jan. 28—Waynesburg, away. Jan. 30—Shenandoah, home.

Feb. 4—D. C. Teachers, away. Feb. 7—Bowie, home. Feb. 14—Southeastern U., away. Feb. 15—Coppin, away. Feb. 17—Potomac State, home. Feb. 18—Towson, home. Feb. 22—Coppin, home. Feb. 24—Waynesburg, home. The Bowie tournament originally set for Feb. 28-29 has been cancelled.

Liston-Clay Bout Moved To Florida

MIAMI (UPI) — Lured by a $400,000 guarantee and Florida's winter warmth and sporting crowd, Sonny Liston & Co. agreed Friday to stage the heavyweight title defense against Cassius Clay in the Miami Beach Convention Hall Feb. 26.

The fight will be inserted into an eight day-period in which $100,000, $50,000 and $75,000 horse races are scheduled.

Wealthy spokesman William MacDonald Jr. announced the agreement to move the bout to Miami Beach from Las Vegas, where it was originally scheduled.

Market Drifts Downward Amid General Slow Trade

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks drifted lower in moderately active trading Friday as profit-taking from Thursday's advance combined with normal pre-weekend realizing to set prices back.

Prices started off firm at the opening but the downtrend took hold strongly and continued through to the close.

Dow-Jones industrial average dropped 3.61 to 760.25 and utilities slipped 0.36. Rails, however, advanced 0.64. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index dropped 0.28 to 74.00.

Trading slowed to 4,830,000 shares compared with the 5,190,000 shares which changed hands Thursday. Declines outnumbered advances 578 to 488. Of the 1,327 issues traded, 40 hit new 1963 highs while only 20 dropped to new lows.

RCA Suffers Losses

RCA's announcement of a 3-for-1 stock split and dividend boost seemed to fall on deaf ears since it had been largely discounted. The stock topped the market in activity with a loss of 1½ to 97⅞ on a turnover of 179,600 shares.

Westinghouse Electric took second place with a loss of ½ on 102,700 shares, part of which was on two blocks of 23,000 and 25,000 shares. Pennsylvania Railroad was third with a loss of ¾ on 69,000 shares. Studebaker was up ⅜ on 61,300 shares in fourth place and Chrysler was down 1¾ on 59,200 in fifth position.

Steels Down

Steels shed fractions for the most part. Bethlehem was off ¼, Republic ⅜ and U. S. Steel ⅝. Youngstown dropped 1¼.

General Motors dropped 1⅜ and American Motors skidded E. Ford slipped ¼. Ford Friday laid off 6,000 workers in various plants around the country because of strikes at assembly plants.

Du Pont dropped 2 bug Eastman Kodak moved up from its low and tacked on ⅜. Union Carbide pushed ahead 2. Oils lost their recent bullishness and slipped fractions. Standard Oil of California was down ¼, Standard Oil (N.J.) ⅛ and Texaco ⅝.

Kaiser Aluminum dropped 1½ after it cancelled the 1 cent a pound price increase on primary aluminum it instituted Thursday. Reynolds metals gave up 1½ and Alcoa 1. Olin Mathieson Chemical, which has a large interest in aluminum, slipped ¾.

IBM Drops Three

IBM battled the downtrend throughout the session but finally succumbed and dropped 3. Other losers included Beckman off 1⅜, CBS 1⅛, Schlumberger 1½, Zenith 1⅝. Thompson-Ramo-Wooldridge rose 1½ and Control Data picked up 1⅝.

American Crystal Sugar paced a weak sugar section with a loss of 4 on news the Agriculture Department would attempt to drive the price of sugar down next year by allowing growers to sell more than their ordinary allotments. The department also reported higher supplies and weaker consumer demand.

Western Air Lines jumped 3 and Northwest Airlines advanced 1¾ but Pan American World Airways gave up 1½.

Polaroid declined 4. Xerox shot up 8⅛.

On the American Exchange prices moved irregularly. Trading amounted to 1,270,000 shares compared with 1,360,000 shares Thursday. Wilshire Oil was the market's most active issue, dropping ⅛ to 3¼ on 78,800 shares.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI) — Enthusiastic buying boosted soybeans and rye to strong levels Friday on the Chicago Board of Trade while other grain futures ended firm.

At the close, wheat was up ¼ to 1⅛; corn off ½ to up 1½; oats up ¼ to ¾; rye up 2¼ to 3; and soybeans up 1½ to 6.

Soybean futures opened weak but rallied more than 6 cents a bushel on a possibility that the trade will replace the soybean oil that "disappeared" from eastern storage tanks with soybeans. Trade sources reported that warhouse receipts called for around 153,000,000 pounds more oil than investigators found in a spot check of storage tanks.

Firm wheat prices reflected expectations that several farm programs will be considered next year and continued dry weather in southwest winter wheat territory.

Demand for nearby wheat was also based on news that a substantial amount of red wheat will be shipped out of Chicago to gulf ports.

Firm spot markets, light receipts and reports that about 1,250,000 bushels of corn that were delivered against the December contract will be shipped out of Chicago elevators brought buying to corn futures.

Rye gained more than 2 cents on short covering and export buying. Oats were steady to firm on commission and elevator buying.

Market Drifts Downward Amid General Slow Trade

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks drifted lower in moderately active trading Friday as profit-taking from Thursday's advance combined with normal pre-weekend realizing to set prices back.

Prices started off firm at the opening but the downtrend took hold strongly and continued through to the close.

Dow-Jones industrial average dropped 3.61 to 760.25 and utilities slipped 0.36. Rails, however, advanced 0.64. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index dropped 0.28 to 74.00.

Trading slowed to 4,830,000 shares compared with the 5,190,000 shares which changed hands Thursday. Declines outnumbered advances 578 to 488. Of the 1,327 issues traded, 40 hit new 1963 highs while only 20 dropped to new lows.

RCA Suffers Losses

RCA's announcement of a 3-for-1 stock split and dividend boost seemed to fall on deaf ears since it had been largely discounted. The stock topped the market in activity with a loss of 1½ to 97⅞ on a turnover of 179,600 shares.

Westinghouse Electric took second place with a loss of ½ on 102,700 shares, part of which was on two blocks of 23,000 and 25,000 shares. Pennsylvania Railroad was third with a loss of ¾ on 69,000 shares. Studebaker was up ⅜ on 61,300 shares in fourth place and Chrysler was down 1¾ on 59,200 in fifth position.

Steels Down

Steels shed fractions for the most part. Bethlehem was off ¼, Republic ⅜ and U. S. Steel ⅝. Youngstown dropped 1¼.

General Motors dropped 1⅜ and American Motors skidded E. Ford slipped ¼. Ford Friday laid off 6,000 workers in various plants around the country because of strikes at assembly plants.

Du Pont dropped 2 bug Eastman Kodak moved up from its low and tacked on ⅜. Union Carbide pushed ahead 2. Oils lost their recent bullishness and slipped fractions. Standard Oil of California was down ¼, Standard Oil (N.J.) ⅛ and Texaco ⅝.

Kaiser Aluminum dropped 1½ after it cancelled the 1 cent a pound price increase on primary aluminum it instituted Thursday. Reynolds metals gave up 1½ and Alcoa 1. Olin Mathieson Chemical, which has a large interest in aluminum, slipped ¾.

IBM Drops Three

IBM battled the downtrend throughout the session but finally succumbed and dropped 3. Other losers included Beckman off 1⅜, CBS 1⅛, Schlumberger 1½, Zenith 1⅝. Thompson-Ramo-Wooldridge rose 1½ and Control Data picked up 1⅝.

American Crystal Sugar paced a weak sugar section with a loss of 4 on news the Agriculture Department would attempt to drive the price of sugar down next year by allowing growers to sell more than their ordinary allotments. The department also reported higher supplies and weaker consumer demand.

Western Air Lines jumped 3 and Northwest Airlines advanced 1¾ but Pan American World Airways gave up 1½.

Polaroid declined 4. Xerox shot up 8⅛.

On the American Exchange prices moved irregularly. Trading amounted to 1,270,000 shares compared with 1,360,000 shares Thursday. Wilshire Oil was the market's most active issue, dropping ⅛ to 3¼ on 78,800 shares.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI) — Enthusiastic buying boosted soybeans and rye to strong levels Friday on the Chicago Board of Trade while other grain futures ended firm.

At the close, wheat was up ¼ to 1⅛; corn off ½ to up 1½; oats up ¼ to ¾; rye up 2¼ to 3; and soybeans up 1½ to 6.

Soybean futures opened weak but rallied more than 6 cents a bushel on a possibility that the trade will replace the soybean oil that "disappeared" from eastern storage tanks with soybeans. Trade sources reported that warhouse receipts called for around 153,000,000 pounds more oil than investigators found in a spot check of storage tanks.

Firm wheat prices reflected expectations that several farm programs will be considered next year and continued dry weather in southwest winter wheat territory.

Demand for nearby wheat was also based on news that a substantial amount of red wheat will be shipped out of Chicago to gulf ports.

Firm spot markets, light receipts and reports that about 1,250,000 bushels of corn that were delivered against the December contract will be shipped out of Chicago elevators brought buying to corn futures.

Rye gained more than 2 cents on short covering and export buying. Oats were steady to firm on commission and elevator buying.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear Mother Molly Robertson who passed away 3 years ago today, December 7, 1960.

We do not need this special day
To bring you to our minds
The days we do not think of you
Are very hard to find.
They say time heals all sorrows
And helps us to forget
But time so far has only proved
How much we miss you yet.

Dearly loved and sadly missed by her daughters & sons & Grandchildren

In loving memory of Louise L. Sidaway who passed away 21 years ago today, December 7, 1942.

Millions of stars in the heavens above
Only one Mother to cherish and love
Thousands and thousands of flowers and trees
Hundreds and hundreds of mountains and seas
Everything's multiplied over and over
Robins and butterflies, bees in the clover
Many good friends to think the world of
But only one Mother to cherish and love.

Daughter Geraldine

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear Mother Molly Robertson who passed away 3 years ago today, December 7, 1960.

We do not need this special day
To bring you to our minds
The days we do not think of you
Are very hard to find.
They say time heals all sorrows
And helps us to forget
But time so far has only proved
How much we miss you yet.
Dearly loved and sadly missed by her daughters & sons & Grandchildren

In loving memory of Louise L. Sidaway who passed away 21 years ago today, December 7, 1942.

Millions of stars in the heavens above
Only one Mother to cherish and love
Thousands and thousands of flowers and trees
Hundreds and hundreds of mountains and seas
Everything's multiplied over and over
Robins and butterflies, bees in the clover
Many good friends to think the world of
But only one Mother to cherish and love.

LEGAL NOTICE

Notice is hereby given by the Board of Appeals of Allegany County that it will hold a public hearing on December 23, 1963, at 2:00 p. m. E.S.T. in the County Commissioner's Meeting Room, Second Floor, Court House on the following appeals, known as Case No. 21, filed by Cornelius Dye, and Case No. 22, filed by Ronald Tabler.

Case No. 21 concerns a requested variance from the set-back requirements in order that a sign may be located 37 feet back from the right-of-way of U. S. 220 in front of the 7-Up Bottling Company.

Case No. 22 concerns a requested variance from the set-back requirements and also from the minimum lot size requirements in order to locate a mobile home within 25 feet of a county road on a lot of 4800 square feet, located at the South East corner of Bowling Avenue and Division Avenue in Bowling Green.

The Board will hear the proponents of, or objections to, or protests against the granting of said permit.

Everett Partridge, Chairman
Wilbur Johnson, Member
Adv. N-T—Dec. 7

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Sealed bids addressed to the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland, Maryland, will be received at the office of the City Clerk, City Hall, Cumberland, Maryland, until but not after 10:00 o'clock A. M., Local Time, Monday, December 23, 1963, at which time they will be publicly opened and read, for furnishing and installing Overhead Fire Station Doors at the South End Fire Station and the East Side Fire Station, in accordance with plans and specifications which may be obtained at the office of the City Engineer, City Hall.

The City reserves the right to waive any formalities and to reject any or all bids, and to accept any proposal which in its judgment is to the best interests of the City.

All bids shall be plainly marked on the outside of the envelope, "BID FOR OVERHEAD FIRE STATION DOORS."

Mrs. Edna Hounshell, Cresaptown, is a patient in Memorial Hospital; Mrs. Fannie Kemp, LaVale, in Western Maryland State Hospital, Hagerstown; and Mrs. Margaret Arnold, Lonaconing, is ill with pneumonia.

A poem was read by Mrs. Marshall and a jingle party held. Prizes were won by Mrs. Flo Alexander of LaVale and Mrs. Mary Fair, Midland. Refreshments were served by the Lonaconing women. Sixty-five women attended, representing 11 auxiliaries, nine officers and eight past presidents.

A butterfly table is a small, drop-leaf table with brackets shaped like the wings of a butterfly.

LEGAL NOTICE

Notice is hereby given by the Board of Appeals of Allegany County that it will hold a public hearing on December 23, 1963, at 2:00 p. m. E.S.T. in the County Commissioner's Meeting Room, Second Floor, Court House on the following appeals, known as Case No. 21, filed by Cornelius Dye, and Case No. 22, filed by Ronald Tabler.

Case No. 21 concerns a requested variance from the set-back requirements in order that a sign may be located 37 feet back from the right-of-way of U. S. 220 in front of the 7-Up Bottling Company.

Case No. 22 concerns a requested variance from the set-back requirements and also from the minimum lot size requirements in order to locate a mobile home within 25 feet of a county road on a lot of 4800 square feet, located at the South East corner of Bowling Avenue and Division Avenue in Bowling Green.

The Board will hear the proponents of, or objections to, or protests against the granting of said permit.

Everett Partridge, Chairman
Wilbur Johnson, Member
Adv. N-T—Dec. 7

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Sealed bids addressed to the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland, Maryland, will be received at the office of the City Clerk, City Hall, Cumberland, Maryland, until but not after 10:00 o'clock A. M., Local Time, Monday, December 23, 1963, at which time they will be publicly opened and read, for furnishing and installing Overhead Fire Station Doors at the South End Fire Station and the East Side Fire Station, in accordance with plans and specifications which may be obtained at the office of the City Engineer, City Hall.

The City reserves the right to waive any formalities and to reject any or all bids, and to accept any proposal which in its judgment is to the best interests of the City.

All bids shall be plainly marked on the outside of the envelope, "BID FOR OVERHEAD FIRE STATION DOORS."

Four Are Hurt In Accident On Baltimore Pike

Police Investigate Three-Vehicle Crash

Four persons including a Baltimore man and his six-year-old daughter were hospitalized last night in a three-vehicle accident on U. S. Route 40 just east of the fire hall of the Baltimore Pike Volunteer Fire Company.

Injured in the crash and taken to Memorial Hospital were Ronald L. Thomas, 19, of RD 2, Frostburg; Steve Blake, 19, of Baltimore; Charles Michael, 37, and his six-year-old daughter, also of Baltimore.

Full details of the accident were not available last night, although it was reported a pickup truck driven by Michael was headed east and cars driven by the two young men were headed west toward Cumberland.

The accident was reported to have occurred in the vicinity of a sharp curve near a duel highway on Route 40 just east of the fire hall.

The injured persons were brought into the hospital by the McDonald Ambulance Service of Cumberland. The accident occurred about 8:45 p. m.

Investigating the accident are Tfc. George Wachter and Tfc. Willis Foreman.

Small Midland Boy Discovers House Fire

A small Midland boy noticed a fire in the home of his neighbors yesterday evening and firemen were able to respond quickly and confine the blaze to an enclosed porch area.

The youngster, Kenny Kerns, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Kerns, spotted the fire in the home of Mrs. Annie Hughes on Big Lane and told his parents, who in turn notified Neil Jones, a fireman who lives across from the Hughes residence.

The Midland Volunteer Fire Company were able to confine the blaze to the porch area, but considerable damage was reported. It is believed the fire was caused by faulty electrical wiring, firemen said.

The fire company responded with 33 men and used two booster lines to fight the fire. Exhaust fans were used to clear the house of smoke once the fire was extinguished. Firemen were called at 5:10 p. m. and were at the scene until 6:45 p. m.

The fire-fighting operation was directed by Chief Harry Devlin and Richard Hawkins Jr., assistant chief.

Christmas Seal Contributions Ahead Of 1962

Contributions to the 1963-64 Christmas Seal drive of the Allegany-Garrett Tuberculosis Association are still running ahead of returns for the same period last year.

Mrs. Dorothy McKenty, executive secretary, said yesterday $8,988.28 had been received to date compared with $8,341.50 for the same time last year.

A breakdown on the figures show Allegany County residents have contributed $7,900.75 this year, an increase of $535.15 over last year, and donations from Garrett County to date are $1,087.54, or $111.64 ahead of 1962.

Residents of the two counties are urged to send in their contributions as soon as possible to avoid the Christmas mailing rush.

If anyone did not receive a letter with seals this year they may contact the association's office at 129½ South Liberty Street in Cumberland.

Man Injured In Strip Mine

A Bowman's Addition man was injured yesterday when he was struck by a power shovel at a strip mine operation near Berlin, Pa.

Bernard Lee Wilson, 25, of RD 1, Bowman's Addition, was admitted to Sacred Heart Hospital with face, neck and shoulder injuries and was reported in "satisfactory" condition last night.

The hospital said Mr. Wilson, a truck driver, was standing near the shovel when it swung around and hit him.

REV. GEORGE MARSHFIELD

AFSC Official Will Address Unitarians

Rev. George W. Marshfield, director of Summer Projects Abroad for the American Friends Service Committee, will address the Cumberland Unitarian Fellowship tomorrow at 11:15 a.m. at Central YMCA.

Rev. Mr. Marshfield will speak on "Biography of God."

Prior to being named to his present position, Rev. Mr. Marshfield served for six years as director of college work for the New England regional office of the AFSC.

A graduate of the University of Pittsburgh and of the Chicago Theological Seminary, he also has served as a Unitarian Universalist minister in Canada and Texas.

Police Get Descriptions Of Robbers

Descriptions were supplied city police yesterday of the two men who were involved in an assault and attempted robbery of Pratt's Grocery Store, 251 Williams Street, Thursday night.

Detective Capt. James E. Van said descriptions of the men and the vehicle in which they were thought to have made their escape have been forwarded to authorities of the area.

He said the descriptions were furnished by a woman who saw the men in the store about half an hour before they struck the owner, George R. Pratt, apparently with a soft drink bottle.

One of the men, he said, was described as a white male, about 20, six feet tall and about 160 pounds, of medium build and with long black hair, long sideburns and with hair heavy on the back of the head and a pimply face. He was dressed in a navy blue jacket, police were told.

The second man was described as about 20, five feet, nine inches tall and from 180 to 190 pounds, with a stocky build. He had black hair, long on the neck and bushy on top, and had a round full face. He was wearing a brown suede jacket.

A description of the car believed used by the pair was supplied by another person, Capt. Van said, adding that Pennsylvania police are checking the information supplied.

Capt. Van said one suspect had been picked up and released after questioning.

The would-be robbers were scared away by a customer who entered the store just after Mr. Pratt was struck down.

3 Sentenced In Car Theft

Three South Cumberland teenagers yesterday were ordered committed to the Maryland Training School for Boys after they were found guilty of being delinquent minors in the theft of an automobile.

Juvenile Magistrate Louis A. Fatkin noted yesterday there have been several cases recently in which minors have stolen automobiles, and he said he plans to deal severely with these offenders.

Magistrate Fatkin said the community must be protected against these auto thefts by teen-agers and that his court will be very strict in cases involving youths who steal cars.

Yesterday's case involved two boys 15 years old and one 16. Detective Kenneth Morrissey and Cpl. Murl S. Boggs of the City Police Department investigated the case.

The Post Office said yesterday the sale of the Sam Houston five-cent commemorative stamp scheduled December 14 has been postponed until some time in January, 1964.

Legal Action To Be Sought On Buildings

Health Board Gets 22 New Complaints

The City Board of Health yesterday ordered its inspection team to seek legal action in connection with two properties found to be fire or sanitation hazards or for violations of the city housing code.

Action will be sought in Police Court here against Thomas L. Popp, 229 North Lee Street, on grounds the building is a fire and sanitation hazard, and against Clay Twigg, 619 Henderson Avenue, for violations of the city housing code.

The board headed by Mayor Earl D. Chaney was told yesterday that inspectors have worked on 23 properties since the board was revived several months ago.

Five Are Razed

Of these, five properties have been razed. Repairs designed to bring them up to standard have been made on five properties and five others have been placarded as part of the procedure leading to the repair or razing of the buildings.

During a conference with the board, C. Glenn Watson, agent for H. W. Dougherty, Butler, Pa., owner of property at 912-918 Glenwood Street, pledged full cooperation, saying the owner wants to raze the dwelling as soon as the place can be vacated as both agreed it was not fit for human habitation. The only problem, he said, is to find a place for the present occupants to live.

The inspection team informed the board there are 22 more properties to be investigated after the first of the year in three sections of the city.

Not Isolated Cases

But they said the dwellings which have been reported in the Bedford Street, Putnam and South Lee Street areas are not isolated cases, and that there is no use to go in unless similar action is to be taken against adjoining properties which are equally bad.

In each case, the inspectors said, there are clusters of dwellings which must be cleared.

Also attending were City Engineer C. R. Nuzum, Fire Chief Virgil Parker, Gaylord Brooks, health department sanitarian; George Scarlett, building inspector, and Edward Trost, fire inspector.

Fight Seen Over U. Md. Branch For Baltimore

BALTIMORE (AP) — Armed with a hint from Gov. Tawes, Baltimore Comptroller Hyman Pressman has called on the city's legislative delegation to make a "last-ditch fight" against construction of a Baltimore County branch of the University of Maryland.

Pressman and Mayor McKeldin have been urging that the branch be built in downtown Baltimore instead of on the county site already approved by the State Board of Public Works.

Pressman had appealed to Tawes, a member of the board, for help in the fight.

As far as he is concerned, Tawes said in a letter of reply, the subject is a closed affair. But he added:

"I would point out to you that implementation of the plan . . . must receive the approval of the General Assembly."

This was a reminder that the assembly still must approve funds for construction of the branch.

After receiving Tawes' letter, Pressman issued a statement:

"I call upon the Baltimore City delegation to make a last-ditch fight against this proposal.

"The University of Maryland branch belongs in Baltimore City, where it will be more convenient for the majority of the population and where it will better fit in with the general educational pattern of the state. It would also serve as an aid to the rejuvenation of Baltimore City, which is important to the entire state."

Bromery Speaks At Meeting In New York City

R. W. Bromery, son of Randolph Bromery, 211 Carroll Street, teacher of geology at Howard University in Washington, was one of the guest speakers during the recent 76th annual meeting of the Geological Society of America at the Hotel Commodore, New York City.

Mr. Bromery, who is an airborne geophysicist and has traveled all over the world doing aerial photo work, recently returned from a trip to Puerto Rico.

His topic of discussion at the meeting was gravity studies of serpentinite anticlines near a test hole in Puerto Rico.

Mr. Bromery and his family resided in Washington.

He is a former resident of Cumberland and left here in 1903 when his father was transferred by the B&O Railroad. The Craftsmen Council is a Masonic organization devoted to the elevation and education of engineers and related craftsmen and meets on first Fridays at 8 p. m.

Group To Check Rising Costs In Md. Hospitals

Patients' Records To Be Examined

BALTIMORE (AP) — A painstaking review of records of 9,000 patients in 45 general hospitals in Maryland will be taken as the first step in a study of whether rising costs are due to improper or unnecessary admissions.

Herman L. Gruehn, chairman of a commission named early this year by Gov. Tawes, announced Friday what he described as "the first extensive collection of information on this matter which has ever been attempted in Maryland."

Approximately 300 physicians have volunteered to make the study beginning next Monday.

Tawes Wanted Study

The commission was named by Gov. Tawes in response to complaints over another increase last year in the cost of Blue Cross hospitalization insurance. The governor asked for a study on whether a brake could be applied to the spiral.

Gruehn took note in a statement that there were allegations that the costs were in part due to so-called abuses such as admission of patients for diagnosis and prolonged stay because it was paid by Blue Cross.

An attempt to answer these questions will be the sole object of the upcoming survey, Gruehn said. He said it will not attempt to answer such questions as whether hospital costs are low, high or reasonable.

Sample Questions

Samples of the questions which the physicians will answer are:

1. If you were the patient's physician, and given the same basis for decision, would you have hospitalized him?
2. Do you think this admission was primarily for diagnostic purposes?
3. Was the admission apparently influenced by the existence of insurance coverage?
4. In your opinion, was the duration of hospitalization needlessly prolonged?

Two doctors will make independent examination of the record of every single patient in a Maryland hospital on a certain unspecified day. If either or both find an abuse, it will be studied by a separate panel of reviewers.

An independent panel also will study any cases where there is a substantial difference of opinion between the two examining physicians.

Vandalism Wave Being Probed Here

Police To Urge Court Action

A wave of vandalism which is taking heavy toll on parked automobiles is being investigated by city police.

Police Chief B. F. Gaffney said every effort will be made to arrest those who are responsible and that the courts will be asked to impose sentences on those found responsible.

He said the vandalism is happening at night and is believed to be the work of a band of roving juveniles.

Efforts to pick up the vandals are being accelerated, both by men on foot and by patrol cars, police said.

Being probed by the Detective Bureau are reports by the following, made late this week:

Thomas Rudd Jr., 1015 Van Buren Avenue, that a side mirror on his car was broken as it was parked near Allegany High School.

Mrs. Dianne Kilroy, 23 Plymouth Drive, that an antenna was broken off her car as it was parked near the school.

Cheryl Chaney, 1153 Frederick Street, that an antenna was broken on her car.

John M. Price, 114 Bedford Street, that a neon sign in front of his barber shop had been broken. He added a large truck could have been responsible.

Everett Wade, Bedford Road, that four hubcaps were taken from his car as it was parked near the Kelly plant.

John Reitmeier, 427 North Centre Street, that a side mirror was stolen from his car.

Mrs. Robert Mace, 626 Shriver Avenue, that an antenna was snapped off her parked car near her home.

Liquor, Beer Tax Receipts On Increase

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Maryland alcoholic beverage tax receipts increased by more than 10 per cent in November to $932,626.

For the first five months of the fiscal year, receipts totaled $4,425,660, an increase of $233,335 over last year.

The tax on distilled spirits accounted for most of the November revenue, bringing in $722,956 according to a report released by State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein.

The beer tax totaled $150,143 for the month and the tax on wine $64,536.

For the fiscal year, the distilled spirits tax brought in $3,382,067, beer tax $848,238 and taxes on wine $251,779.

Local 26 Auxiliary Plans Dance Tonight

Ladies Auxiliary Chapter 26, United Rubber Workers, will hold a pre-holiday dance tonight in the Bowling Green Fire Hall.

Dancing will be from 9 p.m. to midnight, with music by the Rhythmaires. The public is invited.

Mrs. Rebecca Deahl, auxiliary secretary, is chairman of the committee planning the dance.

Choirs from nine area Protestant churches will present a Christmas choral concert tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. in First Presbyterian Church, Lonaconing, and not at 8 p. m. as was announced in yesterday's edition of The Cumberland News.

Public Welfare Program To Be Discussed Here

Meeting Dec. 16 At Shrine Club

A meeting for the purpose of discussing the present public welfare program will be held December 16 at 6:30 p. m. in the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

Officials of Allegany County, members of the legislature and local Welfare Board members are expected to attend the dinner meeting.

Louis V. Shinnamon, president of the County Board of Comissioners, received an invitation from the County Welfare Board.

Raleigh C. Hobson, new state director of Public Welfare, Dr. Alvin Thalheimer, chairman of the state board, and David Semer, field supervisor for Allegany County, have been invited to attend to discuss the present public welfare program.

In other business discussed by the commissioners yesterday morning during a regular meeting, a note of appreciation was received from the Corriganville Volunteer Fire Company.

William F. Matthews, recording secretary for the volunteers, wrote: "Your assistance and cooperation in helping to improve conditions at the Cash Valley Road intersection and on Maple Street in our community is sincerely appreciated.

"It is believed that the improvement at the intersection by providing greater driver visibility, will minimize the traffic hazard a considerable degree."

Lowndes Home Meeting Set

The board of trustees of the Allegany County Library has invited the County Commissioners to a meeting Tuesday at 8:30 p. m. to discuss the bequest of the home of the late Miss Elizabeth Lowndes to the county for library purposes.

Rollin P. Marquis, county library director, said the discussion would be held in conjunction with a regular meeting of the trustees in the Maryland Room of the library on Washington Street.

The Lowndes home is located at 27 Washington Street near the library building.

The County Commissioners were given 60 days from the date of Mrs. Lowndes' death to accept the gift.

In the event they do not do so the residence is to be given to the Board of Education upon condition that it should be used for purposes auxiliary to the administration of public education in the county.

Apartment House Plan Is Approved

The Board of Zoning Appeals has approved the application of C. E. Burgess, 628 Washington Street, to build an apartment house in the 600 block of Washington Street.

The permit will be issued, city officials said, subject to the requirements that the builder provide adequate off-street parking for tenants.

Plans call for the construction of a six-unit apartment house on Lots 48-51 of Washington Street. It will be a two-story structure and of brick veneer construction. The lots will provide a 135-foot frontage in the 600 block of the street.

During its meeting Thursday night, the board announced that Irving Millenson had withdrawn an application to build a medical office building at 403 Fayette Street.

1,469 Inactive Voters Stricken From Books

The names of 1,469 Allegany County residents were removed from the registration books of the Board of Election Supervisors in compliance with the five-year clause of an act of the legislature, said John R. Kelly, Democrat registrar and chief clerk who gave a statistics report yesterday.

He said that as of December 1 the names had been removed from the books and the total includes 835 Republicans, 621 Democrats and 13 persons who had declined to give their party affiliation.

The total registration in the county is now 37,851, which includes 20,974 Republicans, 16,609 Democrats, 259 who declined, seven Socialists and two, other parties.

New registrations for the month include a total of 74, according to Mr. Kelly, who said the number includes 48 Republicans and 26 Democrats.

Forty-eight persons who died during the past month had their names stricken from the books. The total includes 36 Republicans and 12 Democrats.

Four persons including three Republicans and one Democrat had their names removed from the books by request.

Other figures given by Mr. Kelly show that 27 persons transferred from one district and precinct to another; 11 persons changed party affiliation and five changed name or address only.

Gilchrist Named Attorney For CURA

C. William Gilchrist, local attorney, has been appointed attorney for the Cumberland Urban Renewal Agency, according to William F. DeMare, executive director.

Mr. Gilchrist was appointed to the post at a meeting of the agency Monday night in City Hall.

Buchanan To Speak To LaVale Optimists

Lloyd Buchanan, a member of the LaVale Sanitary Commission, will be the guest speaker at the weekly meeting of the LaVale Optimist Club Monday at 6:30 p.m. at the Continental Restaurant on U.S. Route 40.

Mr. Buchanan will outline the sewage and water plans for the residents of LaVale.

Fuel Ignites After Rig Clips Station Pumps

Property Damaged West Of Frostburg

Volunteer firemen of Grantsville and Frostburg last night responded to a fire which resulted when a parked tractor trailer drifted away and sheared off three gasoline pumps at the Robeson Restaurant and Service Station along U.S. Route 40 nine miles west of Frostburg.

No one was injured, although the cab of the tractor-trailer and a parked car were damaged, as well as the three pumps on an island at the service station.

Allen Broadwater, owner of the restaurant and service station, said Cecil Lamb of Altoona, driver of the tractor-trailer owned by Renner Motor Lines Inc. of Akron, had pulled into the area near the business place and parked the rig.

He went into the restaurant about 6:45 p.m. to eat his dinner. Lamb saw the tractor-trailer drifting back, ran out and reached it just as it hit the three pumps were sheared off.

He got into the cab to move the truck, but when he started the motor the fire broke out. Firemen from Grantsville were summoned and had the fire under control by the time the volunteer firefighters of Frostburg arrived on the scene.

There was no explosion, according to Mr. Broadwater, who said no one was injured. A parked car owned by Edward P. Kennedy of Oak Lawn, Ill., was damaged when it was struck by the rig. Neither the rig nor the car was damaged by the fire, said Mr. Broadwater.

Six Apartment Buildings Set For Bel Air

Applications for permits to construct six apartment buildings on four and one-half acres of the Bel Air development along Route 220 south of here, were filed yesterday with the Allegany County Planning and Zoning Commission.

C. Lee Renaud, director of the commission, said only State Health Department approval is needed for the permits to be issued.

He noted that this is imminent as the Bel Air development already has state-approved water and sewage facilities.

Construction will start immediately on two of the six buildings under the direction Charles Galeano, superintendent of PSW Associates, Washington. One of these estimated to cost $108,000 will contain 18 one- and two-bedroom apartments, while the other will cost $132,000 and have 22 one- and two-bedroom apartments.

Robert H. Downing, of Bel Air Development, said the four and one-half acre tract is located along Route 220 and the buildings will be constructed between the highway and the initial Bel Air street.

The financing is by Metropolitan Life Insurance Company through its correspondent, Weaver Bros. Co. Inc., of Baltimore and Washington.

Three of the permits sought are for $108,000 and the remainder, for $132,000 each, for a total of $720,000 in new construction.

Downing said occupancy is expected by April. After the initial two buildings are completed, work will be started on four more.

The apartments will be of the garden type, two-story and basement, each with a balcony, and all air conditioned. Downing reported rentals by PSW Associates will be from $115 to $135 monthly, with all utilities except electricity included.

A representative of Weaver Bros. said today in Baltimore, the project was undertaken several years ago when an extensive survey showed there was a definite need for modern, moderately-priced apartments in this section.

The two units to be started soon will be the first apartment houses to be constructed in this section in many years.

The architect is Eugene A. Delmar, A.I.A., Silver Spring. Downing reported PSW Associates has constructed 450 apartments in the Washington area.

South End Group To Meet Tuesday

The South Cumberland Business and Civic Association will hold its December meeting Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. at Grace Methodist Church.

The guest speaker will be Grover C. Long, an employe of Allegany Ballistics Laboratory, who will talk on "Challenge of the Space Age."

The board of directors of the association will meet December 17 at 8 p.m. at the Chapel Hill Hose House.

Rev. George W. Marshfield, director of Summer Projects Abroad for the American Friends Service Committee, will address the Cumberland Unitarian Fellowship tomorrow at 11:15 a.m. at Central YMCA.

Rev. Mr. Marshfield will speak on "Biography of God."

Prior to being named to his present position, Rev. Mr. Marshfield served for six years as director of college work for the New England regional office of the AFSC.

A graduate of the University of Pittsburgh and of the Chicago Theological Seminary, he also has served as a Unitarian Universalist minister in Canada and Texas.

Police Get Descriptions Of Robbers

Descriptions were supplied city police yesterday of the two men who were involved in an assault and attempted robbery of Pratt's Grocery Store, 251 Williams Street, Thursday night.

Detective Capt. James E. Van said descriptions of the men and the vehicle in which they were thought to have made their escape have been forwarded to authorities of the area.

He said the descriptions were furnished by a woman who saw the men in the store about half an hour before they struck the owner, George R. Pratt, apparently with a soft drink bottle.

One of the men, he said, was described as a white male, about 20, six feet tall and about 160 pounds, of medium build and with long black hair, long sideburns and with hair heavy on the back of the head and a pimply face. He was dressed in a navy blue jacket, police were told.

The second man was described as about 20, five feet, nine inches tall and from 180 to 190 pounds, with a stocky build. He had black hair, long on the neck and bushy on top, and had a round full face. He was wearing a brown suede jacket.

A description of the car believed used by the pair was supplied by another person, Capt. Van said, adding that Pennsylvania police are checking the information supplied.

Capt. Van said one suspect had been picked up and released after questioning.

The would-be robbers were scared away by a customer who entered the store just after Mr. Pratt was struck down.

3 Sentenced In Car Theft

Three South Cumberland teenagers yesterday were ordered committed to the Maryland Training School for Boys after they were found guilty of being delinquent minors in the theft of an automobile.

Juvenile Magistrate Louis A. Fatkin noted yesterday there have been several cases recently in which minors have stolen automobiles, and he said he plans to deal severely with these offenders.

Magistrate Fatkin said the community must be protected against these auto thefts by teen-agers and that his court will be very strict in cases involving youths who steal cars.

Yesterday's case involved two boys 15 years old and one 16. Detective Kenneth Morrissey and Cpl. Murl S. Boggs of the City Police Department investigated the case.

Stamp Sale Delayed

The Post Office said yesterday the sale of the Sam Houston five-cent commemorative stamp scheduled December 14 has been postponed until some time in January, 1964.

Legal Action To Be Sought On Buildings

Health Board Gets 22 New Complaints

The City Board of Health yesterday ordered its inspection team to seek legal action in connection with two properties found to be fire or sanitation hazards or for violations of the city housing code.

Action will be sought in Police Court here against Thomas L. Popp, 229 North Lee Street, on grounds the building is a fire and sanitation hazard, and against Clay Twigg, 619 Henderson Avenue, for violations of the city housing code.

The board headed by Mayor Earl D. Chaney was told yesterday that inspectors have worked on 23 properties since the board was revived several months ago.

Five Are Razed

Of these, five properties have been razed. Repairs designed to bring them up to standard have been made on five properties and five others have been placarded as part of the procedure leading to the repair or razing of the buildings.

During a conference with the board, C. Glenn Watson, agent for H. W. Dougherty, Butler, Pa., owner of property at 912-918 Glenwood Street, pledged full cooperation, saying the owner wants to raze the dwelling as soon as the place can be vacated as both agreed it was not fit for human habitation. The only problem, he said, is to find a place for the present occupants to live.

The inspection team informed the board there are 22 more properties to be investigated after the first of the year in three sections of the city.

Not Isolated Cases

But they said the dwellings which have been reported in the Bedford Street, Putnam and South Lee Street areas are not isolated cases, and that there is no use to go in unless similar action is to be taken against adjoining properties which are equally bad.

In each case, the inspectors said, there are clusters of dwellings which must be cleared.

Also attending were City Engineer C. R. Nuzum, Fire Chief Virgil Parker, Gaylord Brooks, health department sanitarian; George Scarlett, building inspector, and Edward Trost, fire inspector.

Fight Seen Over U. Md. Branch For Baltimore

BALTIMORE (AP) — Armed with a hint from Gov. Tawes, Baltimore Comptroller Hyman Pressman has called on the city's legislative delegation to make a "last-ditch fight" against construction of a Baltimore County branch of the University of Maryland.

Pressman and Mayor McKeldin have been urging that the branch be built in downtown Baltimore instead of on the county site already approved by the State Board of Public Works.

Pressman had appealed to Tawes, a member of the board, for help in the fight.

As far as he is concerned, Tawes said in a letter of reply, the subject is a closed affair. But he added:

"I would point out to you that implementation of the plan . . . must receive the approval of the General Assembly."

This was a reminder that the assembly still must approve funds for construction of the branch.

After receiving Tawes' letter, Pressman issued a statement:

"I call upon the Baltimore City delegation to make a last-ditch fight against this proposal.

"The University of Maryland branch belongs in Baltimore City, where it will be more convenient for the majority of the population and where it will better fit in with the general educational pattern of the state. It would also serve as an aid to the rejuvenation of Baltimore City, which is important to the entire state."

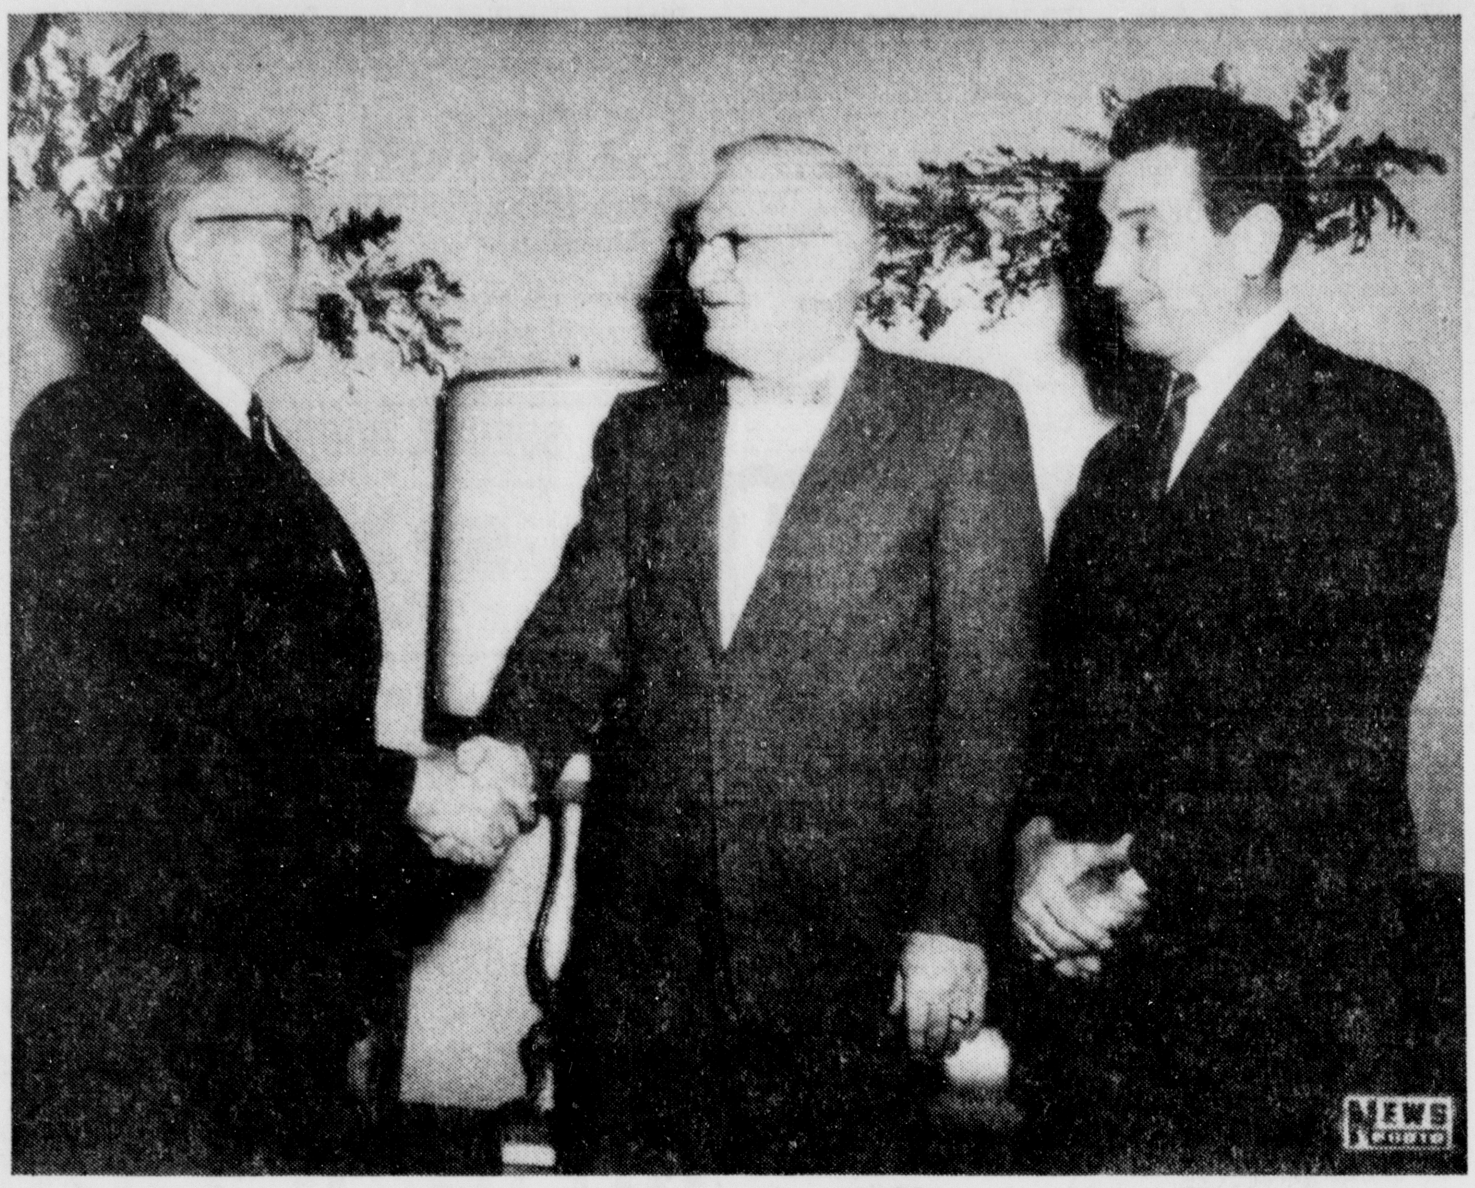
Bromery Speaks At Meeting In New York City

R. W. Bromery, son of Randolph Bromery, 211 Carroll Street, teacher of geology at Howard University in Washington, was one of the guest speakers during the recent 76th annual meeting of the Geological Society of America at the Hotel Commodore, New York City.

Mr. Bromery, who is an airborne geophysicist and has traveled all over the world doing aerial photo work, recently returned from a trip to Puerto Rico.

His topic of discussion at the meeting was gravity studies of serpentinite anticlines near a test hole in Puerto Rico.

Mr. Bromery and his family resided in Washington.



Greet Masonic Official

Ralph R. Eustice, center, Akron, grand worthy chief of the Universal Craftsmen Council of Engineers, is being greeted by George W. Lucas, worthy chief of Cumberland Council 53, as Eugene C. Park, past worthy chief of the council, looks on. Mr. Eustice last night made his official visit to the local council at a meeting in Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club. He is a former resident of Cumberland and left here in 1903 when his father was transferred by the B&O Railroad. The Craftsmen Council is a Masonic organization devoted to the elevation and education of engineers and related craftsmen and meets on first Fridays at 8 p. m.

Group To Check Rising Costs In Md. Hospitals

Patients' Records To Be Examined

BALTIMORE (AP) — A painstaking review of records of 9,000 patients in 45 general hospitals in Maryland will be taken as the first step in a study of whether rising costs are due to improper or unnecessary admissions.

Herman L. Gruehn, chairman of a commission named early this year by Gov. Tawes, announced Friday what he described as "the first extensive collection of information on this matter which has ever been attempted in Maryland."

Approximately 300 physicians have volunteered to make the study beginning next Monday.

Tawes Wanted Study

The commission was named by Gov. Tawes in response to complaints over another increase last year in the cost of Blue Cross hospitalization insurance. The governor asked for a study on whether a brake could be applied to the spiral.

Gruehn took note in a statement that there were allegations that the costs were in part due to so-called abuses such as admission of patients for diagnosis and prolonged stay because it was paid by Blue Cross.

An attempt to answer these questions will be the sole object of the upcoming survey, Gruehn said. He said it will not attempt to answer such questions as whether hospital costs are low, high or reasonable.

Sample Questions

Samples of the questions which the physicians will answer are:

1. If you were the patient's physician, and given the same basis for decision, would you have hospitalized him?

2. Do you think this admission was primarily for diagnostic purposes?

3. Was the admission apparently influenced by the existence of insurance coverage?

4. In your opinion, was the duration of hospitalization needlessly prolonged?

Two doctors will make independent examination of the record of every single patient in a Maryland hospital on a certain unspecified day. If either or both find an abuse, it will be studied by a separate panel of reviewers.

An independent panel also will study any cases where there is a substantial difference of opinion between the two examining physicians.

Vandalism Wave Being Probed Here

Police To Urge Court Action

A wave of vandalism which is taking heavy toll on parked automobiles is being investigated by city police.

Police Chief B. F. Gaffney said every effort will be made to arrest those who are responsible and that the courts will be asked to impose sentences on those found responsible.

He said the vandalism is happening at night and is believed to be the work of a band of roving juveniles.

Efforts to pick up the vandals are being accelerated, both by men on foot and by patrol cars, police said.

Being probed by the Detective Bureau are reports by the following, made late this week:

Thomas Rudd Jr., 1015 Van Buren Avenue, that a side mirror on his car was broken as it was parked near Allegany High School.

Mrs. Dianne Kilroy, 23 Plymouth Drive, that an antenna was broken off her car as it was parked near the school.

Cheryl Chaney, 1153 Frederick Street, that an antenna was broken on her car.

John M. Price, 114 Bedford Street, that a neon sign in front of his barber shop had been broken. He added a large truck could have been responsible.

Everett Wade, Bedford Road, that four hubcaps were taken from his car as it was parked near the Kelly plant.

John Reitmeier, 427 North Centre Street, that a side mirror was stolen from his car.

Mrs. Robert Mace, 626 Shriver Avenue, that an antenna was snapped off her parked car near her home.

Liquor, Beer Tax Receipts On Increase

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Maryland alcoholic beverage tax receipts increased by more than 10 per cent in November to $932,626.

For the first five months of the fiscal year, receipts totaled $4,425,660, an increase of $233,335 over last year.

The tax on distilled spirits accounted for most of the November revenue, bringing in $722,956 according to a report released by State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein.

The beer tax totaled $150,143 for the month and the tax on wine $64,536.

For the fiscal year, the distilled spirits tax brought in $3,382,067, beer tax $848,238 and taxes on wine $251,779.

Local 26 Auxiliary Plans Dance Tonight

Ladies Auxiliary Chapter 26, United Rubber Workers, will hold a pre-holiday dance tonight in the Bowling Green Fire Hall.

Dancing will be from 9 p.m. to midnight, with music by the Rhythmaires. The public is invited.

Mrs. Rebecca Deahl, auxiliary secretary, is chairman of the committee planning the dance.

Concert Correction

Choirs from nine area Protestant churches will present a Christmas choral concert tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. in First Presbyterian Church, Lonaconing, and not at 8 p. m. as was announced in yesterday's edition of The Cumberland News.

Public Welfare Program To Be Discussed Here

Meeting Dec. 16 At Shrine Club

A meeting for the purpose of discussing the present public welfare program will be held December 16 at 6:30 p. m. in the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

Officials of Allegany County, members of the legislature and local Welfare Board members are expected to attend the dinner meeting.

Louis V. Shinnamon, president of the County Board of Comissioners, received an invitation from the County Welfare Board.

Raleigh C. Hobson, new state director of Public Welfare, Dr. Alvin Thalheimer, chairman of the state board, and David Semer, field supervisor for Allegany County, have been invited to attend to discuss the present public welfare program.

In other business discussed by the commissioners yesterday morning during a regular meeting, a note of appreciation was received from the Corriganville Volunteer Fire Company.

William F. Matthews, recording secretary for the volunteers, wrote: "Your assistance and cooperation in helping to improve conditions at the Cash Valley Road intersection and on Maple Street in our community is sincerely appreciated.

"It is believed that the improvement at the intersection by providing greater driver visibility, will minimize the traffic hazard a considerable degree."

Lowndes Home Meeting Set

The board of trustees of the Allegany County Library has invited the County Commissioners to a meeting Tuesday at 8:30 p. m. to discuss the bequest of the home of the late Miss Elizabeth Lowndes to the county for library purposes.

Rollin P. Marquis, county library director, said the discussion would be held in conjunction with a regular meeting of the trustees in the Maryland Room of the library on Washington Street.

The Lowndes home is located at 27 Washington Street near the library building.

The County Commissioners were given 60 days from the date of Mrs. Lowndes' death to accept the gift.

In the event they do not do so the residence is to be given to the Board of Education upon condition that it should be used for purposes auxiliary to the administration of public education in the county.

The Weather

Apartment House Plan Is Approved

The Board of Zoning Appeals has approved the application of C. E. Burgess, 628 Washington Street, to build an apartment house in the 600 block of Washington Street.

The permit will be issued, city officials said, subject to the requirements that the builder provide adequate off-street parking for tenants.

Plans call for the construction of a six-unit apartment house on Lots 48-51 of Washington Street. It will be a two-story structure and of brick veneer construction. The lots will provide a 135-foot frontage in the 600 block of the street.

During its meeting Thursday night, the board announced that Irving Millenson had withdrawn an application to build a medical office building at 403 Fayette Street.

1,469 Inactive Voters Stricken From Books

The names of 1,469 Allegany County residents were removed from the registration books of the Board of Election Supervisors in compliance with the five-year clause of an act of the legislature, said John R. Kelly, Democrat registrar and chief clerk who gave a statistics report yesterday.

He said that as of December 1 the names had been removed from the books and the total includes 835 Republicans, 621 Democrats and 13 persons who had declined to give their party affiliation.

The total registration in the county is now 37,851, which includes 20,974 Republicans, 16,609 Democrats, 259 who declined, seven Socialists and two, other parties.

New registrations for the month include a total of 74, according to Mr. Kelly, who said the number includes 48 Republicans and 26 Democrats.

Forty-eight persons who died during the past month had their names stricken from the books. The total includes 36 Republicans and 12 Democrats.

Four persons including three Republicans and one Democrat had their names removed from the books by request.

Other figures given by Mr. Kelly show that 27 persons transferred from one district and precinct to another; 11 persons changed party affiliation and five changed name or address only.

Gilchrist Named Attorney For CURA

C. William Gilchrist, local attorney, has been appointed attorney for the Cumberland Urban Renewal Agency, according to William F. DeMare, executive director.

Mr. Gilchrist was appointed to the post at a meeting of the agency Monday night in City Hall.

Buchanan To Speak To LaVale Optimists

Lloyd Buchanan, a member of the LaVale Sanitary Commission, will be the guest speaker at the weekly meeting of the LaVale Optimist Club Monday at 6:30 p.m. at the Continental Restaurant on U.S. Route 40.

Mr. Buchanan will outline the sewage and water plans for the residents of LaVale.

Fuel Ignites After Rig Clips Station Pumps

Property Damaged West Of Frostburg

Volunteer firemen of Grantsville and Frostburg last night responded to a fire which resulted when a parked tractor trailer drifted away and sheared off three gasoline pumps at the Robeson Restaurant and Service Station along U.S. Route 40 nine miles west of Frostburg.

No one was injured, although the cab of the tractor-trailer and a parked car were damaged, as well as the three pumps on an island at the service station.

Allen Broadwater, owner of the restaurant and service station, said Cecil Lamb of Altoona, driver of the tractor-trailer owned by Renner Motor Lines Inc. of Akron, had pulled into the area near the business place and parked the rig.

He went into the restaurant about 6:45 p.m. to eat his dinner. Lamb saw the tractor-trailer drifting back, ran out and reached it just as it hit the three pumps were sheared off.

He got into the cab to move the truck, but when he started the motor the fire broke out. Firemen from Grantsville were summoned and had the fire under control by the time the volunteer firefighters of Frostburg arrived on the scene.

There was no explosion, according to Mr. Broadwater, who said no one was injured. A parked car owned by Edward P. Kennedy of Oak Lawn, Ill., was damaged when it was struck by the rig. Neither the rig nor the car was damaged by the fire, said Mr. Broadwater.

Six Apartment Buildings Set For Bel Air

Applications for permits to construct six apartment buildings on four and one-half acres of the Bel Air development along Route 220 south of here, were filed yesterday with the Allegany County Planning and Zoning Commission.

C. Lee Renaud, director of the commission, said only State Health Department approval is needed for the permits to be issued.

He noted that this is imminent as the Bel Air development already has state-approved water and sewage facilities.

Construction will start immediately on two of the six buildings under the direction Charles Galeano, superintendent of PSW Associates, Washington. One of these estimated to cost $108,000 will contain 18 one- and two-bedroom apartments, while the other will cost $132,000 and have 22 one- and two-bedroom apartments.

Robert H. Downing, of Bel Air Development, said the four and one-half acre tract is located along Route 220 and the buildings will be constructed between the highway and the initial Bel Air street.

The financing is by Metropolitan Life Insurance Company through its correspondent, Weaver Bros. Co. Inc., of Baltimore and Washington.

Three of the permits sought are for $108,000 and the remainder, for $132,000 each, for a total of $720,000 in new construction.

Downing said occupancy is expected by April. After the initial two buildings are completed, work will be started on four more.

The apartments will be of the garden type, two-story and basement, each with a balcony, and all air conditioned. Downing reported rentals by PSW Associates will be from $115 to $135 monthly, with all utilities except electricity included.

A representative of Weaver Bros. said today in Baltimore, the project was undertaken several years ago when an extensive survey showed there was a definite need for modern, moderately-priced apartments in this section.

The two units to be started soon will be the first apartment houses to be constructed in this section in many years.

The architect is Eugene A. Delmar, A.I.A., Silver Spring. Downing reported PSW Associates has constructed 450 apartments in the Washington area.

South End Group To Meet Tuesday

The South Cumberland Business and Civic Association will hold its December meeting Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. at Grace Methodist Church.

The guest speaker will be Grover C. Long, an employe of Allegany Ballistics Laboratory, who will talk on "Challenge of the Space Age."

The board of directors of the association will meet December 17 at 8 p.m. at the Chapel Hill Hose House.

Assigned To School

'Children's Hour' Child Star Jobless Three Years

By ERSKINE JOHNSON
Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — It's a mean, mean, mean, mean world, too.

It is at least, for a pixie-faced, 15-year-old Texas miss who three years ago played the role of a brat in a movie too convincingly.

Her image as a diabolical juvenile is still so vivid that at mere mention of her name directors and producers shrug and say, "THAT child! Why, she must be a monster. The only thing she can play is a brat."

For Karen Balkin of Houston, Tex., it is a heart breaker. She's no longer a child. She's blossomed into a beautiful young lady.

HER FILM DEBUT at 12 as the little girl whose lies ruined the lives of Audrey Hepburn and Shirley MacLaine in "The Children's Hour" was far from her own personality. And she's still just as normal, funloving and happy in disposition as she was three years ago. But at 15 it is difficult to understand movie typecasting.

Karen doesn't understand it at all.

"It was only a performance," she tearfully told me in Houston recently about her role in "The Children's Hour," which brought director William Wyler's enthusiastic words: "Karen is such a natural actress she should never take acting lessons."

"If I can't act, I'm not alive," says Karen. "I'm not a monster and I'm not a brat. I could be playing all kinds of roles, but nothing happens. It has been three years ago. I don't understand."

A PERFORMANCE in "The Bad Seed" at the Houston Playhouse Theater won Karen the movie role. After the film she returned to Houston, where she is now in the ninth grade in public school and saying "I just don't know" when classmates ask her when she will appear in another film.

"We don't understand, either," says her mother, Mrs. Dorothy Balkin. "Karen is a sweet, normal child who wants to act and has proved she can act. This thing is breaking her heart."

It's also breaking the heart of her dad, Sid Balkin. He's a crack public relations man, but changing the image of his only daughter has him stumped.

NO 'MEANIE' — Karen Balkin, 15, is no brat, no monster, no diabolical juvenile. Karen is a normal, well-adjusted, healthy, happy girl—a fine actress since she was 12. She played the role of the little girl who ruined others in "The Children's Hour." Karen played her role so convincingly that she hasn't had a movie bid since.

SHORT TAKES. Sam Goldwyn's 50 classic old movies are due for television next season. After years of hedging, he decided the price is now right.

Bob Hope is slated for minor eye surgery before his Christmas trek to the Middle East . . . Natalie Wood and Arthur Loew Jr., have set the wedding date for February . .

Jerry Lewis' cast television settelment has shrunk to $1,350,000, not $4 million as first reported. That's nice shrinking though, and out of the loot Jerry paid for a full-page advertisement in a movie trade paper saving, in tiny print:

"oops! jerry lewis"

It wasn't original, though. Years ago Frederic March used the same word in the same trade paper via an ad when he starred in a Broadway play which closed after two performances.

"Diamond Head," the novel which became a movie, will become a television series.

Carl Ballantine Gave Up Big Act For Role In TV

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Fellow performers thought it strange when Carl Ballantine gave up one of the most successful acts in show business to become Torpedoman 2nd Class Lester Gruber in "McHale's Navy."

"I think it's kind of strange myself," says the elastic-featured comedian. "I'm losing about $2,000 a week."

As the Amazing Mr. Ballantine, he operated a hilarious, high-paid act in which his card tricks ended as 52-pickup and his disappearing birds became a feathery pulp.

He gave his reasons for joining the ABC comedy that stars Ernest Borgnine: "Theater business was disappearing and so were night clubs, which I don't like to play anyway because they keep me up too late. There were TV guest shots, but how many times can you play Ed Sullivan?

"My biggest pay was from industrial shows, but they don't come along too often."

"Somebody said there was no such thing as small roles; only small actors," he cracked. "I think it was Mickey Rooney. Anyway, it ain't true."

Trouble is, he said the director works not on the star system, but the rank system: The best stuff goes to the commander — Borgnine — captain — Joe Flynn—and ensign—Tim Conway.

"What chance have I got—a torpedoman second class!" Ballantine wailed.

Ballantine still does guest shots as the maladroit magico and plays Hollywood gatherings such as a tax assessors' convention. He plans to stay here whether he keeps sailing with McHale or not.

ACTS SLINKY-SEXY — Singer Connie Francis pooh-poohs the idea that she can act sexy, although her face and figure are eloquent denial. She gives the role her all, however, as the star of a new film, "Looking for Love."

Rose To Film Fame

Alan Young, who stars on the CBS Television Network with the talking horse, "Mister Ed," rose to fame in the film "Androcles and the Lion."

Musical Set For Broadway

NEW YORK (AP) — Looking ahead a season, producers Harold Prince and Fred Coe have lined up Jerome Robbins to stage and choreograph a musical based on Sholem Aleichem's stories, "Tevye's Daughter" and "The Old Country."

The show will be the first Prince-Coe collaboration but will mark reunion of Prince and Robbins, who worked together in "West Side Story." The new musical is being composed by Jerry Bock and Sheldon Harnick, with libretto by Joe Stein. Rehearsals are scheduled to start in June, and Broadway premiere is penciled in for September.

Yule Films By Disney, Grant Okay

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Those two canny film makers, Cary Grant and Walt Disney, have wrapped up a pair of dandy Christmas packages for the nation's theaters.

The attractions are "Charade" and "The Sword in the Stone," and they show the two old masters at their ingenious best.

"Charade" is the type of thing that no one does better than Grant—the sophisticated comedy-adventure. This one turns up four dead bodies before the killer gets his. But even death is treated lightly and doesn't impinge on the general fun.

In his 61st starring film, Grant is once more caught in the middle, with danger on all sides and a gorgeous girl clinging to him.

The girl this time is Audrey Hepburn. She plays a recent widow, whose husband spirited $250,000 of Nazi loot away from OSS buddies during the war.

There are lots of surprises, some rather far-fetched, but the whole thing is carried off in such great style that you don't care.

"The Sword in the Stone" is the first new Disney cartoon feature in two years and one of the better ones. Three years in the making, it is taken from the T. H. White book detailing the formative years of King Arthur.

It is the kind of thing that the Disney artists do best. While the action is principally about humans, there are scenes in which young Arthur is turned into animals by his mentor Merlin and the wicked wizardess Mim; they transform themselves from one creature to another in a brilliant sequence that ranks with the best in animation history.

Few Young Performers Have 'Image'

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —The quest for an "image" among young performers in movietown becomes more difficult every day for the very good reason that most attention-getting devices have been used up.

The Hollywood image is a means the newcomer employs to set himself apart from other hopefuls. Once this is accomplished stardom is close at hand.

Jane Mansfield did it with almost no clothes at all, rising above the pack, as it were, on an inflated bosom.

Take the case of Stephanie Powers, a pretty young thing who is a competent actress with a promising career.

Five will get you ten, or maybe twenty, that you cannot picture Stephanie in your mind's eye. She has a big role in "McLintock" and was the subject of a recent television semi-documentary outlining her climb from obscurity to the threshold of stardom.

But despite her pleasing features, trim figure, dark hair and dark eyes, Stephanie is almost indistinguishable from a dozen other pretty young things on the way up.

A talk with Stephanie reveals there is nothing extraordinary about her. She keeps her private life private. She refuses to date actors to create an aura of glamour. She has a press agent, but refuses to participate in stunts that might lead to extravagant publicity. She is quiet and quite without an image.

Normal Girl

"Maybe I'm an oddity in Hollywood because I'm a normal person," she said, not without a certain amount of logic.

At 21 Stephanie has no steady boyfriend. She is crazy about Mexico and visits Tijuana every possible weekend to see the bullfights.

She does date bullfighters occasionally, but she even refuses to identify which ones she goes out with.

Stephanie, now working in "The New Interns" at Columbia Pictures, behaves as if she were trying to hide something. But she cheerfully admits she has nothing to hide.

Her contemporaries, Tuesday Weld, Sue Lyon and Sandra Dee all have images of one sort or another. Stephanie has none, which, after all, may be something of an image in itself.

Still On Horse

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —George O'Brien, top Western star before World War II, has been cast as a U.S. Cavalry major in "Cheyenne Autumn."

TV CAMEOS: Isaac Kleinerman

"Sherlock Holmes" Of Documentaries

By ED MISURELL

"Film is an odd commodity. You may have to track it down for years," said Isaac Kleinerman, "or you may stumble upon some highly important, little-seen reels with hardly any effort on your part."

The tall, husky, producer of CBS's "The Twentieth Century," one of television's top documentary series, lit a cigarette, leaned back in his New York office momentarily, and then continued. "One of our most exciting programs—depicting the Danish resistance fighters in World War II—was one I stumbled upon.

"I was in Stockholm and told a Swedish colleague that I intended to go to Denmark briefly. He suggested casually that I look at some film on the resistance after I arrived there. Hs didn't seem too enthused, so I debated whether I should, since I was on a tight travel schedule."

Shortly after, while in Denmark, Kleinerman decided that he'd better look at the film just on the chance that it might be interesting. "I almost fell out of my seat," he related. "The material was so good it made a full show for us."

"Then I learned why it was so amazing. Research revealed that the Nazis had decided to make Denmark a model occupation country. The restrictions they imposed were not tough. For propaganda purposes they allowed the Danes to shoot film almost anywhere they pleased. Accordingly, the Danes went wild with cameras.

"They had them with them during many acts of sabotage they committed. The scenes they shot were simply fantastic. You'd think they were faked on a movie lot, they were so beautifully filmed."

Not all such film seen on the weekly series, however, is obtained with such ease. It took about six years of persistent effort on Kleinerman's part to get some of the key footage currently being run on some of this year's programs.

"I knew for a long time that there were more than 150,000,000 feet of film stored in the State Archives in East Berlin," said Kleinerman, "and I was itching to look at it and obtain rights to some of it for our shows. I kept writing to the director and getting nowhere. He just didn't answer.

"While at the British Film Institute in London in July, I mentioned this. The man I was talking with said he knew the director and would write to him about me. Shortly after, I got a call from the director's secretary inviting me to come to East Berlin.

"She said the director was most anxious to meet me," smiled Kleinerman. "Anxious—after six years? The film I finally got was worth all the effort put into routing it out."

"The Twentieth Century" has garnered a total of 38 awards since it went on the air in October 1957. The permanent staff of about 35 is headed by executive producer Burton Benjamin. This is comprised of Kleinerman, office help, researchers and film editors. Writers, directors, cameramen and composers are hired as needed for different segments. At one time there may be as many as four crews working on varied programs.

Each program is preceded by long months of careful research. A typical research report averages 40 single-spaced pages, from which the producers cull enough significant material to make a half-hour show. Eye-witnesses to important events are interviewed in depth and their filmed comments interspersed with historical footage.

Producer Kleinerman has been with the series since its inception. Before that he spent some 20 years, with time out for Army service, working in the movie and TV documentary field. In his present capacity alone he has traveled more than 150,000 miles and viewed millions of feet of film.

"The more film you look at," he said, "the more you come to one conclusion—cameramen are a breed unto themselves. They are intrepid and fearless under extraordinary circumstances."

ON LOCATION—Producer Isaac Kleinerman (left) and narrator Walter Cronkite of "The Twentieth Century" act like a couple of tourists in Germany. Behind them is the infamous Berlin Wall.

FAST WORK BY ACTOR—Broadway actor Alan Dobie and his bride, singer Maureen Scott, arrive at New York's Idlewild Airport last Monday on flight from London where they were wed Sunday morning. Dobie, star of the Broadway play, "Chips with Everything", flew to London after last Saturday night's performance and returned in time for Monday night's show.

U. S.-British Exchange Set

NEW YORK (AP) — An exchange of plays, casts and production ideas has been tentatively worked out between the new Lincoln Center Repertory company and Britain's recently established National Theater.

Harold Clurman, for the repertory group, and Kenneth Tynan, representing the English project, said there have already been discussions about Arthur Miller's latest play, "After the Fall," and Peter Shaffer's "The Royal Hunt of the Sun."

Tina Louise Back

NEW YORK (AP) — Tina Louise is director George Abbott's choice for "the other actress" in "A Girl to Remember," alongside star Carol Burnett.

The musical concerns a pair of Broadway hopefuls who win Hollywood contracts. Miss Louise appeared on Broadway six years ago in "Li'l Abner." The show is slated to arrive at the Mark Hellinger Theater in May.

'Fair Lady' Movie Has Rex As Star

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Rex Harrison has devoted almost five years of his acting career to playing two roles: Henry Higgins and Julius Caesar.

"It's extraordinary," even he must admit.

Academy voters will be balloting on half of Harrison's achievement next spring, and it's very possible that his performance in "Cleopatra" will be named 1963's best.

Right now he is finishing up his 1,007th performance in "My Fair Lady," this one for the screen. He paused for some reflections on his two long-running roles.

"It's difficult to imagine that it is finally coming to an end," he said. "As you near the finish, you start yearning for it to be over. But hard work remains to be done.

"I still have to do 'I've Grown Accustomed to Her Face,' and it's a most difficult number. It helps to explain Higgins and is very important to the plot. On the stage it was easier, because I had built up the mood for myself through doing the rest of the play. In the film I've got to manufacture the feeling out of nowhere."

Harrison played "My Fair Lady" two years in New York and another in London and signed for the movie just a year ago. That he could retain his zest for the role is a tribute to his skill as an actor.

Caesar, to whom Harrison devoted a full year of filming, was something else again.

"I had been hoping to have some time to ease into the role," he said. "But no. For my first scene I was put into a purple toga with those damned gold leaves on my head and plunked into the middle of the bloody Forum with thousands of extras and a lot of senators I had to play lines to.

"I was disastrous, but fortunately very little of it ended up in the picture."

The action moved to more intimate scenes with Elizabeth Taylor and he was able to endow Caesar with some dimension.

Co-star Audrey Hepburn completes her role in "My Fair Lady" this week, and Harrison will be finished as soon as he films the final number. What next?

"I honestly don't know," he said. "It's hard to know what to do after a pair of roles like these."

Sunday Theater Plan Listed For Broadway

NEW YORK (AP) — Alexander H. Cohen is introducing several innovations into Broadway showgoing practice this season.

The producer plans to have Sunday performances with the same ticket price scale for matinee and evening. Monday night and Wednesday afternoon showings would be dropped.

The musical "Ragantino," due in February, will initiate the new policy. "Beyond the Fringe" is to shift also. Because of the heavy demands on the key performer, the current "Man and Boy," starring Charles Boyer, and "Hamlet," which arrives with Richard Burton next spring, are to have single Sunday showings.

'Children's Hour' Child Star Jobless Three Years

By ERSKINE JOHNSON
Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — It's a mean, mean, mean, mean world, too.

It is at least, for a pixie-faced, 15-year-old Texas miss who three years ago played the role of a brat in a movie too convincingly.

Her image as a diabolical juvenile is still so vivid that at mere mention of her name directors and producers shrug and say, "THAT child! Why, she must be a monster. The only thing she can play is a brat."

For Karen Balkin of Houston, Tex., it is a heart breaker. She's no longer a child. She's blossomed into a beautiful young lady.

HER FILM DEBUT at 12 as the little girl whose lies ruined the lives of Audrey Hepburn and Shirley MacLaine in "The Children's Hour" was far from her own personality. And she's still just as normal, funloving and happy in disposition as she was three years ago. But at 15 it is difficult to understand movie typecasting.

Karen doesn't understand it at all.

"It was only a performance," she tearfully told me in Houston recently about her role in "The Children's Hour," which brought director William Wyler's enthusiastic words: "Karen is such a natural actress she should never take acting lessons."

"If I can't act, I'm not alive," says Karen. "I'm not a monster and I'm not a brat. I could be playing all kinds of roles, but nothing happens. It has been three years ago. I don't understand."

A PERFORMANCE in "The Bad Seed" at the Houston Playhouse Theater won Karen the movie role. After the film she returned to Houston, where she is now in the ninth grade in public school and saying "I just don't know" when classmates ask her when she will appear in another film.

"We don't understand, either," says her mother, Mrs. Dorothy Balkin. "Karen is a sweet, normal child who wants to act and has proved she can act. This thing is breaking her heart."

It's also breaking the heart of her dad, Sid Balkin. He's a crack public relations man, but changing the image of his only daughter has him stumped.

NO 'MEANIE' — Karen Balkin, 15, is no brat, no monster, no diabolical juvenile. Karen is a normal, well-adjusted, healthy, happy girl—a fine actress since she was 12. She played the role of the little girl who ruined others in "The Children's Hour." Karen played her role so convincingly that she hasn't had a movie bid since.

SHORT TAKES. Sam Goldwyn's 50 classic old movies are due for television next season. After years of hedging, he decided the price is now right.

Bob Hope is slated for minor eye surgery before his Christmas trek to the Middle East . . . Natalie Wood and Arthur Loew Jr., have set the wedding date for February . .

Jerry Lewis' cast television settlement has shrunk to $1,350,000, not $4 million as first reported. That's nice shrinking though, and out of the loot Jerry paid for a full-page advertisement in a movie trade paper saying, in tiny print:

"oops! jerry lewis"

It wasn't original, though. Years ago Frederic March used the same word in the same trade paper via an ad when he starred in a Broadway play which closed after two performances.

"Diamond Head," the novel which became a movie, will become a television series.

Carl Ballantine Gave Up Big Act For Role In TV

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Fellow performers thought it strange when Carl Ballantine gave up one of the most successful acts in show business to become Torpedoman 2nd Class Lester Gruber in "McHale's Navy."

"I think it's kind of strange myself," says the elastic-featured comedian. "I'm losing about $2,000 a week."

As the Amazing Mr. Ballantine, he operated a hilarious, high-paid act in which his card tricks ended as 52-pickup and his disappearing birds became a feathery pulp.

He gave his reasons for joining the ABC comedy that stars Ernest Borgnine: "Theater business was disappearing and so were night clubs, which I don't like to play anyway because they keep me up too late. There were TV guest shots, but how many times can you play Ed Sullivan?

"My biggest pay was from industrial shows, but they don't come along too often."

"Somebody said there was no such thing as small roles; only small actors," he cracked. "I think it was Mickey Rooney. Anyway, it ain't true."

Trouble is, he said the director works not on the star system, but the rank system: The best stuff goes to the commander — Borgnine — captain — Joe Flynn—and ensign—Tim Conway.

"What chance have I got—a torpedoman second class!" Ballantine wailed.

Ballantine still does guest shots as the maladroit magico and plays Hollywood gatherings such as a tax assessors' convention. He plans to stay here whether he keeps sailing with McHale or not.

ACTS SLINKY-SEXY — Singer Connie Francis pooh-poohs the idea that she can act sexy, although her face and figure are eloquent denial. She gives the role her all, however, as the star of a new film, "Looking for Love."

Rose To Film Fame

Alan Young, who stars on the CBS Television Network with the talking horse, "Mister Ed," rose to fame in the film "Androcles and the Lion."

Musical Set For Broadway

NEW YORK (AP) — Looking ahead a season, producers Harold Prince and Fred Coe have lined up Jerome Robbins to stage and choreograph a musical based on Sholem Aleichem's stories, "Tevye's Daughter" and "The Old Country."

The show will be the first Prince-Coe collaboration but will mark reunion of Prince and Robbins, who worked together in "West Side Story." The new musical is being composed by Jerry Bock and Sheldon Harnick, with libretto by Joe Stein. Rehearsals are scheduled to start in June, and Broadway premiere is penciled in for September.

Yule Films By Disney, Grant Okay

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Those two canny film makers, Cary Grant and Walt Disney, have wrapped up a pair of dandy Christmas packages for the nation's theaters.

The attractions are "Charade" and "The Sword in the Stone," and they show the two old masters at their ingenious best.

"Charade" is the type of thing that no one does better than Grant—the sophisticated comedy-adventure. This one turns up four dead bodies before the killer gets his. But even death is treated lightly and doesn't impinge on the general fun.

In his 61st starring film, Grant is once more caught in the middle, with danger on all sides and a gorgeous girl clinging to him.

The girl this time is Audrey Hepburn. She plays a recent widow, whose husband spirited $250,000 of Nazi loot away from OSS buddies during the war.

There are lots of surprises, some rather far-fetched, but the whole thing is carried off in such great style that you don't care.

"The Sword in the Stone" is the first new Disney cartoon feature in two years and one of the better ones. Three years in the making, it is taken from the T. H. White book detailing the formative years of King Arthur.

It is the kind of thing that the Disney artists do best. While the action is principally about humans, there are scenes in which young Arthur is turned into animals by his mentor Merlin and the wicked wizardess Mim; they transform themselves from one creature to another in a brilliant sequence that ranks with the best in animation history.

Few Young Performers Have 'Image'

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —The quest for an "image" among young performers in movietown becomes more difficult every day for the very good reason that most attention-getting devices have been used up.

The Hollywood image is a means the newcomer employs to set himself apart from other hopefuls. Once this is accomplished stardom is close at hand.

Jane Mansfield did it with almost no clothes at all, rising above the pack, as it were, on an inflated bosom.

Errol Flynn distinguished himself as a great lover. Veronica Lake made it on a kookie hairdo.

Almost everything imaginable has been exploited. What's left is either illegal or in such bad taste even a striving starlet would just as soon look elsewhere.

Take the case of Stephanie Powers, a pretty young thing who is a competent actress with a promising career.

Five will get you ten, or maybe twenty, that you cannot picture Stephanie in your mind's eye. She has a big role in "McLintock" and was the subject of a recent television semi-documentary outlining her climb from obscurity to the threshold of stardom.

But despite her pleasing features, trim figure, dark hair and dark eyes, Stephanie is almost indistinguishable from a dozen other pretty young things on the way up.

A talk with Stephanie reveals there is nothing extraordinary about her. She keeps her private life private. She refuses to date actors to create an aura of glamour. She has a press agent, but refuses to participate in stunts that might lead to extravagant publicity. She is quiet and quite without an image.

Normal Girl

"Maybe I'm an oddity in Hollywood because I'm a normal person," she said, not without a certain amount of logic.

At 21 Stephanie has no steady boyfriend. She is crazy about Mexico and visits Tijuana every possible weekend to see the bullfights.

She does date bullfighters occasionally, but she even refuses to identify which ones she goes out with.

Stephanie, now working in "The New Interns" at Columbia Pictures, behaves as if she were trying to hide something. But she cheerfully admits she has nothing to hide.

Her contemporaries, Tuesday Weld, Sue Lyon and Sandra Dee all have images of one sort or another. Stephanie has none, which, after all, may be something of an image in itself.

Still On Horse

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —George O'Brien, top Western star before World War II, has been cast as a U.S. Cavalry major in "Cheyenne Autumn."

TV CAMEOS: Isaac Kleinerman

"Sherlock Holmes" Of Documentaries

By ED MISURELL

"Film is an odd commodity. You may have to track it down for years," said Isaac Kleinerman, "or you may stumble upon some highly important, little-seen reels with hardly any effort on your part."

The tall, husky, producer of CBS's "The Twentieth Century," one of television's top documentary series, lit a cigarette, leaned back in his New York office momentarily, and then continued. "One of our most exciting programs—depicting the Danish resistance fighters in World War II—was one I stumbled upon.

"I was in Stockholm and told a Swedish colleague that I intended to go to Denmark briefly. He suggested casually that I look at some film on the resistance after I arrived there. Hs didn't seem too enthused, so I debated whether I should, since I was on a tight travel schedule."

Shortly after, while in Denmark, Kleinerman decided that he'd better look at the film just on the chance that it might be interesting. "I almost fell out of my seat," he related. "The material was so good it made a full show for us."

"Then I learned why it was so amazing. Research revealed that the Nazis had decided to make Denmark a model occupation country. The restrictions they imposed were not tough. For propaganda purposes they allowed the Danes to shoot film almost anywhere they pleased. Accordingly, the Danes went wild with cameras.

"They had them with them during many acts of sabotage they committed. The scenes they shot were simply fantastic. You'd think they were faked on a movie lot, they were so beautifully filmed."

Special Equipment Used In Covering JFK Funeral

For filming President Kennedy's cortege and the ceremony in Arlington Cemetery, NBC had to bring into Washington 20 special lenses for distance shots. NBC Washington ordinarily has one such lens. The critical camera photographing Richard Cardinal Cushing delivering the service at Arlington was 250 feet away from him, so as not to intrude on the dignity of the service. A special, 80-inch telephoto lens was flown from Japan for this task.

Special Equipment Used In Covering JFK Funeral

For filming President Kennedy's cortege and the ceremony in Arlington Cemetery, NBC had to bring into Washington 20 special lenses for distance shots. NBC Washington ordinarily has one such lens. The critical camera photographing Richard Cardinal Cushing delivering the service at Arlington was 250 feet away from him, so as not to intrude on the dignity of the service. A special, 80-inch telephoto lens was flown from Japan for this task.

Travelers Overseas Face Many Tipping Practices

By MURRAY J. BROWN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Including a fixed gratuity charge on bills seems like an easy way to solve the tipping problem for American overseas travelers unfamiliar with local practices.

But you can get an argument from some tourists as to whether it does not not.

Such package-plan tipping is widespread in Europe, Asia and Latin America. The charges can run from 10 to 25 per cent on hotel, food, bar and similar bills. They usually go into a general fund which is distributed to the various employes, such as bellboys, porters, waiters, bartenders, chambermaids, and other service personnel.

In addition to the fixed assessment, veteran travelers customarily leave a little extra as a token of appreciation for little extra services.

Most Americans are generous tippers and more often are guilty of overtipping rather than undertipping. One longtime American resident in London complained that American tourists are "spoiling" the English and other Europeans by tipping too much.

He noted that British wage standards are much lower than those in the United States and that tips should be adjusted accordingly. The same holds true in other foreign countries, he said.

A good rule of the thumb in England, he said, is to figure the shilling tip (actually about 14 cents) equivalent to a 25 cent tip at home.

Then, an American woman touring Europe alone on an all-inclusive package plan said she often was forced to dig into her purse again and give more than she originally intended because of a glowering waiter porter.

Americans are not the only complainers. A spokesman for the world's airlines which depend on tourism for survival complained recently about the gantlet of outstretched palms travelers often must run.

Sir William P. Hildred, director-general of the International Air Transportation Association, told IATA delegates meeting a European capital:

"Headwaiters, porters, head porters, chambermaids, liftmen (elevator operators) ubiquitous door boys, concierges in white gloves and smiles like benevolent tigers flood the foyer to speed the parting guest and hypnotize him into forgetting that there is already 15 to 20 per cent on his bill to take care of them."

In most countries, regulations provide that hotels, restaurants, cafes and other establishments must let guests know if gratuities and service charges are added to the bill. Hotels usually do so by a poster in the lobby or on cards in rooms which also carry the price of the room and government and other taxes if any. Restaurants and cafes generally include a notation on menus.

But some first-time travelers claimed they did not know what the extra charge was for until after paying the bill. They said the advisories often are printed in native languages with which they are not familiar or so inconspicous that they was overlooked and they tipped for services as they do at home.

One sure way to find out whether the charges are included is to ask the hotel clerk, head waiter or some other ranking personnel before registering or ordering.

In some countries, it is common practice that service and-or gratuity charges must be added to the tab. In others, individual hotels and restaurants may set their own policy. For instance, Lond's Claridge's includes charges; the Westbury does not.

There are other places where the tourist has the choice of tipping on his own.

Laurel Mt. Ski Area Has New Manager

A "new look" is the promise for the Laurel Mountain Ski Area, Inc., as Annette and Alan Patterson of Pittsburgh signed a lease with the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to operate the popular tri-state ski resort located in the mountains above Ligonier.

The slopes, first in the state, were established in 1939 by General Richard K. Mellon and his sister, Mrs. Sara M. Scaife. In cooperation with the Pennsylvania Department of Commerce, the ski area was leased to the Commonwealth in a move to stimulate the state's tourist and recreation program. The Pattersons are operating the slopes on a ten-year renewable lease.

A busy program of improvements is underway by the Pattersons, who are determined to uphold the area's reputation as "The Ski Capital of Pennsylvania." Since taking possession on the first of November, the new operators have begun the installation of lights for night skiing, constructed an ice skating pond, cut and cleared a new intermediate trail and established new safety features including the purchase of two-way radio communications for the Ski Patrol. An expanded ski shop and improved restaurant facilities are also promised as part of the face-lifting program at the 23-year old winter resort.

Efforts are underway to coordinate hotel and motel accommodations in the Ligonier area for the convenience of visiting skiers, with a planned program of skiing activities now being prepared for future announcement.

Foreign Dining An Adventure

By MURRAY J. BROWN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dining out can be a treat even when home. It can be an enjoyable adventure when traveling in foreign lands.

The American, if so inclined, can get ham and eggs, hamburger and onions or steak (rare) and potatoes in Rome, Paris, Brussels, London and elsewhere. It's surprising how many restaurants and cafes abroad offer "Ameriran-style" food and coking.

The heritage of most countries often is reflected in their cuisine. The traveler can make dining out one of the highlights of his visit by trying traditional national dishes and delicacies.

In England, it could be roasts, game pies, fish-and-chips, or even a boar's head. In France, escargots (snails), frog legs or onion soup. In Italy, fettuccine, vitello or pollo al cartoccio (veal chop of chicken cooked in paper). In Belgium, Brussels sprouts, waterzooie de poulet (chicken boiled in soup) or fried eels.

Here are a few suggestions from American Express on how to help make adventures-in-eating most rewarding:

—Ask the hotel concierge to recommend several good restaurants and specify the price range you are interested in.

—Ask the waiter what the specialities of the house are. Also inquire from him or the wine steward what wines they recommend for the various dishes. Wine with meals is virtually a must throughout Europe.

—Don't expect the instant service you may be used to at home. Many dishes are cooked to order and dinner can stretch out for hours.

—Check on the dining hours since they vary in different countries. In Italy and other countries with a mid-day siesta, some restaurants don't start serving dinner until around 8 p.m.

—Make it a hobby to "collect" internationally known restaurants or off-beat bistros where ancient traditions still exist.

—Collect books on foreign foods and wines to add an international favor to home entertaining and cooking. Many are fascinating travel books as well.

—Do some advance reading on the countries you plan to visit, their native dishes and food customs.

The tourist also should remember to dress for dinner just as he would if stepping out at home. Formal clothes generally are not necessary. But don't be too surprised if the maitre d'hotel turns you away with a "sorry, all tables are reserved" if you show up for dinner without a coat and tie or in sweater and slacks.

Many Americans making their first trip abroad are not aware that service charges—up to 25 per cent—are generally added to the bill. Ask the waitor or maitre d'. If the charge is included but the service has been particularly good, you may leave an additional tip. And if you have had wine, the sommelier will expect a tip of about 10 per cent of the cost of the bottle or bottles.

There are some peculiar local practices, too. For instance, you may find yourself assessed the service charge in a sidewalk cafe, the service charge plus a cover charge if you sit at a table inside, and neither service charge nor the cover charge if you sit at the food counter.

Bills will be figured in the local currency although many places will accept U.S. dollars. However, it is a good idea to carry a currency conversion table because the rate of exchange differs from country to country.

Even more important it will help avoid such embarrassing and undiplomatic "Ugly American" remarks like: "How much is that in REAL money."

World's Fair Tickets Are Now On Sale

Some 75 million people are expected to visit the 1964-65 New York World's Fair and if you order your tickets now a savings of $5 can be had.

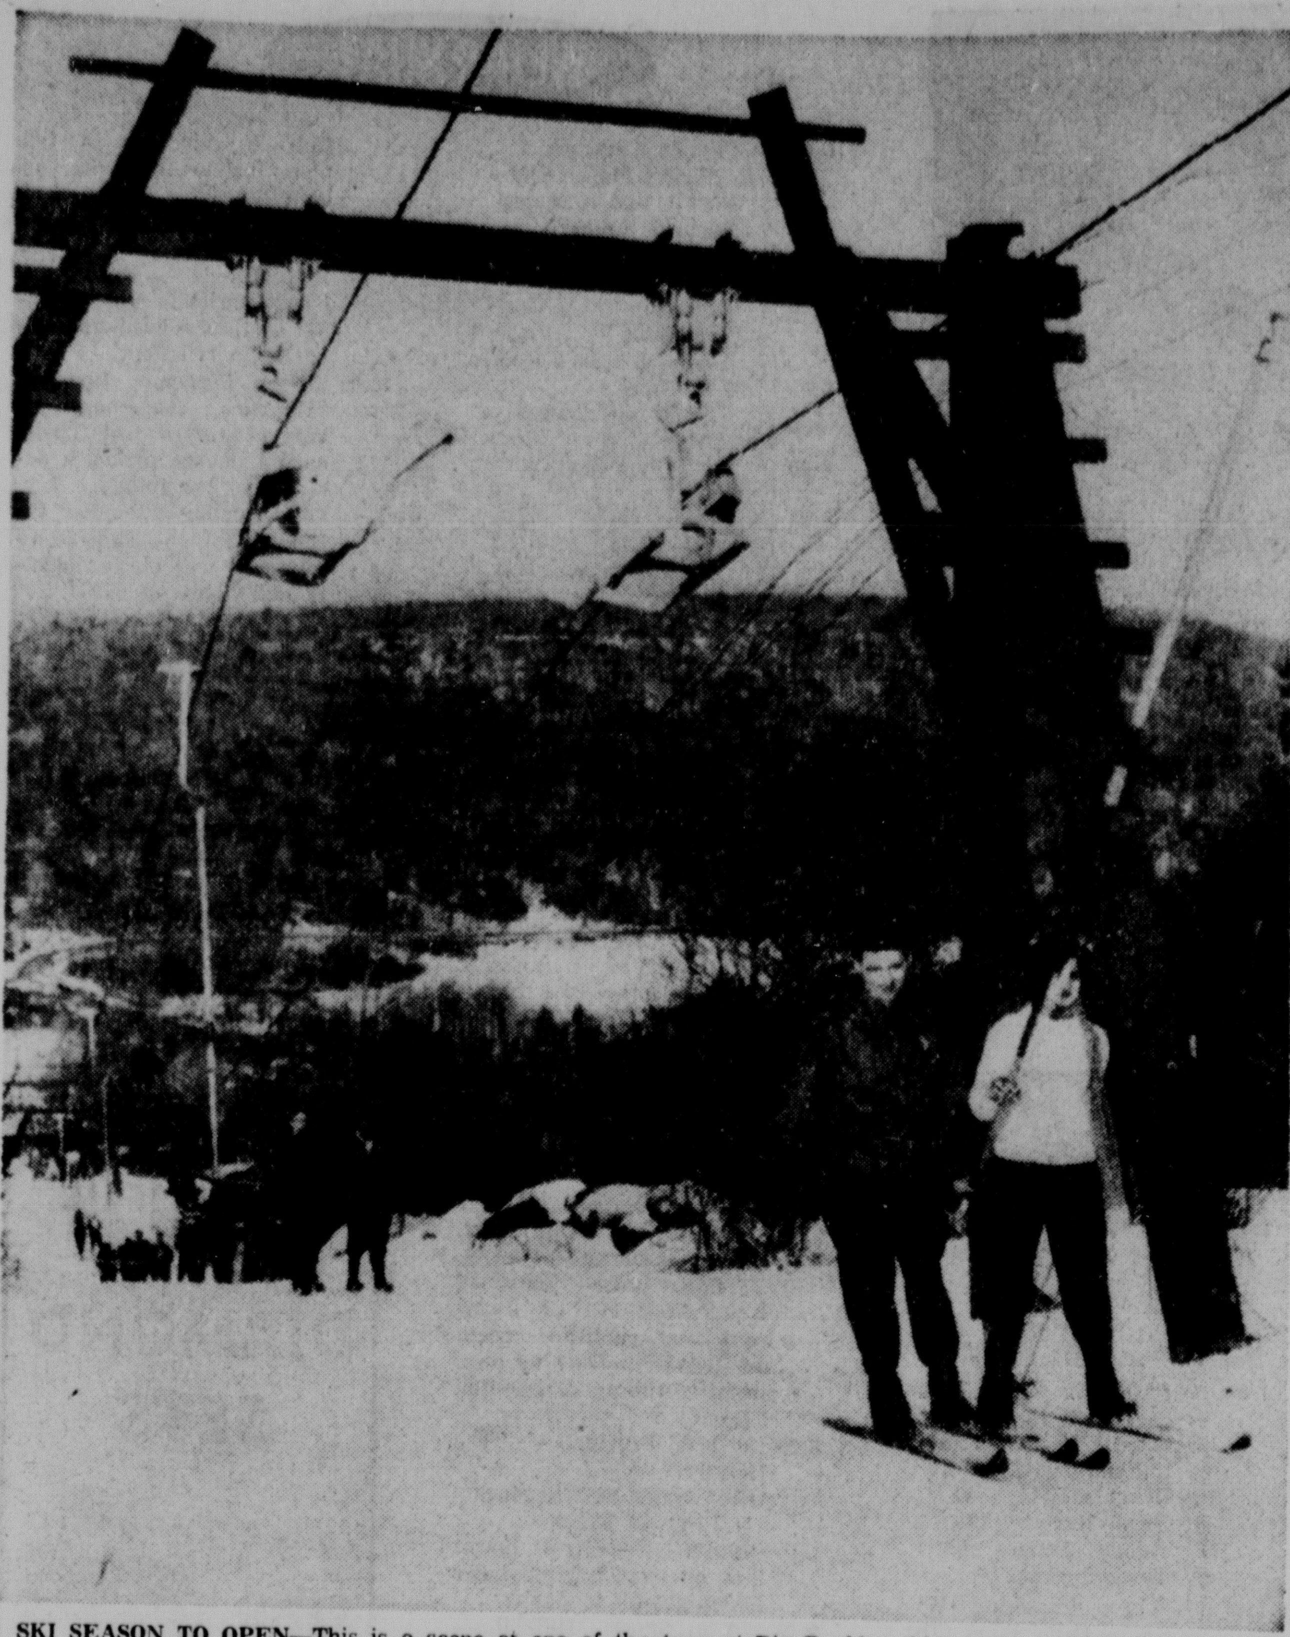
For $10.10 you can buy a package of seven adult tickets (total value $14) plus one certificate exchangeable at the Fair for the Official Fair Guide Book (value $1).

To order write: Official N. Y. World's Fair Gift Package, New York World's Fair 1964-65 Corp., P. O. Box 1964, Flushing 52, New York, Attn: Edwin Witt, Comptroller.

You can order as many packages as you like but be sure to enclose a check or money order. Dates for the Fair are April 22 to October 18, 1964, and April 21 to October 17, 1965.

Tumblin Tumbleweed

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—That tumbleweed rolling across the fields isn't just tumbling idly. Farm advisor Ralph LaRue says one plant of Russian thistle may spill as many as 24,700 seeds while it spins along.



SKI SEASON TO OPEN—This is a scene at one of the tows at Big Boulder ski area near White Haven and Split Rock in Pennsylvania's famous Pocono Mountains. This ski site is one of the many which will open this month in nearby Pennsylvania, Maryland and West Virginia.

Easter Tour Is Planned To Holy Land

American Express' 1964 Easter tour to the Holy Land will be highlighted by a variety of ceremonies in which tour members will participate.

The 21-day tour, which departs from New York March 22, also features visits to the famous shrines at Lourdes and Lisieux, as well as visits to Israel, Rome, Nice and Paris. The tour will be under the spiritual leadership of Father Raymond F. Rustige, associate editor of the St. Louis Review, official newspaper of the St. Louis Archdiocese.

Included in the Holy Week rites are the procession and ceremony reenacting the removal of Christ's body from the Cross and burial in the Holy Sepulchre; participation in the Franciscan Fathers' Torchlight Procession, and Pontifical Mass at Christ's Tomb in the Holy Sepulchre. Tour members will assist or participate in each of these events and will also visit a number of other biblical sites.

During the Rome visit, tour members will visit the four major Basilicas, and an audience with Pope Paul VI will be requested through the North American College in Rome.

An eight-day extension tour to Barcelona, Madrid and Lisbon is also available. This includes a full-day tour to the Shrine of Fatima.

Inquiries and applications are being accepted at all American Express offices.

New Area In Skyline Park Being Readied

BY SUMMER of 1964, a new campground and picnic area will be ready for visitors at Loft Mountain, in the little-used south section of Shenandoah National Park, the Interior Department has announced.

The two-way entrance road at mile 79.3 on the road at mile 79.3 on the Skyline Drive, the parking area, and the development's circulatory roads are presently about half completed.

Work will soon start on the campground and picnic area, with a total of 250 sites, of which about 170 will be campsites. This will provide picnicking and camping facilities in one of the wildest and most interesting sections of the park, at an elevation of about 3400 feet above sea level.

Located in the Blue Ridge Mountains, Shenandoah National Park is one of the Nation's beauty spots in the East, with forests, mountain peaks, meadows, streams and waterfalls, and a large variety of shrubs and wildflowers. Within its boundaries are 60 peaks that rise 3000 to 4000 feet.

Starting near Front Royal, the Skyline Drive winds near the crest of the Blue Ridge for 105 miles. Along the Drive are 75 parking overlooks providing panoramic views of the Virginia Piedmont to the east and the Shenandoah River Valley to the west. Parallel to the Drive is part of the famous 2000-mile, Maine-to-Georgia Appalachian Trail.

The Park has been a sightseeing, camping, hiking and vacation attraction for the metropolitan areas of Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Richmond, ever since it opened in 1935.

Blue Knob Ski Centre To Be Dedicated Today

Blue Knob Ski Centre near Bedford, Pa., will be dedicated at ceremonies today at 1:30 p. m.

Guests for the ceremonies will be Miss Lynne Kegley of Somerset County who is Miss Pennsylvania of 1963, and Don Hoak, former Pittsburgh Pirates baseball player who is now with the Philadelphia Phillies.

The principal speaker will be Dr. Maurice K. Goddard, Pennsylvania Secretary of Forests and Waters.

Miss Kegley will narrate a fashion show between 2 and 4 p.m. and Hoak will be accompanied by his wife, the former Jill Corey, radio, television and movie personality.

Others planning to attend the opening of the new ski area are Congressman Irving Whalley, secretary to Gov. William Scranton, and Miss Penny Pitou, former double silver Olympic medal winner at Squaw Valley, who now operates a ski school at Laconia, N.H.

Today will mark the first day of operation of the ski area which is located about 21 miles from Bedford. Facilities at Blue Knob include several slopes for various classes of skiers. The area also has a snow machine for use on the trails.

On December 21-23 Blue Knob will be host for the U.S.E.A.S.A. Junior Race Camp.

Meanwhile, another new skiing area is being constructed in the Harrisburg-York area near Dillsburg, Pa., where the Blair Mountain Ski Corporation has purchased 116 acres of land and work is well under way.

This area to be known as the Blair Mountain Ski Area will have a drop of 410 feet, snow makers capable of covering 240,000 square feet in 10 hours and two downhill trails of 2,500 feet. The main tow will be 2,100 feet long and capable of carrying 1,000 skiers per hour. There will be a chalet type lodge, a restaurant and every effort is being made to provide the skier with a modern, fully equipped winter resort.

The Blair Mountain Ski Area will open this month and will provide the Harrisburg-York area with its first winter sports area.

Both the Blue Knob Ski Centre and the Blair Mountain Area are included in the latest "Ski Area Directory," Pennsylvania '63/64 which is available from the Vacation and Travel Development Bureau, Department of Commerce Harrisburg, Pa.

Activities Set This Week At Civic Center

A number of activities are scheduled next week at the Baltimore Civic Center.

A professional basketball game between the Baltimore Bullets and the Boston Celtics will be played at the Civic Center today at 8 p.m.

On Tuesday, December 10, the Stars of the Bolshoi Ballet will perform at 8:30 p.m. and a professional wrestling show will be held the following night at 8:30 p.m.

Baltimore's professional hockey team, the Clippers, will play the Quebec Aces on Friday, December 13 at 8 p.m. and the next night the Ballet Folkorico of Mexico will present a show at 8:30 p.m.

Airline Starts Long Flights

Pan American Airways now has one of the world's longest non-stop jet flights between New York and Buenos Aires. Giant Boeing fan-jets making the 5,445-mile trip in 10½ hours, cut two hours from present travel time.

The flights, linking the largest cities in North and South America, are 800 miles longer than the airline distance between New York and Moscow.

Top Pan Am officials and leaders in travel and commerce between the Americas will be aboard inaugural flights in each direction.

'Adopt-A-Ship' Program Popular With Youngsters

The "Adopt-A-Ship" program is sponsored by The Propeller Club aided by participating United States flag steamship companies. With Moore-McCormack's 44 ships, the program totals 322 ships. The school children send their questions to the Masters who have voluntarily enrolled and who reply with details of staff, cargoes, and countries visited. Many teachers use this information in class work. Emphasis is placed, too, on the importance of the merchant fleet to people and industries in the students' areas.

Grade school classes in all 50 states have "adopted" United States merchant ships and there is a waiting list of applicants from over 300 classes for whom no ships are currently available.

Moore-McCormack's fleet serves four continents with ships sailing from all North American coasts to South America, Europe, and Africa on essential trade routes.

Producer Takes Show To England

NEW YORK (UPI) — There has been much talk about the number of British attractions imported for Broadway, but Harold Prince not only exports to London—he does his own producing there.

His "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum," still current here at the Alvin Theater, opened in London during the fall to one of the most enthusiastic receptions ever given an American musical Early next year he will give London a duplicate of his "She Loves Me," now at the Eugene O'Neill Theater.

The 35-year-old producer, who has such successes as "Fiorello!" "Damn Yankees," and "The Pajama Game" in his past, has two British partners for his overseas operations. They are Tony Walton, set and costume designer and husband of star Julie Andrews, and Richard Pilbrow, a lighting expert.

Prince was so distressed with the botch a London producer made of "Fiorello!" when that Pulitzer Prize musical was duplicated by a British company that he decided to set up his own office in London.

Asked about the differences in producing here and in England, Prince replied:

"There is no difference at all any more. Television entertainment has resulted in Londoners patronizing only the better things in the theater. Just as here, you either have a quick hit or a quick flop.

"And I'm happy to say that there is a great pool of acting talent for musicals in England now. Ten years ago there was not. This is expecially true where dancers are concerned. When we did 'West Side Story' in London a few years ago, we had to take dancers over there from New York. Not any more.

"Interest in the musical idiom is high, and British actors generally are not above getting some training that will enable them to work in musicals when the opportunity comes along.

"We are quite excited about 'Forum' duplicating its New York success in London. The advance bookings at the Strand Theater are enormous. The show followed about the same pattern as it did here in the tryout phase. We felt it would be popular after Oxford, but we did terrible business in Manchester. Here we were a hit in New Haven and only so-so in Washington. Then, of course, came the wonderful receptions in New York and London.

"The Golden Age," a dramatized reading by four actors using various materials from England's Elizabethan era, and "Once for the Asking," a weak comedy about persons being granted their prime wishes for 24 hours, were quick Broadway failures in November.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dining out can be a treat even when home. It can be an enjoyable adventure when traveling in foreign lands.

The American, if so inclined, can get ham and eggs, hamburger and onions or steak (rare) and potatoes in Rome, Paris, Brussels, London and elsewhere. It's surprising how many restaurants and cafes abroad offer "Ameriran-style" food and coking.

The heritage of most countries often is reflected in their cuisine. The traveler can make dining out one of the highlights of his visit by trying traditional national dishes and delicacies.

In England, it could be roasts, game pies, fish - and- chips, or even a boar's head. In France, escargots (snails), frog legs or onion soup. In Italy, fettuccine, vitello or pollo al cartoccio (veal chop of chicken cooked in paper). In Belgium, Brussels sprouts, waterzooie de poulet (chicken boiled in soup) or fried eels.

Here are a few suggestions from American Express on how to help make adventures-in-eating most rewarding:

—Ask the hotel concierge to recommend several good restaurants and specify the price range you are interested in.

—Ask the waiter what the specialities of the house are. Also inquire from him or the wine steward what wines they recommend for the various dishes. Wine with meals is virtually a must throughout Europe.

—Don't expect the instant service you may be used to at home. Many dishes are cooked to order and dinner can stretch out for hours.

—Check on the dining hours since they vary in different countries. In Italy and other countries with a mid-day siesta, some restaurants don't start serving dinner until around 8 p.m.

—Make it a hobby to "collect" internationally known restaurants or off-beat bistros where ancient traditions still exist.

—Collect books on foreign foods and wines to add an international favor to home entertaining and cooking. Many are fascinating travel books as well.

—Do some advance reading on the countries you plan to visit, their native dishes and food customs.

The tourist also should remember to dress for dinner just as he would if stepping out at home. Formal clothes generally are not necessary. But don't be too surprised if the maitre d'hotel turns you away with a "sorry, all tables are reserved" if you show up for dinner without a coat and tie or in sweater and slacks.

Many Americans making their first trip abroad are not aware that service charges—up to 25 per cent—are generally added to the bill. Ask the waitor or maitre d'. If the charge is included but the service has been particularly good, you may leave an additional tip. And if you have had wine, the sommelier will expect a tip of about 10 per cent of the cost of the bottle or bottles.

There are some peculiar local practices, too. For instance, you may find yourself assessed the service charge in a sidewalk cafe, the service charge plus a cover charge if you sit at a table inside, and neither service charge nor the cover charge if you sit at the food counter.

Bills will be figured in the local currency although many places will accept U.S. dollars. However, it is a good idea to carry a currency conversion table because the rate of exchange differs from country to country.

Even more important it will help avoid such embarrassing and undiplomatic "Ugly American" remarks like: "How much is that in REAL money."

World's Fair Tickets Are Now On Sale

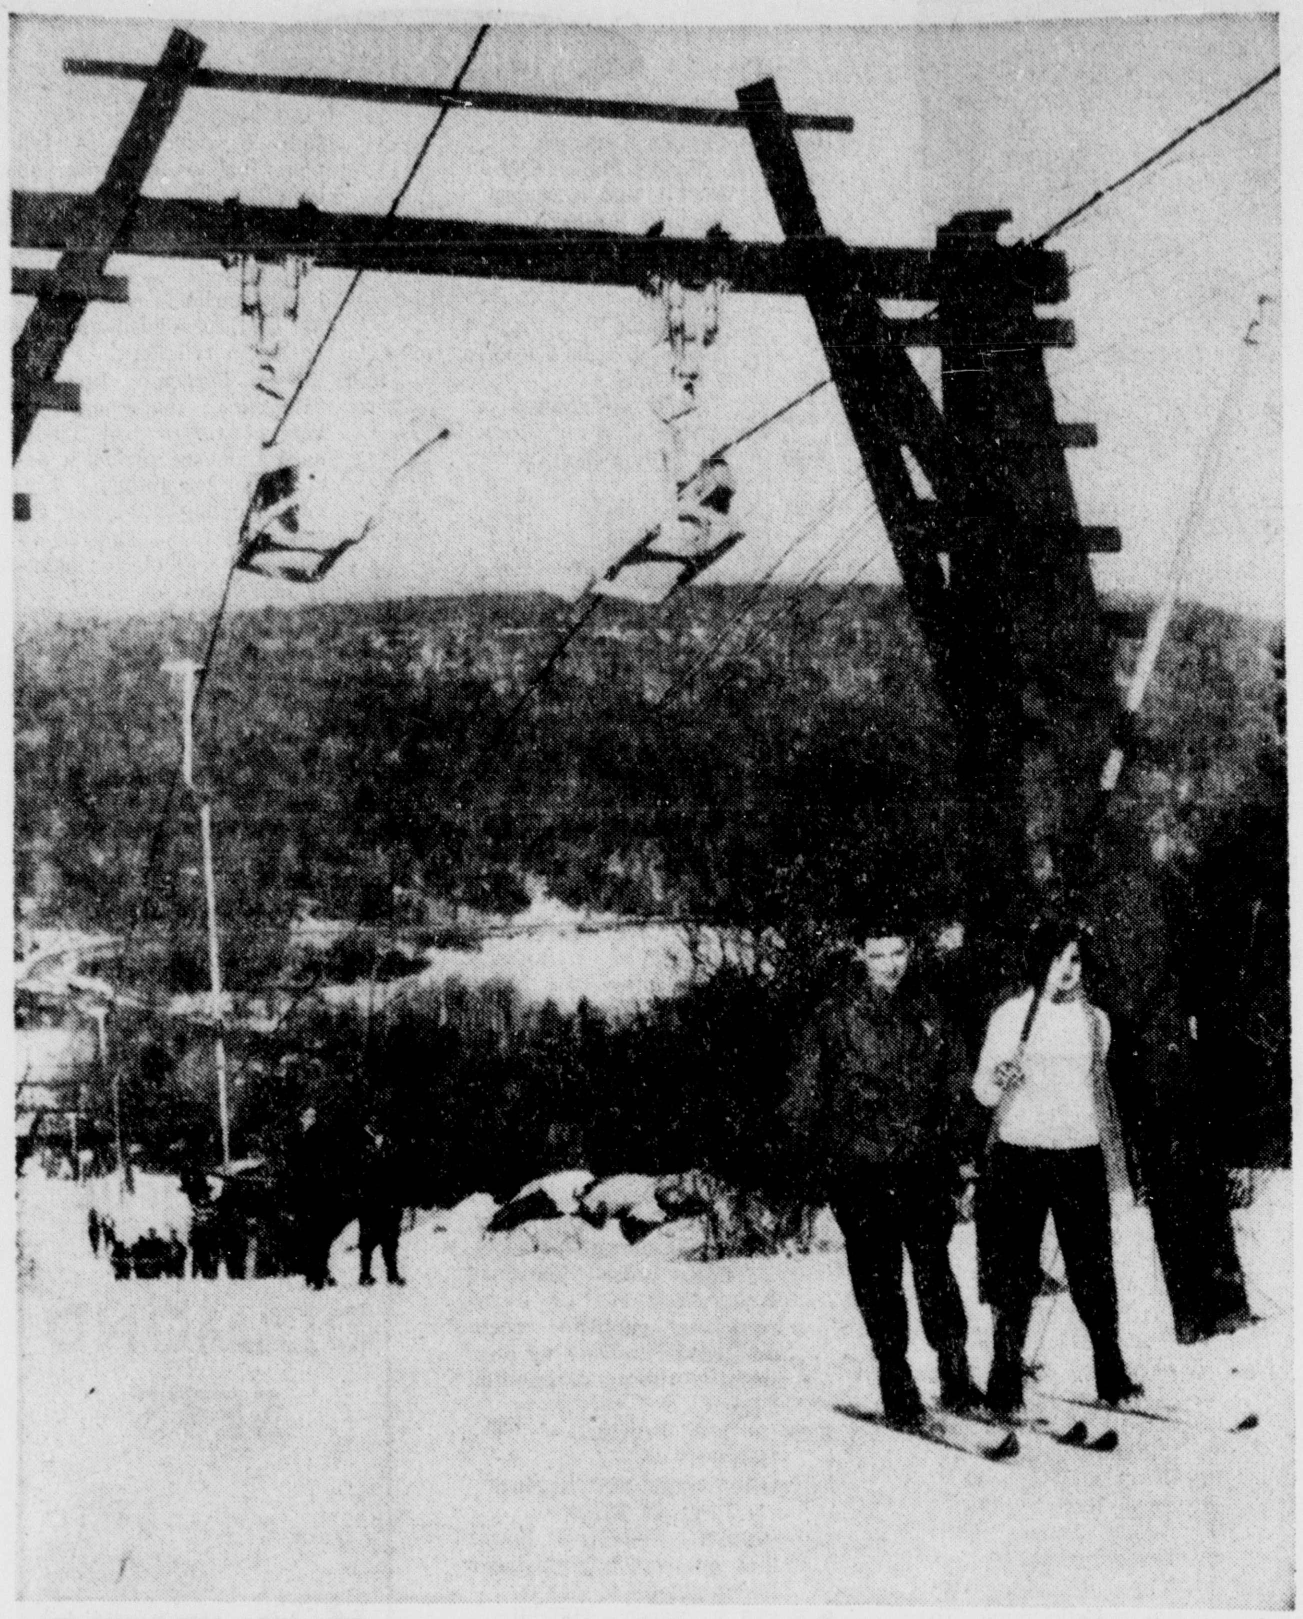
Tumblin Tumbleweed

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—That tumbleweed rolling across the fields isn't just tumbling idly. Farm advisor Ralph LaRue says one plant of Russian thistle may spill as many as 24,700 seeds while it spins along.



SKI SEASON TO OPEN—This is a scene at one of the tows at Big Boulder ski area near White Haven and Split Rock in Pennsylvania's famous Pocono Mountains. This ski site is one of the many which will open this month in nearby Pennsylvania, Maryland and West Virginia.

Easter Tour Is Planned To Holy Land

American Express' 1964 Easter tour to the Holy Land will be highlighted by a variety of ceremonies in which tour members will participate.

The 21-day tour, which departs from New York March 22, also features visits to the famous shrines at Lourdes and Lisieux, as well as visits to Israel, Rome, Nice and Paris. The tour will be under the spiritual leadership of Father Raymond F. Rustige, associate editor of the St. Louis Review, official newspaper of the St. Louis Archdiocese.

Included in the Holy Week rites are the procession and ceremony reenacting the removal of Christ's body from the Cross and burial in the Holy Sepulchre; participation in the Franciscan Fathers' Torchlight Procession, and Pontifical Mass at Christ's Tomb in the Holy Sepulchre. Tour members will assist or participate in each of these events and will also visit a number of other biblical sites.

During the Rome visit, tour members will visit the four major Basilicas, and an audience with Pope Paul VI will be requested through the North American College in Rome.

An eight-day extension tour to Barcelona, Madrid and Lisbon is also available. This includes a full-day tour to the Shrine of Fatima.

Inquiries and applications are being accepted at all American Express offices.

New Area In Skyline Park Being Readied

BY SUMMER of 1964, a new campground and picnic area will be ready for visitors at Loft Mountain, in the little-used south section of Shenandoah National Park, the Interior Department has announced.

The two-way entrance road at mile 79.3 on the road at mile 79.3 on the Skyline Drive, the parking area, and the development's circulatory roads are presently about half completed.

Work will soon start on the campground and picnic area, with a total of 250 sites, of which about 170 will be campsites. This will provide picnicking and camping facilities in one of the wildest and most interesting sections of the park, at an elevation of about 3400 feet above sea level.

Located in the Blue Ridge Mountains, Shenandoah National Park is one of the Nation's beauty spots in the East, with forests, mountain peaks, meadows, streams and waterfalls, and a large variety of shrubs and wildflowers. Within its boundaries are 60 peaks that rise 3000 to 4000 feet.

Starting near Front Royal, the Skyline Drive winds near the crest of the Blue Ridge for 105 miles. Along the Drive are 75 parking overlooks providing panoramic views of the Virginia Piedmont to the east and the Shenandoah River Valley to the west. Parallel to the Drive is part of the famous 2000-mile, Maine-to-Georgia Appalachian Trail.

The Park has been a sightseeing, camping, hiking and vacation attraction for the metropolitan areas of Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Richmond, ever since it opened in 1935.

Blue Knob Ski Centre To Be Dedicated Today

Blue Knob Ski Centre near Bedford, Pa., will be dedicated at ceremonies today at 1:30 p. m.

Guests for the ceremonies will be Miss Lynne Kegley of Somerset County who is Miss Pennsylvania of 1963, and Don Hoak, former Pittsburgh Pirates baseball player who is now with the Philadelphia Phillies.

The principal speaker will be Dr. Maurice K. Goddard, Pennsylvania Secretary of Forests and Waters.

Miss Kegley will narrate a fashion show between 2 and 4 p.m. and Hoak will be accompanied by his wife, the former Jill Corey, radio, television and movie personality.

Others planning to attend the opening of the new ski area are Congressman Irving Whalley, secretary to Gov. William Scranton, and Miss Penny Pitou, former double silver Olympic medal winner at Squaw Valley, who now operates a ski school at Laconia, N.H.

Today will mark the first day of operation of the ski area which is located about 21 miles from Bedford. Facilities at Blue Knob include several slopes for various classes of skiers. The area also has a snow machine for use on the trails.

On December 21-23 Blue Knob will be host for the U.S.E.A.S.A. Junior Race Camp.

Meanwhile, another new skiing area is being constructed in the Harrisburg-York area near Dillsburg, Pa., where the Blair Mountain Ski Corporation has purchased 116 acres of land and work is well under way.

This area to be known as the Blair Mountain Ski Area will have a drop of 410 feet, snow makers capable of covering 240,000 square feet in 10 hours and two downhill trails of 2,500 feet. The main tow will be 2,100 feet long and capable of carrying 1,000 skiers per hour. There will be a chalet type lodge, a restaurant and every effort is being made to provide the skier with a modern, fully equipped winter resort.

The Blair Mountain Ski Area will open this month and will provide the Harrisburg-York area with its first winter sports area.

Both the Blue Knob Ski Centre and the Blair Mountain Area are included in the latest "Ski Area Directory," Pennsylvania '63/64 which is available from the Vacation and Travel Development Bureau, Department of Commerce Harrisburg, Pa.

'Adopt-A-Ship' Program Popular With Youngsters

The "Adopt-A-Ship" program is sponsored by The Propeller Club aided by participating United States flag steamship companies. With Moore-McCormack's 44 ships, the program totals 322 ships. The school children send their questions to the Masters who have voluntarily enrolled and who reply with details of staff, cargoes, and countries visited. Many teachers use this information in class work. Emphasis is placed, too, on the importance of the merchant fleet to people and industries in the students' areas.

Grade school classes in all 50 states have "adopted" United States merchant ships and there is a waiting list of applicants from over 300 classes for whom no ships are currently available.

Moore-McCormack's fleet serves four continents with ships sailing from all North American coasts to South America, Europe, and Africa on essential trade routes.

Activities Set This Week At Civic Center

A number of activities are scheduled next week at the Baltimore Civic Center.

A professional basketball game between the Baltimore Bullets and the Boston Celtics will be played at the Civic Center today at 8 p.m.

On Tuesday, December 10, the Stars of the Bolshoi Ballet will perform at 8:30 p.m. and a professional wrestling show will be held the following night at 8:30 p.m.

Baltimore's professional hockey team, the Clippers, will play the Quebec Aces on Friday, December 13 at 8 p.m. and the next night the Ballet Folkorico of Mexico will present a show at 8:30 p.m.

Airline Starts Long Flights

Pan American Airways now has one of the world's longest non-stop jet flights between New York and Buenos Aires. Giant Boeing fan-jets making the 5,445-mile trip in 10½ hours, cut two hours from present travel time.

The flights, linking the largest cities in North and South America, are 800 miles longer than the airline distance between New York and Moscow.

Top Pan Am officials and leaders in travel and commerce between the Americas will be aboard inaugural flights in each direction.

Producer Takes Show To England

NEW YORK (UPI) — There has been much talk about the number of British attractions imported for Broadway, but Harold Prince not only exports to London—he does his own producing there.

His "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum," still current here at the Alvin Theater, opened in London during the fall to one of the most enthusiastic receptions ever given an American musical Early next year he will give London a duplicate of his "She Loves Me," now at the Eugene O'Neill Theater.

The 35-year-old producer, who has such successes as "Fiorello!" "Damn Yankees," and "The Pajama Game" in his past, has two British partners for his overseas operations. They are Tony Walton, set and costume designer and husband of star Julie Andrews, and Richard Pilbrow, a lighting expert.

Prince was so distressed with the botch a London producer made of "Fiorello!" when that Pulitzer Prize musical was duplicated by a British company that he decided to set up his own office in London.

Asked about the differences in producing here and in England, Prince replied:

"There is no difference at all any more. Television entertainment has resulted in Londoners patronizing only the better things in the theater. Just as here, you either have a quick hit or a quick flop.

"And I'm happy to say that there is a great pool of acting talent for musicals in England now. Ten years ago there was not. This is expecially true where dancers are concerned. When we did 'West Side Story' in London a few years ago, we had to take dancers over there from New York. Not any more.

"Interest in the musical idiom is high, and British actors generally are not above getting some training that will enable them to work in musicals when the opportunity comes along.

"We are quite excited about 'Forum' duplicating its New York success in London. The advance bookings at the Strand Theater are enormous. The show followed about the same pattern as it did here in the tryout phase. We felt it would be popular after Oxford, but we did terrible business in Manchester. Here we were a hit in New Haven and only so-so in Washington. Then, of course, came the wonderful receptions in New York and London.

"The Golden Age," a dramatized reading by four actors using various materials from England's Elizabethan era, and "Once for the Asking," a weak comedy about persons being granted their prime wishes for 24 hours, were quick Broadway failures in November.
